Hey, I don't have any latency numbers for Nebula, so if you're successfully running it in PARIS and have some useful info to contribute to the latency database here for the benefit of those taking the plunge, feel free to edit the page directly (if you're logged in the Wiki you just double-click on the page to edit it).

A glance at the way the tables are formatted will help you see how to enter data. Don't worry, you probably won't mess up the page, and if you do you can easily revert it, or I can. A look at the underlying code will help you see what to do (best to copy a line you like and just paste it back in and edit the text). If this seems daunting, post them here and I'll add them in. Thanks!
