>Derek, I appreciate your writings here. It saying much about where the problems are in my thoughts too.

I think we Europeans knows that "being big" allways have made problems when trying to be bigger than big:-) Big with weapons in hands are often showing up these weapons as their only "brain" when conflicts are coming.

Our worlds problems, that started the first worldwar, was already coming in 1864, when Bismarck made the big, German nation under the hegemony of Preussen. It was the oldnordic traditions with the God Wotan (or Odin in Norwegian) that then again was showing up in the people. It's showing well in "To an unknown God" from 1864, from the pen of Nietzsche, one of the greatest German philosopher and writers in those times. The feeling of being big was setting the standard of human thinking hundred of years back in time in those days, maybe thousands. So the next 50 years was showing up with more and more problems, first of all in the southern region of Europe, in Austria and Hungary, where their minorities was suppressed (as the german minority in Austria, after the first worldwars ending, where Hitler was born and grown up, knowing the suppression on his own body). So the fatal shot in Sarajevo from a Serbian, that killed the Habsburger prince 28. June 1914, was just the drop that started it all in "old" modern times.

I'm seeing exactly the same pattern in American behavings in our modern times as it was before the first world war. American sivilians generally don't know what a war is on their own body without their own civil war that was overupheating from the south with South Carolina in front, when Abraham Lincoln was being President in 1860. The American nation was splitted in two in those days with 11 states in the southern part and the rest in the northern part, as far as I can remember in my readings about America. But I think most of the Americans are knowing these badly story very well. As far as I can understand in readings and seeing, the human feelings haven't changed much since then in north and south, after observe what's happening in the last two president votings. As Dejj wrote about the observations to the indians, I can see a nation of different nations that really have big problems

You didn't get it? It was a refence to your statement "i knew that was coming" or whatever the exact verbage was.

Neill received a mix from a local AE a few days ago and I'm totally mind boggled.

There are instruments and vocls placed outside the normal stereo image...like 12" outside of the speakers.

I was wondering if any of you might know how this was done...he swears no esoteric plugins were used in the creation of this effect.

i did. its why im interested in this discussion.
a childish "i know 100% percent im right" attitude isnt exactly helping, but at least in parts your post gets over the standard stereotype attitude. it seems to help that i repeatedly write about the things i dont think, even though it doesnt fit into your arrogant euro pacifist drawer:

- i acknowledge the use of force as concept to end a conflict.
it often is the most peaceful way to go.

yes. too bad it wouldnt work because their religious fanatic idiots. theres a reason why i talked so much about the good timing of rabin. you gotta force religious idiots into their own good. too bad the timing wasnt quite right and a handful of steps at a time was still to extreme of a dialog for some extremist idiots. it wasnt even an islamic extremist idiot but a jewish one who ultimately destroyed it all - but it could very well have been one.

> Why do you euros never demand a DAMN THING from the oh we never demand a damn thing from the arabs?

thats funny. usually, especially where i live, its a tradition to not ask anything from israel (obvious reason being germany's history, were simply in no position to ask anything from them). maybe you should study the people you want to call hypocritical arrogant fools a little more before you go ahead with it.

but ive had enough of the stereotype discussion. suit yourself and bathe in your stupid cliches if it makes you feel any better.

with trusting each other after a long history-background. from their real homecountries that they have travelled from. So maybe it's really understandable with their "shoot first, then ask" mentality that's often showing up. The real American are nearly nonexistent(what a word, I don't know if it's correct written at all) in America, as far as I can understand but I'm seeing Dejj have learned to do some observations from them about the "new" Americans, that's just seems to be German, French, Scandinavian etc. etc.
So, as far as I can understand, the only real Americans are the indians.

Hmm, I'm thinking too much when doing too much observations, it can be dangerous when thinking so much too much:-) But never mind, I have had my life, but our children and grandchildren shall take over the heredity and environment from us in the coming world. So I mean it's well worth to do something for them too, so maybe they can have real trust to other nations too, for a better future.

my friends you are surely missing the point.

The idea that you should keep killing "them" before they kill you is is pretty sociopathic I think. Please remember a few important things about the "war".

Let's start with "them". The dehumanizing of others is an important diagnostic point in the evaluation of pathological personality disorders. Underlying this is the idea that one is not harming a "person" but a "thing" or "non-person". It allows the ego to remain intact while performing otherwise unthinkable actions.

But who are "them"? For the most part they are normal, everyday families like yours and mine. Shop keepers, TV repairmen, gas station attendants, secretaries....who only want to live freely, in peace, raising their families and living their lives. "They" are not, for the most part, combatants. Or they weren't before the US got their.
The US has done more harm in this region, to the people and their country, than Saddam ever could have. The US, in it's quest for middle-east domination vis-a-vis their oil supply, has turned a thriving people (albeit with nasty leadership)&nbsp; into an empoverished, toxic waistland.

And for you who can't see the forest for the trees, let me make the fairly-fucking-clear observation that if you have a natural resource that someone else wants and they decide to come and get it from you by force (the Chinese could do this) You will be labeled "insurgents" and you wives and children will suddenly become "enemy combatants". Oh, what, if someone invades you you're gonna sit on your fat ass and let them take you home? No, you are gonna fight them off, you nasty terrorist scum...or so you would be labeled in the media of the nation

invading you. (quite likely in the name of God)

Wake up you collective heads of knuckle. What the hell do you think's going on over there? It's people deffending their land, their homes and their lives from - Foreign Invaders! Fuck me, how dumb do you have to be not to get this not-to-fucking-subtle point? If the shoe were on the other foot you would react no differently.

One of you nazis, don't remember who, said in another thread that they thought it was "them" who were doing the bombing, not "us". Just as a reminder, the US has been bombing Iraq into a god-forsaken moonscape since '89. Over 500,000 children have died since then as a direct consequence of US military, oh-so-compassionate, action.

And please knock it off with the old "well they bombed NYC so we're retaliating." chestnut. If you take the time to read the statements of Bin Laden you will see that he's not a nut at all. The reasons he gives for his actions are clearly backed up by all objective histories of the conflict in this region, A conflict that does not, as someone here falsely assumed, go back millenia. PS, it wasn't Iraq that did the bombing, Saddam had nothing to do with it.

The Arabs and the Jews were living peacefully side-by-side well into the 20th century. This is fully backed up by historians, check it for yourself. It wasn't untill the US decided to create a client state in '48 that trouble began. Hey, stoopid, how would you feel if China decided it was going to give Native Americans an offical homeland and they decided to hack off a piece of New York or California and kick the citizens out, putting the Natives in charge of the state and relocating you "terrorists" to camps in outlying regions. It's pretty fucking obvious why the Palistinians are upset.

And as for Iraq, only the dumbest of the dumb are still parroting the solidly discredited lies the were conjured up by the US gov't to justify this invasion. The historical fact is that the US and it's allies have been meddling in this region since the 1800's in order to capture the oil supplies.

See where I'm going with this yet? If you substiute terms you'll see quite clearly that they can do no differently, just as you would do no differently in their situation. A small, defencless nation, Iraq must do what it can to get the US out of their country. Yet you continue to cast their self-deffence as terrorism. Shame on you psychpaths.

So, should we continue to speak dispicably, idioticly, inhumanly and pathologically of increasing and sustaining human carnage and suffering, as you have proposed? Or is this type of thinking actually the fuel that fires these war crimes.

.....just a little something to thing about.....

Of course, this pisses off the religious zealots who want to keep the population in lockdown, the Sunni's in Iraq who used to be in power in Iraq and now are not and the those who think we are exporting democracy at the point of a gun because they don't like our policies. Funny though, I sure don't see the general population of Afghanistan clamoring for the return of the Taliban. I also don't see a mass uprising in Iraq in favor of returning Sadaam to power.

I think if there's room & resources enough for both Israelis & Palestinians in the region they want to live in, I think they should quit fighting & come up with a plan. HOWEVER... this is essentially a 3,000 year-old family feud we're looking at over there, and my point of view may be a little too simplistic to deal with the situation. I am not very familiar with the condition of the agricultural situation there, but I understand it's not the best in the world - in that case, both sides should realize that there may not be enough resources in that immediate area to provide for as many people as want to live there... that's a problem, because you can't import everything food-wise. Israel is our ally, and we should stand by them, but I also hold the position that some kind of solution could be arrived at if both sides want peace more than war. OK, now this is the part where you rebut & tell me what a narrow-minded American I am, and how wrong my opinion is because you're Eurosuperior to me and have a much better world view because you read about cowboys & rodeos in Oklahoma & the drug problems in Miami in Der Spiegel & had a US soldier live next door to you & he was a dick, and of course, all Americans are exactly like he was.

BTW, the Israeli thing is VERY different than the situation we face with radical Islam... they do NOT want peace more than war, they only want to kill all the "infidels" and sing praise & glory to their blood-soaked god Allah, while trying to knock the rest of the world back into the 12th century, economically, societally, and politically. So, knowing this, and seeing what they've done beginning on 9/11 and continuing to this day, I think a slightly "different" approach is what's called for.

Erling,

The only reason tht I posted all this stuff was that I was trying to make two points that I don't think I made.

The first one was to try to give some small background of my life that was relative to the idea that I had a lot invested in my hopes of how I thought the world could be and so did these folks from Europe and all over the world really, though most of them were from Europe and the US.

The second point was that I was absolutely floored when these things were being observed and shown to me by people who were about as familiar with Europeans and Americans as beings from another planet. I didn't like hearing this. It certainly didn't fit my picture of how the world should be and what is really scary about it it that no one but the Indians even recognized what was going on.

I'm nothing special. Everyone has their own reasons for believing what they believe. My post was well meant, but in retrospect, it seems sort of silly to me and I shouldn't have even wasted my time or anyone else's time on this.

Regards,

Deej

Fair enough if thats what you believe. I mean personally I watched Bowling for Columbine and I thought it was incredibly balanced.

I honestly never followed Dan Rather enough to notice his bias. It's annoying as hell that all 'journalists' spin the story their own way.

thats a difficult question to answer. Rather's only involvement was doing the news that day and commenting "That looks like what we've all seen when a building is destroyed by well placed dynamite" a simple observation, one which I have shared, and one which you are willing to dismiss due to the source.

It's typical to shoot the messenger when they dont agree with you.Hmmmm.....OK.....NPR has some credibility with me.....crow is warming in the oven. I'll check this out and try to keep an open mind.

Wow.....sorry to hear that Erling. That's sad stuff. What is it with these Canadian girls? My girl was from Simcoe Ontario. We were together for over two years. Of course, when we went down to Mexico she stayed at the Canadian posada and I stayed at the American one.

I've heard it said before, usually by United Statesians, that these verifiable facts are non-the-less lies. I have not, however, seen anyone actually put forth proof that what I am saying is incorrect.

So, DC, for you to say that I am lying you must put for some evidence for your claim. Prove it!

es these doctrines are proven bankrupt by the evidence it matters little, because such beliefs are near religious in nature challenge.

These articles of faith apparently fill a deep psychological need for millions of Westerners, guilty over their privilege, free to do anything without constraints or repercussions, and convinced that their own culture has made them spectacularly rich and leisured only at the expense of others.

So it is not true to say that Western civilization is at war against Dark Age Islamism. Properly speaking, only about half of the West is involved, the shrinking segment that still sees human nature as unchanging and history as therefore replete with a rich heritage of tragic lessons.

This is nothing new.

The spectacular inroads of the Ottomans in the 16th century to the gates of Vienna and the shores of the vibrant economy, impressive universities, or widespread scientific dynamism and literacy, or even a technologically superior and richly equipped military. Instead, a beleaguered Europe was trisected by squabbling Protestants, Catholics, Atlantic seaports, ignored the besieged Mediterranean and Balkans and turned its attention to getting rich in the New World.

So too we are divided over two antithetical views of the blue states in intellectual and spiritual divergence, the tragic view resisting the creeping therapeutic mindset.

These interior splits largely explain why creepy killers from the Dark Ages, parasitic on the West from their weapons to communications, are still plaguing us four years after their initial surprise attack.

I know, I know -- I don't have to read it if I don't want to.
But -- isn't this what the "general" site is for?

Here's a pedal that does it. I own one, and it KILLS. It sounds so dang good I leave it on all the time (and I never do that) and it works for everything from metal to country to jazz.

It also works terrific as the front end of a modeler or other guitar preamp for direct recording.

<http://www.barberelectronics.com/tonepress.htm>

Absolutely my favorite guitar processor of all time.

DCYou guys are right. I think both sides have been adequately represented, I think both arguments have been well-made.

I think everyone has made their minds up at this point. Hostility and name-calling is creeping in to what was a pretty darn civilized discussion. It's quickly becoming pointless.

I am tracking a hard rock tune of mine and need to get back to work and this really isn't the place for this discussion. If you want to email me privately, I will discuss it further, but really, we've covered the subject, don't you think?

DC

PS, holy cow this Marshall JCM2000 sounds cool cranked up! Unfortunately, you can hear it down at the stop light when I do that... grrrr... Why can't the modelers sound like that? I hope you still follow up with the WTC7 stuff....

email me if you have to.

thanks

erman and

U.S. governments began to institute a variety of measures intended to destabilize and fragment the Yugoslav federation. These measures ranged from economic ones such as denying loans and demanding immediate repayment of outstanding debts to arming separatist (some with ties to the European fascist movement) movements in the Yugoslav republics of Croatia and Bosnia-Herzegovina. As for Kosovo, Serbia has indicated that it would grant Kosovo the autonomy it once had. However, the KLA and others now demand independence with the eventual goal of uniting with Albanians in Albania, Macedonia, and Greece and forming a Greater Albania. This is not acceptable to either the Serbs, Macedonians, or the Greeks and would probably cause this war to spread to those countries along with Turkey (who supports the idea) and perhaps the rest of Europe.

Don't forget that Bush Sr. gave Saddam the nod to go ahead and invade them, then turned table and used it as an excuse to invade Iraq. I was trading in oil back then and I remember a business associate of mine telling me that when in Washington he'd been told a tidbit about Saddam screwing Bush Sr out of 20 billion dollars that Georgie wanted back. Heresay, but non-the-less interesting.

What do you call what the US is doing to Them? As a point of clarity, the US, by illegally invading Iraq is, according to the Geneva Convention, murdering people. How do people defending their land from Foreign Invaders become murderers? Aren't they defenders of their homeland?

The US is pretty corrupt and its policies are entirely one-sided. Let's not forget that these people are like Menonites compared to the average US citizen. No drugs, no liquor, incredibly harsh on crime, no promiscuity...not unlike the tenets of the Bible that the 80% of the US espouses but fails to do. USians are hypocritical/fanatical in the extreme and they don't want what they perceive as US ultra-sinfulness polluting their nations.

It's not, "Geez, Trish, I hate you buying that top..I wanted it."
It's more like, "Geez, Trish, I hate you for buying that top that reveals so much. You should be ashamed. I'm going to kill you for this."

So, a middle class atheist is the same as a middle class Baptist? So they're middle class and educated, many of the activists of the world are. But the idea that they covet our high-speed internet and SUV's in, well, retarded at best.

Because they are Christians, like the US, who is killing them anyway. The Islamic Jihad is an opposing system of morality. The US never went to El Salvadore and said that they were evil, and that the US war was a war on evil, a crusade, as they did in the middle east. They used religious language to make a point demeaning the very underlying premise of the Jihad. Bush + God = We are Rightious. Islam + Allah (who is Satan, right?) = You are evil and must be smote.

Just as the US cares more about bombings IN the US than in other countries. Also, you have a charter that says the state must keep out of religion. Can you imagine a headline that reads, "US Invasion to Free Christians".

Muslim is a religious word. Defending "Muslims" per se is not what Bin Laden is attempting to accomplish, but the ousting of US invaders from the countries of the middle east.

I'm not certain what the point of this, and many other of Hanson's, statements is, but it's irrelevant.

The fact is that once the doors to overthrow were opened by the US, ever faction who believed that their way is the best way stepped up to the plate. The Wahhabi are so extreme that even Bin Laden sits up and takes notice when they speak. They are Way more fundy that he is. He took US money; the Wahhabi never would.

But here's a substitution of terms look at all this. If the US were invaded and society were disrupted to the extent in is in Iraq, or not even so, do you not think the disparate, extremist factions here at home would step up? There are many well armed factions in the US who would not hesitate to attempt to claim the leadership; Arian Nation, Republicans, Democrats, all those well armed Christian movements, not to mention the millitias and any other clutch of nuts with guns. It happens in every country where the gov't goes down...all the rats vie for the cheeze.

say without distraction that the rightwing ramblings of Mr. Hanson quite closely resemble the chock-full-o-nuts gibberish of the Po-Mo world.

from humans and is therefore arbitrary, regardless of your place on the US political spectrum.

Why should he come to the table? It's his table and the US isn't invited. The idea that we should, for some reason, forget all the harm the US has done over there underlies everything Hanson writes. Doesn't matter that the US spent more than 20 years decimating and interfering with their countries, including Iran, Iraq, Afghanistan, Syria to name a few. Oh, no, it's all about 9/11. No it isn't.

While this is emphatically true of writers of the Right such as Coulter, Limbaugh and Hanson, and it's been clearly deliniated point-by-point by they intelectual superiors, the same cannot be said of most of the neutralist and centerist writers.

The right never "proves" anything, it just makes up things as it goes along, forgets the fact of historic and political documents and proceeds with a string of bad logic and ad hominem that add up to nothing but blustering rantings.

I've read a great deal from both sides and, though I'm a centerist - if you need a term to grasp - I find that the left at least is interested in the truth and the facts whereas the right is mostly fiction and slag-offs. I have never seen a rightwing document that had the numbers right, the facts right or was anything but a screed, although I enjoyed it for its Lewis Carol-esque-ness.

Guilty over privilege? I've met a lot, I mean a real lot of privileged people (my wife's family is among the upper crust of NYC, so I've met people as diverse as Noam Chomski and Donald Trump and some of the Bush family who were at our wedding), and I've never met one who felt guilty because of their privilege. Oh contraire.

See, I told you so. So, literally, it isn't the East who war against our civilization, it's the "half of the West", the violent and insane half, that is fighting against "the dark ages of islam".

And there you have it folks, the real reason for the war - the overthrow of dark-ages Islam.

The nice thing about writing from the right is that people with mental illness will invariably show their hand. There pre-disposition to crazyness can lead them to do no less.

And that's what Hanson has done.

It's an AWARD Bios. I took your advice and made sure I got AWARD. That's what I'm used to anyhow. It also has this Gigabyte "Dual Bios" thing with two copies of the BIOS, so that if you flash it or get a virus and corrupt it somehow you can just switch to the backup BIOS. :o)

I'll get Paris running tonight. She seems pretty quick though. Boot time is about 4 x quicker.

fresh install would really help with the new computer feeling, but most importantly rule recycled windows out as a problem should you encounter something down the road.

just messin though, I've done the same thingDeej that doesn't really seem to be worth it, but have you considered adding oh yo youre holding me a lecture about how not to jump to conclusions? heh

sorry btw that i didnt reply - was quite busy doing a film score. im still not done but while the bounce is running, let me say this about your numerous tactical scenarios:

see, the point is, you talk about potential losses, losing parts of western germany and what not. im sure you will agree that from a german point of view, the stakes were even much higher, cause for a german it was the own country that would fall.

with that in mind, it was germanys call, it was out decision to make. germany chose the deescalation and diplomacy route.
long before reagan and gorbachov started cuddling btw.
and what do you know, it didnt go too bad.

thats where we go back to the "both can claim it was their approach that made peace in the end"-part, meaning, thats where we start going in circles and ill leave it at that.
i really better stay out of this for now. i just discovered that "im ready for nukes" thread...this is no place for me anymore.

it probably hasnt been for a long time.

>OK, not sure what you mean here... do you mean the incredible >amounts of money that your country contributed to the NATO >alliance? Not to belittle that - you guys did what you could, >and you were our best partner from everything I can
