Rick - are you referring to this thread about a development rig?

That was about "sounding folks out" about the concept so I knew what resources we could offer a developer; I never took it to the next step (organizing a volunteer to receive the components) because what we were seeking was ASIO drivers and Mike is now covering that internally. No gear should have changed hands - are you sure Paul Braun doesn't still have it?

Not yet (or at least nothing connected to that thread, or that I know of). But thanks for reminding me to explain the back story on that - I'll start a separate thread.
