
Subject: OT - keys guys, need a big favor
Posted by pbraun on Tue, 01 Dec 2009 18:56:05 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

And of course, I need it in a hurry.

I got asked to design sound at the community theatre I left several years ago. Wouldn't have done it, but the show is a sequel to one we did years ago, and it's the original director and cast, and they're all good friends.

The script calls for Act II to start with a radio broadcast of a Christmas concert by the local HS band playing a medley of Christmas carols.

Only thing is, it's a real small school, in really rural Texas, and the band is really, really, really bad.

I need anywhere between 30 - 60 seconds of bad band music. Like nobody can play in tune or in time.

Does anyone here have:

- 1) Brass patches on a synth and;
- 2) Time to whip up a quick sound bite for me?

I can handle putting it into a "broadcast" sound space. I just need the music.

I would be happy to buy the beer if you ever come close to Chicago.

Thanks.

Subject: Re: OT - keys guys, need a big favor
Posted by pbraun on Sat, 05 Dec 2009 15:55:01 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I solved my own problem. Found a clip on youtube of a marching band playing Christmas carols. Snagged the audio into Paris, did a random pitch shift and slowed it down some. Close enough.
