These belong to a friend. I purchased two of the systems off the old user group from some of you guys. These were put together for my friends son who was hoping to produce his own work and tour. The kid got hired into an established group and these three systems have essentially been sitting in a music room for 3 or 4 years and have been powered up less than 20 times for less than 100 hours on time since the day I built and tested the whole rig.

The extras are some 8in cards. ALL of this stuff is Blackie and in damned fine shape. This posting is not an inference that one buyer must take all. However, if one buyer does take all, I'm sure the one-transaction and ship to will incentivize a lower total cost to said buyer.

I am real tempted to take one of the sys' myself but I am moving within a couple weeks and can't push the cash at the moment and not super busy tracking anyway.... also haven't needed backupware for a while... great luck with the four systems I've been using for years and years.

I don't think any reasonable offers will be refused... but this seller will define reasonable. He doesn't need the money... but he didn't get to that condition by being stupid or cheap.

I'm rep'ing him so talk to me here or at mark@hotguitartracks.com And no the systems are not mine... I'm keeping them.... love'm to pieces.... always have.

If any of you are on Facebook and wanna connect, I'll be happy to send a friend request to you as I'm unsearchable. Just drop your FB addie in your response and I'll hit you up.
