That might be real good man, but this is 2007, so we need to hear at least a sample.... a full track might be nice, tell your buddy a hq mp3 is bare minimum :)

This was recommended to me by a friend and it is just wonderful.

It manages to be both tuneful and modern

(we have both kinds of music here! tuneful AND modern!)

and stunning, absolutely breathtaking, beautiful, and moving.

If you need a real change in your listening, get it!

Man, I wish I could write music like this....

Dang backwards classical guys! <grin>

I found it on Amazon, but their listening system seems to be full of viruses. You click to play a tune and they try to give you an .exe file!

Anyway, if you like contemporary classical, but still like melodies, if you like Ives, Britten, Lauridsen or even Copland, you will likely love it. If you don't like any classical, then it is not for you.

To me, it is like breathing mountain air after a year in Burbank...

Well, burn us all an mp3 & e-mail it, then, dammit, if it's so good! lol

I agree with Cron - we're almost 8 years into the 21st century - if we can't hear at least a good file segment, we're automatically not interested!

I will say classical Beatles sound played up the modern way, as only Macle can do, is the way for me to listen to right now. Marvelous recorded(I think it's Paris homemade recordings), so I've bought three records from them, just to have some gifts to old musician friends I played with in the sixties. I am listening to their album "Future Junk" now as I was listening to the Beatles in the sixties. I know many of you here wanted to buy the Macle sound years ago, so here you can buy it with PayPal: <http://www.themateswebsite.com/>

2007 ? Damn, now I'm way behind, I thought it was 1967 and Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band just came out. It sounds fresh as ever compared to the crap being pushed today.

It was twenty years ago today,
Sgt. Pepper taught the band to play
They've been going in and out of style
But they're guaranteed to raise a smile.
So may I introduce to you
The act you've known for all these years,
Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band.
We're Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band,
We hope you will enjoy the show,
We're Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band,
Sit back and let the evening go.
Sgt. Pepper's lonely, Sgt. Pepper's lonely,
Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band.
It's wonderful to be here,
It's certainly a thrill.
You're such a lovely audience,
We'd like to take you home with us,
We'd love to take you home.
I don't really want to stop the show,

But I thought that you might like to know,
That the singer's going to sing a song,
And he wants you all to sing along.
So let me introduce to you
The one and only Billy Shears
And Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band.

Amazing to be that absolutely modern and yet so beautiful...

I wish my music theory teacher friend was still alive. I would walk down the street and ask him "how do you do that?" just like I used to.

I used to bring over stuff like Sting's Fortress Around Your Heart and he would show me the modes used.

Anyway, glad you liked Arvo.

Hey, I used to teach music theory and composition. We'll have to chat if we're ever walking down a street. :)

Anyway, I was going to ask if you'd ever heard Frank Zappa's "The Yellow Shark." I thought of this when you said ". . . modern and yet so beautiful . . ." because this qualifies, too. Not that it's similar compositionally, but Frank was definitely capable of some wonderful orchestral stuff, and "The Yellow Shark" is a whole album of it, arranged for and performed by Germany's Ensemble Modern. The pieces range from serene to humorous to violently dissonant. One of my favorite records ever.

Cool! Soooo how can you use the harmonies in Part, and say Barber's Concerto for Violin and Orchestra on lead guitar with a sort of Who thing going on in the rhythm section?

How do you blow bebop over a hard blues groove??

Strange sound we get in our heads huh? I think it would take 100 years to do the things I dream of...

Haven't heard this. I would love to.

I used to bring melodies I had come up with to my friend the comp and theory prof and he would hear them once, and go to the piano and play one and harmonize it on the spot. And beautifully.

Used to give me the worst damn headaches and fits of swearing...

Hey, if you can hear it in your head, you can make it happen in the air, I always say. Well, OK, I've never said that before, but I think it's true, provided you have a good ear and a good basic grasp of harmony and modes. I don't think it would take a hundred years. :)

It might for me...

I can hear it though. Way out on the fringe of my awareness.

Imagine a really hard blues thing, kind of a SRV Crossfire with a bit of very early Johnny Winter thrown in, and instead of the standard guitar riffs over it, you had Charlie Parker? (but on guitar, not sax)

It's like greasy and cerebral, sexy and complex, all at once....

Without being fusion or prog...

grrrrrr... I can't quite grasp how to do it.

Sounds like you need to check out some Gary Moore.

Don-

I am fairly certain that any type of guitar playing you can imagine does indeed exist out there. There is a guitar player I heard the other day, Julian Lage, who is, I believe, capable of the playing I imagine you are thinking of. As any good internet-literate person would, I blogged about hearing him.

Perhaps there are two mental processes going on. One is that you imagined a feeling -- an emotion -- and then you other is that you tried to imagine a combination of musical experiences that would produce such a feeling.

Or maybe not.

These sorts of things fascinate me.

Wow, he's good isn't he? I found some stuff on YouTube. What a tuneful player. Fabulous. He probably does have the chops to pull it off. Great musical sense too. thanks

It's like a few years back when I went to the Ellington Society convention. I met Louis Bellson and hung out for a while before his show and then sat in the front row while he blew my mind. (he gave me his sticks from that show, they are on the wall out in the studio) Anyway, during one of the more swinging pieces, I just was wishing for my guitar... Some BB stuff, but more of a rock tone, and I heard exactly what I would have played. All of a sudden it was just there! I knew it. Jazz Rock without the schmaltz.

Jazz Rock usually loses the power of both styles. I want to keep the power and swing and everything. Yes it may be a dream, but this came close didn't it?

OK, but Moore has that hard blues thang goin' on, so I thought he might get you close? How about McLaughlin/Mahavishnu? Too jazzy? It's also kind of hard to listen to - some of those recordings were pretty harsh. How about DiMeola's electric stuff? He's got a lot o' them pure jazz scales going on... only thing is he doesn't get too hard & heavy, and certainly not very bluesy, and he might be too salsa-influenced for what you're looking for (also it's hard to take all that pucka-pucka-pucketa-pucketa palm muting for too long).

Or how about Holdsworth? Think beyond UK and beyond the vibrato bar usage in & of itself... he always said he tried to make his guitar more like a saxophone sound - AND he's got them defractedenigmaticmelodicminor scales DOWN, boyeee! lol Some of his stuff might be exactly what you're looking for!

Actually I like a lot of that stuff, and I think they were often looking for what I am describing (when they weren't being too cosmic...)
Remember Romantic Warrior? yeoww!

But no, that is not it either.

I love Holdsworth too and yes, if I was to talk to him about all this,
he would get it. But no...

BTW, his favorite piece of music is Debussy's Clair De Lune. He says it always brings him to tears. Isn't that interesting? I would have never guessed...

And I am not actually looking for this music, I want to write it!
No, I do not have the chops in that style, but I can HEAR it, way over there, just out of reach. As powerful as SRV, as wild and free as Bird, as greasy as Buddy Guy...

Drives me bats.... woooo-eeee-ooOOOOO

A friend of mine is a friend of Holdsworth's. I may see if we can hang out and discuss this over dinner sometime. He will either tell me I'm nutz or he'll get really excited... heh heh

DC,

It sounds like you should try to find a way to play this sound in your head yourself. Nothing wrong with being a band leader or producer and getting people to do your arrangements, though. You may only need a collaborator and then things will take off.

Good luck!

I need to pull out Bird for a few days and see if I can hear it any better.

It could all be a dream. I played a new song to someone in a dream a week ago, and woke up and could remember what I did on the guitar to play it. Sooo I went and played it and it did not sound at all like the music that came out when I did the exact same thing in the dream...

Can we dream in open tunings?

Again, I recommend Frank Zappa, who once said he had always wanted to hear a guitarist do things he'd only heard sax players do. Check out the Hot Rats album, or tracks like "Inca Roads" and "Cosmic Debris." (It's hard to pick Zappa recommendations since the man made over 50 albums in just under 30 years.) He was good at merging disparate styles and modes. There's even a tune called "Bebop Tango" on both the Roxy & Elsewhere album and The Yellow Shark (orchestral version).

OK, it's true . . . I've been a big Zappa fan since I first heard "Help, I'm a Rock!" during my tender formative years. But he really was unique among guitar players in addition to his composing gift.

Zappa kicks butt, but way too ironic for what I want to do.

My buddy saw Dweezil doing the "Zappa plays Zappa" tour recently and was extremely impressed.

I wish I had been there.

The one that I own is with Tonu Karljuste and the Estonian Philharmonic Chamber Choir. I'm pretty sure it is the first release of a lot of these sessions. The disc also contains the really fantastic "Silouans Song".

Enjoy!
