Don't know what happened, who placed the straw that broke the camel's back, but in case you haven't noticed it, this newsgroup is now officially dead meat/jumped the shark/gone off the deep end.

For anyone who would like to keep in touch with me to chat about anything music or recording-related, my e-mail address is:

neil DOT henderson AT sbcglobal DOT net

....but i'm definitely not going to waste my time here anymore.

Adios.

Neil

Bummer, Neil. We'll miss your sage input. Come back any time, and please bring Dedric with you.

Things _have_ been a bit crazy here, lately. I wonder what's up with that?

Hey you guys, don't read every post here.

There's no time for that.

Neil take it easy and stop in once in a while just to see what's happening.

Neil, you are a very valued member here, seriously. I see great things for this newsgroup that will increase the signal to noise dramatically by creating topic specific newsgroups. Check it out when it's done and you'll be able to stay on topic.

In the meantime, excuse our dust.....

Hey Neil,

This will all die down shortly, don't worry. I'm part of the straw in this case and feel a teensy bit bad. Not much, mind, because I just made a pretty harmless joke and someone, I have NO idea who, went postal.

This is a really low traffic group, though, so your input (and microphone castoffs) would be very much missed. Drop back after a bit and I don't think you'll be any the worse.

What's the matter Neal, you can dish it out but you can't take it? So now your going to take your ball and go home?

Here is my suggestion, don't mock people, don't put people down, and don't insult people and it won't happen to you!

If you guys don't want this NG to go to hell, try a little more tolerance, and a little more respect. Try to resist insulting and piling on others.

The smartasses may have their laughs and have their fun, but just remember this, it's easy to mock, insult and put down others, but it will destroy this NG. The choice IS up to you guys.

I don't recall posting a bunch of sarcastic, personal, attack rants in all caps under a fake name. Though I am doubtless a smartass I'm an honorable one at least, and have never done anything like that.

So someone else 'started it' IHMO,

Thad, you started this by mocking me, by posting "Microsoft committed to Office."
My Post "Apple committed to Final Cut" was the headline from the news article, if you would have read it. I posted it because it was discussed here and some people had concerns about it. There can no longer be any posts where anything Mac or Apple related is mentioned without you mocking, trashing or bashing. it's gotten personal, I recommend you stop!

Funny you mention that, James, because I was just thinking about that. In all of the years I have read this NG I have NEVER, not once, said anything bad about someone personally, with one exception. The exception isn't you, it's DC. Oddly enough, I suspect DC and I would get along pretty well in person. Usually the people I get along with online are the same that I get along with offline, but in Don's case I suspect he has a sense of humor that doesn't come through in his writing. I deplore the way he conducts himself online, though, and said so, in pretty blunt terms.

However, in your case I have never said a thing about you personally. I never said BOW DOWN BEFORE JAMES GREAT GENIUS OF ALL THINGS APPLE and so on and so forth. The fact is that _someone_ did that about me. Since I can't confirm who did that I'm going to pretend I don't know the responsible party, and it's not a huge deal anyway. My skin is pretty thick.

Thad, it doesn't matter if you are directly or indirectly insulting, it's getting personal! You have mocked me. If seems that you have something to say about everything, when it comes to Mac related posts, especially if they are from me. You have an axe to grind when it comes to Macs. You don't use Macs, your experience is lacking, yet you Mac bash as if you know what you are talking about. This is not about Macs, now is it?

I am no genius when it comes to all things Apple, but you are mocking me again!

There can no longer be any posts where >anything Mac or Apple related is mentioned without you mocking, trashing >or bashing. it's gotten personal,

Sure there can. Perhaps this has something to do with the majority of the threads you "start" having something to do with Apple?

How on earth can someone take a computer "personally"? When you trash MS, I don't take it "personally", though I have used both platforms and have a preference.

If Thad hadn't beat me to it, I would have probably popped off with some smartass comment, but probably not nearly as hilarious.

It was interesting to see Bunel (whoever that is)show and nice to see Derek make an appearance, even though last time I looked Derek and I had some seemingly irreconcilable differences.

Deej, if you will take notice, I have NOT posted anything trashing MS in quite some time. You and John and others have posted Mac bashing videos in resent times. so who's starting it? I let it go. I can take a little ribbing from time to time, but it is now getting personal.

If you go way back, and your honest and objective, you'll see that people here on this NG were bashing Macs before I ever started on MS. I've quit. In recent times I have only post information about what's going on with MS, you read the articles and you decide. I've tried to lay off, but I think Vista is a debacle right now, I'm sure MS will fix it in time.

I see Mac OSX being a better alternative to Vista right now, and you can build a dual quad core for about $600.00 to run it. I've wanted to post about it specifically for you, but I didn't because I thought you would take it wrong and be insulted buy my suggestion, and I thought it would start a bunch of shit. You see, I feel I can no longer post anything that is mac related with out being attacked. Have you seen me attack every post that is MS or Vista related recently?

Don't forget I also use Windows XP also, not just Macs.

I think SOME people should consider what they post, things have gotten personal and insulting. Have you seen Dedric around here in a while? Someone basically called him a racist, he's out of here! All of us should think where this is going. We all have something to contribute to the NG. some people may not be in to the Mac stuff, but they don't have to jump in and comment on it if it doesn't concern them. It's not once in a while, it's every time. The Mac bashing and the mocking needs to stop!

It's funny - I was mostly sticking around because I've grown fond (in an internet newsgroup sort of way) of some members of this community and like to see what they're up to but lately there's actually been some interesting Paris-related content, thanks, in no small part, to Kerry Galloway's sudden re-emergence and his new interest in archiving Paris info. The Paris Wiki may or may not be too little too late for many of us but it's been a source of hope for me. I still us Paris on a day-to-day basis to make my living and I'm grateful to all of you who continue to contribute to this group.

As far as straws breaking camel's backs goes... There is a certain amount of joking around and friendly teasing that goes on here. It sometimes gets taken personally when I don't think it's intended to offend. I've been there and done that in the 'General' group. What I had hoped would be some intelligent discussion became pretty ugly and I finally had to walk away. It's too bad that stuff like that happens sometimes. None the less, I keep coming back to this group on a daily basis. Neil - I hope you change your mind and stick around.

It's the comments like these James, that cause the friction in this group.
We don't care about platforms...who gives a s##t ?
I use both, and now prefer one over the other...but I'm not bigoted about it..
Chill out and lets get on with meaningful (???) conversation on this group.

BTW, don't go Neil..

to hurt your feelings. Really. When we get into the MS vs Apple stuff, I'm

Well, I think that Macs, are overblown cult objects, but now that they are somewhat competitive with PC's in price and functionality, I'm going into withdrawal because I can no longer get my self riteousness fix, except by taking a trip down memory lane. :)

If they'd just come down on their RAM prices and I could slap that little smartass in the commercial around once or twice, I'd probably like Macs again.

Come on James, as far as I can see, noone have insulting you at all here, just that someone, as me too, seems to see you're doing it extremely well to serve us most of the Macstuff you're coming over on the net. It's just some of the facts here, that we all are observing each others writings and have allways tried to be tolerating, to be some more thickskinned after all these years with people we have learned to call friends, with both positive and negative things to serve in the writings here. So James, as a friend, so far away but so near on the net; for me, it seems you still have problems to get some more thick skinn on your thinskinned net-body.

Statistical, when looking at the general site, it seems that you have started nearly half of all the subjects there since June 07. So my observings says me that you're the biggest "loverwriter" here;-)

You once said you won't use a mac because you can't tweak it. There are guys that are running 2.4 GHz Q6600 hackintoshs machines and are over-clocking them to 3.3GHz and there stable. I'm sure you don't care, and that's fine, I just thought I'd mention it.
As you have said, you'll never use a Mac, that's fine by me! As I've said, use what works for you.

James, You may get your way where you live by throwing a tantrum and acting the bully but you won't get it with me so you can give up now. My Starbucks Committed was just a joke and I can't believe you don't seem to be able to see that and take it as that. As DJ said so well, we don't give a shit about Macs or PCs. We are not in love with them and don't feel any connection to them so we will bash away on either any time we like.

This channel has been around for many years and you have the nerve to come in here and start threatening people and pushing your arrogance around.
It may work in some mac channel but it won't work here. Kim may even ban you if you keep it up.

Now chill out.
John

actually this is the thread where I was kind of hoping for a subtle apology along the lines of "wow, i guess i had too much coffee" or something similarly contrite.

There wouldn't be too many, (if any) people actually tweaking a MAC.

What interests me in all this is remembering a certain other fellow (someone once called "the list pothead") who was also volatile and would follow people he did not like and post mildly harassing comments now and then.

We learned to not engage him on his favorite trigger issues.
It worked, and we mostly got along.

Well, if James ain't got it now, he ain't gonna get it. He did not come up in the studio world back in the 70's and 80's like some of us, and never learned that cheerleading for a brand immediately marked you as a civilian. Now, I am not talking about telling another engineer to check out a mic pre, I am talking about engaging working professionals in bitter disputes of one brand vs. another. Studio guys simply don't DO that. It's like the Ford vs. Chevy guys! I cannot imagine anything more boring. As a 2nd engineer in a major facility back in 1980, if you hammered some other engineer about how (say) Quad-Eight desks RULE and Harrisons SUCK, and you lost your sense of humor and professional attitude, you would (if they liked you) get a stern lecture about how we don't CARE about brand loyalty, we only care about results. If you did it again, you would be shown the door.

Well, times have changed, and now we use consumer hardware to do professional work (like everyone else does) and the consumer brand-loyalty thing jumps right into our business, and it REEKS.

I fuggin' hate it.

James understands the negative fact that we hate it, but he does not understand the positive reasons why we don't DO that.

Ok, so I am going to try this once more, and James, if you pay attention you can remove yourself from the center of this sh*storm.

There are all kinds of wonderful people making wonderful recordings with different gear than mine, and even different platforms. I don't want them to not talk to me because they think I am not a pro and care more about brands than talent.

I care about music, not platforms. It's that simple.

Now, what about the mac bashing? Well that has been going on since the early 90's or so when the pc people would predict the demise of Apple every few weeks, and some IT directors would try to ban macs from the building. ho-hum, they failed. Big time. Apple is firmly established as the BMW of comp builders for both good and bad. So the bashing is largely impotent pecker-waving by the jealous, and some of it is legit from people who can get more performance for less money elsewhere. (like buying a Vette instead of a 540)

Who the fugg cares?

Now James, you owe a bunch of people here (not Thad!) an apology, and I suggest you leave Thad alone since you are just encouraging his worst instincts...

Or you can never be a part of the community of engineers.

It's up to you, but I think you can do better.

You're right, and you can still kizz my azz, Mr Pot, Kettle, Black, for your patronizing characterizations. Especially considering how pitifully little you do to get along with others.

Having said that I know a great pub out here and the first round is on me. No strip clubs though.

I should explain that I'm referring to the irony being in the statement itself, not directed at you personally/generally.

Just seems odd to have a go at somebody, when you're having a go at them for not making an effort to get along. ;o)

I'll shut up I think. Where's that delete post command? ;o)

Oh boy oh boy oh boy, DC can I join your club of real engineers? Please!
Please! Please! Dude, you have got to be kidding me! You don't know any thing about me. I have worked on Harrison consoles in the past and some of them do SUCK!

I'll say again, I didn't start the shit here on this NG. I didn't start stirring it up the Mac vs PC war stuff on this NG, some of you guys did years ago. I got sick of hearing the same old repeated untruths about the mac platform, so I jumped in to straiten it out and give some information. If you want to believe that the Mac can't run as much software titles as a PC go ahead, but the truth is, Macs have been able to run more titles than a PC since about 1994, if you say other wise I will try to educate you.

I find it funny that the people that bash Macs don't use them. If you don't use them on a regular basis, how and the hell do you know what your talking about??? I use both, I used PCs before I ever used a Mac. I believe, for most people, if you used both you would you would end up preferring the Mac.
I also believe, for some people it's a left brain right brain thing, and they will never like a Mac. For others, I think they are just stubborn, or brain washed or ignorant, these are the people that will go to their graves insisting that Macs suck. Until you use a new Mac for a couple of years you won't know.

I don't give a rat's ass what you use, just don't bash the mac when you don't know what the hell your talking about. Don't mock or insult mac users and you won't be mocked or insulted. It's like telling someone they are a dumb ass for paying $3,000.00 for a compressor when they could have bought a RNC for $175.00, and then talking about your new $3,000.00 mic pre you just bought.
You don't know what the value is that they are getting out of the $3,000.00 compressor, and you got personal and insulted their intelligence.

It can go both ways, tit for tat. I didn't start the shit here on the NG.
I didn't start the shit this time, Thad did, and John and Neil followed.
I haven't made any post that would stir any thing up in quite some time, but others have. If I post anything about Apple or MS it's information.

You may not like the information, but the information may not be for you.
Any posts I make about mac information draws fire now. It's not about Apple, MS or Macs, what it is becoming, is personal. If someone is going to mock me, ridicule me, put me down or insult me, they can expect to get it back.
Don't pile on and then patronize me and tell me to chill out, if you do, you can expect it to get ugly.

It's become obvious to me that a few people would like to drive me off the group, and they may get what they want, or they may get exactly what they asked for, but the group won't be the same.

DC, I don't appreciate your little talk. If you want to view me as the center of the problem, I'll note your position. If you want to shun me or ignore me or whatever, go for it.

Wait just a minute there Thad.... correction!.... you slammed me pretty good once when, pre-spider-hole capture, and subsequent lunar courtroom outbursts, you asserted that Saddam Hussein was a "genius." But in all fairness, I more or less told you I thought that was about one of the stupidest things I've ever heard.... although, as was the case then, time will tell.... or already did tell... you tell me. Maybe he was just a half-genius, half-idiot and we were both right and all that living like a groundhog finally brought his murderous conciousness to the "surface."

I recall you left the group for a looooooong time after that.... kinda like Neil plans on apparently doing. Ain't it funny how a a few dirt clods wafting through the air brings out the sandbox brow beatings on newsgroups! I still marvel.

Right you are, Mark. So there are _two_ people I have critiqued personally on the NG. That's over the course of about 7-8 years of posting. So I think this is further proof that I'm not quick to pull the trigger.

Having a go at him is one way you get along.

Remember SSC, he was even more abrasive than Thad is, and yet he was a good guy at heart.

Just trying to look beneath the surface.

Hey James, I appreciate some of the Mac posts, and the ones that don't affect me don't bother me. It's another tool, as has been said. And a better overall choice for some of us, right now. But to each their own (as I think we've both said many times).

Beyond Macs, you and I have had a few disagreements along the way. Some strong. But that's not a problem as far as I'm concerned. We all have our opinions. We all have our blind spots. But everyone here has something to offer.

Clearly Thad is not a Mac fan and some of his criticisms and assumptions are ones I wouldn't make (having used a few OSX Macs pretty heavily at this point, among other platforms), but his sense of humor was not a problem for me. His first jokey responses missed the point that there actually had been rumors going around about the Apple pro apps. I wouldn't expect him to know that - he doesn't really follow Mac news, I'm guessing. But his responses to the anon posts were funny. BTW, I don't think there's anything to those pro app rumors.

I agree with Don that music is gear agnostic, to an extent anyway. But the fact is we all came here to discuss gear and computers, for good reasons, and it wouldn't be accurate to imply that there's nothing to discuss. It isn't just blind brand loyalty that leads people to recommend what works for them.

Discussing computer systems and software is as legit as discussing any other part of the recording chain. While it's true that a good engineer can do wonders with almost any piece of gear, the same engineer can likely do even better by choosing every piece of the chain.

BTW, maybe the "cool club" mentality Don brought up is behind that weird shunning thing. Slamming or shunning others while lecturing people about how to behave, and pretending to speak for everyone, it seems a bit ironic but whatever. Like all of us probably, Don has plenty to offer.

For each of us, our behavior likely makes sense within the cultures in which we were raised. So I tend to cut people some slack, especially on message boards where all the body language and voice inflections, a big part of meaning and intent, are filtered out.

Also, all the PARIS group people I've met in person have been great. My guess is that most of the arguments that break out here would never escalate like that if everyone was actually in the same room together.

Anyway, Kim and Kerry hit the nail on the head, overall. And a big thanks to both of them for doing something useful!

And Neil has a good point about signal to noise ratio. Which I'm sure this post isn't helping. ;^)

Cheers,
-Jamie

PS. For some reason a reply to a Mac product link you sent me in private email bounced last week, James. Looks like the problem is between my ISP and your email service, I notified my ISP. But basically the monitor support you mentioned looks pretty cool but wouldn't fit on my desk. Right now my second G5 monitor fits pretty well on its own, just off to the side of my MIDI controller keyboard. Works for now. :^)

You've said this before, I say use what you want.

I don't think it's your place to tell me what I'm going to be part of and what I'm not. There is no apology necessary, I was the one that was mocked, for posting information that was relevant to some, remember?

So mock back, fer Pete's sake...

Yelling at Thad behind some patently fake persona and dragging the whole list down is unacceptable

You do it because you are too sensitive to mac-bashing.
It's just gear. get over it.

Tell you what, go find an old mac, say a dead one, and gleefully take a ballpeen hammer to it.

Then a PC.

The whole time repeating:

I don't care about brand loyalty
I don't care about brand loyalty
I don't care about brand loyalty
I don't care about brand loyalty
I don't care about brand loyalty

Then post the pics.

or not...

Point of order, neither you nor I know exactly who posted under a fake name.
I'm choosing not to make the obvious conclusion.

See DC, you don't get it. Reread my past posts. I don't care what you use.
I use both Macs and PCs, I prefer Macs, but it's not about brand loyalty.
I'm just passing information on to some of the other mac users that might be interested. It's just bullshit to get jumped every time I do. Some times
I might even post about something that is mac related but not audio related.
Things like BlackBerrys have been discussed here, it's not a reason for a war. I'll try to post to the general NG things that are not audio related, however, if nobody else follows this rule, nobody should expect me to. One other thing, a lot of people miss what is posted to the general NG. I personally believe that if the NG is divided up too much it will fall apart.

And you have lots of oil! Not a bad place to be these days. I've been meaning to visit Iceland one of these days, your Nordic brothers ans sisters, but I think this summer I'm going to spend a week in Argentina. Good wine, good steak, winter during our summer? Sounds good to me.

Well the currency in Iceland has gone to hell recently too, but yes, traveling to Europe is not exactly the cheapest thing to do these days. The dollar has a pretty grim short term outlook, but in the long run I'll take it over a lot of others. Especially the Euro. But with all of that oil your Norske folks won't be doing too bad, no matter what currency we're talking about.

actually that would be the punched in the night family...you know, guy head of household thing. if you're going to "court" me at least pretend to respect me...sniff...sniff...and those are angry tears mister.
