
Subject: Still using IE? Read this Posted by Jamie K on Wed, 17 Dec 2008 17:22:48 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

From: http://www.denverpost.com/nationworld/ci_11252148
"The "zero-day" vulnerability, which came to light last week, allows criminals to take over victims' machines simply by steering them to infected Web sites; users don't have to download anything for their computers to get infected, which makes the flaw in Internet Explorer's programming code so dangerous."

You can wait for the MS fix or make the jump and get Firefox:

<http://www.mozilla.com/en-US/>

Firefox is working well here. I run it on a Mac and currently prefer it to IE and Safari.

Cheers,
-Jamie
www.JamieKrutz.com

Subject: Re: Still using IE? Read this Posted by Erling on Wed, 17 Dec 2008 19:31:54 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Have used Firefox som years now. I don't want to still be a betatester for Microsoft.

Erling

"Jamie K" <JamieN0-SPAM@JamieKrutzN0-SPAM.com> skrev i melding news:49493917@linux...

>

> From: http://www.denverpost.com/nationworld/ci_11252148
> "The "zero-day" vulnerability, which came to light last week, allows > criminals to take over victims' machines simply by steering them to > infected Web sites; users don't have to download anything for their > computers to get infected, which makes the flaw in Internet Explorer's > programming code so dangerous."

>

> You can wait for the MS fix or make the jump and get Firefox:

>

> <http://www.mozilla.com/en-US/>

>

> Firefox is working well here. I run it on a Mac and currently prefer it to > IE and Safari.

>
> Cheers,
> -Jamie
> www.JamieKrutz.com

Subject: Re: Still using IE? Read this Posted by EK Sound on Thu, 18 Dec 2008 15:24:35 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I am using Thunderbird here... also from Mozilla. It is a newer version of Netscape mail, I quite like it because all my accounts including news are in one window.

David.

Rod Lincoln wrote:

> I'm trying out Firefox here. What do you use for your email?
> Rod
> Jamie K <JamieN0-SPAM@JamieKrutzN0-SPAM.com> wrote:
>> From: http://www.denverpost.com/nationworld/ci_11252148
>> "The "zero-day" vulnerability, which came to light last week, allows >> criminals to take over victims' machines simply by steering them to >> infected Web sites; users don't have to download anything for their >> computers to get infected, which makes the flaw in Internet Explorer's >> programming code so dangerous."
>>
>> You can wait for the MS fix or make the jump and get Firefox:
>>
>> <http://www.mozilla.com/en-US/>
>>
>> Firefox is working well here. I run it on a Mac and currently prefer it
>
>> to IE and Safari.
>>
>> Cheers,
>> -Jamie
>> www.JamieKrutz.com
>

Subject: Re: Still using IE? Read this
Posted by Rod Lincoln on Thu, 18 Dec 2008 16:05:36 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I'm trying out Firefox here. What do you use for your email?
Rod

Jamie K <JamieN0-SPAM@JamieKruzN0-SPAM.com> wrote:

>

>From: http://www.denverpost.com/nationworld/ci_11252148

>"The "zero-day" vulnerability, which came to light last week, allows

>criminals to take over victims' machines simply by steering them to

>infected Web sites; users don't have to download anything for their >computers to get infected, which makes the flaw in Internet Explorer's >programming code so dangerous."

>

>You can wait for the MS fix or make the jump and get Firefox:

>

><http://www.mozilla.com/en-US/>

>

>Firefox is working well here. I run it on a Mac and currently prefer it >to IE and Safari.

>

>Cheers,

> -Jamie

> www.JamieKruz.com

Subject: Re: Still using IE? Read this

Posted by Jamie K on Thu, 18 Dec 2008 16:40:55 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

+1 for Thunderbird. Works great for email and newsgroups. I'm replying from it right now!

Another plus for Thunderbird and Firefox is that they work well on Mac, MSWindows and Linux. So if you ever change OS platforms you can keep the same email and browser setup. Same goes for Open Office.

Cheers,

-Jamie

www.JamieKruz.com

EK Sound wrote:

> I am using Thunderbird here... also from Mozilla. It is a newer version > of Netscape mail, I quite like it because all my accounts including news > are in one window.

>

> David.

>

> Rod Lincoln wrote:

>> I'm trying out Firefox here. What do you use for your email?

>> Rod

>> Jamie K <JamieN0-SPAM@JamieKruzN0-SPAM.com> wrote:
>>> From: http://www.denverpost.com/nationworld/ci_11252148
>>> "The "zero-day" vulnerability, which came to light last week, allows >>> criminals to take over victims' machines simply by steering them to >>> infected Web sites; users don't have to download anything for their >>> computers to get infected, which makes the flaw in Internet >>> Explorer's programming code so dangerous."
>>>
>>> You can wait for the MS fix or make the jump and get Firefox:
>>>
>>> <http://www.mozilla.com/en-US/>
>>>
>>> Firefox is working well here. I run it on a Mac and currently prefer it
>>
>>> to IE and Safari.
>>>
>>> Cheers,
>>> -Jamie
>>> www.JamieKruz.com
>>

Subject: Re: Still using IE? Read this
Posted by Rod Lincoln on Thu, 18 Dec 2008 21:01:56 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

OK thanks
Rod
Jamie K <JamieN0-SPAM@JamieKruzN0-SPAM.com> wrote:
>
>+1 for Thunderbird. Works great for email and newsgroups. I'm replying >from it right now!
>
>Another plus for Thunderbird and Firefox is that they work well on Mac, >MSWindows and Linux. So if you ever change OS platforms you can keep the >same email and browser setup. Same goes for Open Office.

>
>Cheers,
> -Jamie
> www.JamieKruz.com
>
>
>EK Sound wrote:
>> I am using Thunderbird here... also from Mozilla. It is a newer version >> of Netscape mail, I quite like it because all my accounts including news

>> are in one window.
>>
>> David.
>>
>> Rod Lincoln wrote:
>>> I'm trying out Firefox here. What do you use for your email?
>>> Rod
>>> Jamie K <JamieN0-SPAM@JamieKruzN0-SPAM.com> wrote:
>>>> From: http://www.denverpost.com/nationworld/ci_11252148
>>>> "The "zero-day" vulnerability, which came to light last week, allows

>>>> criminals to take over victims' machines simply by steering them to

>>>> infected Web sites; users don't have to download anything for their

>>>> computers to get infected, which makes the flaw in Internet >>>> Explorer's programming code so dangerous."
>>>>
>>>> You can wait for the MS fix or make the jump and get Firefox:
>>>>
>>>> <http://www.mozilla.com/en-US/>
>>>>
>>>> Firefox is working well here. I run it on a Mac and currently prefer it
>>>
>>>> to IE and Safari.
>>>>
>>>> Cheers,
>>>> -Jamie
>>>> www.JamieKruz.com
>>>

Subject: Re: Still using IE? Read this Posted by [John \[1\]](#) on Thu, 18 Dec 2008 23:02:28 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Thunderbird rocks !

John
