again, i know the story is about language, confusion and other bright ideas men come up with.

sorry, but i have a problem with "men" had one language thing. just as i have a problem with god being suprised that adam and eve would partake of the forbidden fruit when told no no no you don't. he's god...for his sakes... guess he also didn't think of incest when populating the earth from just one pair of peeps. i mean cain went to the land of nod and eventually married...who...i don't know...mom...sis...cousin rita???

i believe god was smart enough to create the laws of physics that allow certain things to happen under certain conditions and lets the chips fall where they may. to me god doesn't kill 250 people on a plane and spare one as a lesson of his devine intervention capabilities. he doesn't kill half a town yet spares a church so they have somewhere to mourn the dead.

the truely (again to me) sad thing about the differing concepts of god is how their used to validate the harm we do each other.

i believe in do unto others as you would have them do unto you. what else can be said for human behavior. of course not everyone has that capability due to thier genetic wiring. just as some people can kill without remorse others cannot accept certain "truths"; it is that equal deserving of eternal hell according to some religious sects i find problematic. after all the vengeful god of the old testament become the god of love in the new and i'm not really feelin' the love here according to the words of some. (not spoken here but lets be honest out in the real world you can't swing a dead cat and not hit someone who is willing to tell you that hell, hades, sheol is your final destination.

see, now that's where i think the problem lies. god should know that we're not going to get the message as he wants us to because we're human and will translate anything to our own advantage. of all the things to deserve eternal damnation for (if you believe in it) one would think that the inability to "get it" would not be one of them.

would you as a parent condemn your child to a never ending life of torment simply because he or she couldn't understand the totality of you being "the creator (parent)" of them. you know, it can take only one gene to make someone either a murderer, saint and everything in between. so to me a loving, just and forgiving god would have a better plan then eternal suffering. we on the other hand are more than willing to threaten and enact all levels of retribution on others because we think that's what god would do.

and whose to say where the "making up" began. it is in my nature to question what i see and hear and if i go to hell for it...then oh well it's who i am, the way i was made.

Rick, there's some good insights here. How God works is not always transparent to us.

What concerns me is the reality of Jesus. From that issue flow all others, and whether there is an objective truth here or we are free to make it up as we go along.

Steve, I don't think Rick gives a hoot about the story. He is talking about his ideas on god man, trees and swingin' cats. You're prolly not going to get any traction on that Babylonian story.

Rick, I HIGHLY reccomend you crack the book open and read the text for yourself.

You keep coming up with all these goofy things about a tree being a tree and swinging a cat around... Man... that's all just foolishness. Please, read it first-THEN bring on the comments. Right now all you are doing is "babelling" about something you don't know anything about. Read the text.... It WAS all about all the Babylonians speaking Babalonian. Not a hard concept to understand. God wanted to break their power of agreement so he confused the language and no-one understood each other and the progress of the tower seeced. Why are you fighting such a simple, well known, taught to millions, established story? You are fortunate that there are (just assuming guys)a handful of Believers on this Forum who (you may as well face it) won't back down from the Truth?

thanks bill. people will believe what they CAN believe more than what they're told to believe.. hell, i was raised catholic...school...the hole shot and if that didn't work i guess nothing will. according to all religious soothsayers "if you don't believe the way we/i do you are going to hell" so i guess everyone is.

Oh, forgot one important thing.... It wasn't men who came up with the "bright idea" to confuse the language, it was Gods.
BUT it was mans idea to attempt to build the tower and according to what the Word is all about, they would have succeeded if God hadn't interviened with the language confusion.

Hell, I wouldn't even send Thad to hell!

No one has any right to say any of those things. Personally, I believe I am in more danger of hell than someone who lives as an honest atheist all their lives and give Jesus a chance on their deathbed.

I cannot pass judgment on anyone's eternal destiny.

The question that concerns me this Easter is answering the question of what we would see if we could take a time machine back to Jesus tomb on early Sunday morning after his death.

Would we see a bunch of guys stealing a body, or would we see a resurrected Lord and Saviour?

None of us is wired so as to not understand the ramifications of either possibility.

that's just it. you are for you absolutely right in your beliefs for you and i'm glad for it. do you for a moment think you are the first or the 151st to tell me i'm wrong. i applaud you in your conviction for your beliefs...they're just not mine. i meerly ask questions and am not saying you are wrong because i can do no different. it is who i am just as you as who you are and can be no other else. i don't question gods word. i just question who it is trying to tell me what gods word is...and yes my questions can be in error. but the final question is...can i discern the difference? and i have always said...i don't know. so my friend i will never tell you that you are wrong but i will always ask what if. cuz that is who...what i am. nothing more and certainly nothing less.

because i do not prescribe to any particular religious bent does not mean i am an athirst. i just choose not to follow organizations that demand my money to be considered a faithful follower.

question 2...it truely (to me) depends on what you're (not you) trying to sell. again, it's the way i was built. if something is thats good as do unto others as... the no other explanation is necessary as that is good enough for me. i don't need daily "miracles" to convince me. what i do (as me) require is...here's life...you be the judge. the virgin mary on a piece of toast ain't gonna so it. jesus on the side of a building, ain't gonna do it. somebody selling me salvation for a buck ain't gonna do it.

ya know jesus got really pissed at the money changers; if it were today i'm sure all the tv geeks would have been included in that tally. ad far back as i can remember the main point of the message has always been money and it's no different today. salvation for a buck...or whatever you can mortgage your house for. when jesus told peter to build the church upon this rock he wasn't speaking of some edifice that would take 100 years to build. he was talking about faith and all that it entails both the good and the less than good.

all inclusive, not some exclusive club where only the self proclaimed saved were welcomed.

but, being humans we feel compelled to make it after our own design. something we can understand when truly we can't. we can site phrases like "only god know" or "he works in mysterious way" or don't question the ways of the lord' because we then don't have to (as god in his devine wisdom) endowed us to...is to ask why.

what kind of parent wants his or her child never to ask a question. to me, asking doesn't imply disrespect of what is. it says i've got the brain you gave me so make me understand; i do. do unto others...plain and simple. you do that and there is no need for anything else.

bottom line...believe what you want and let me believe what i want as neither is going to convince the other of thier righteousness and quite frankly i'm very happy that you don't follow my beliefs.

peace and happy easter

no, what i said was that instead of assigning the parable to language that the metaphor was relating to how we deal with different concepts or constructs of god. bill got it right...and he wasn't attacking you, he was i believe restating what i had said...and i wasn't attacking you either...nearly making a questioning statement. like myself, i'm sure bill is comfortable with what you believe.

steve, enjoy and take comfort in your beliefs for you have the answers you want. i on the other hand will most likely never experience that as i'm not you...and will never be you...cuz that's the way god designed me through billions of years of...next...

Bill,
Traction? Don't have a clue what you are talking about and don't think you do either. It looks like you jumped in about half way through the topic and are responding to something you know nothing about. But that's ok. I wasn't responding to you anyhow. I was responding to Rick's statement. ORIGINALLY he clearly said the tower of babel was not about languages it was about gods. As soon as you quit attacking me, I will drop the subject.

i guess the other question is what religion declares a preteen girl who gets impregnated by an infinitely old god by a surrogate angel and pins the deed on a 30 something old carpenter as okey dokey and savior of us all??? not wanting to be critical but...if it were today people would be calling for the old eye for an eye thing and ignoring the vengeance is mine sayeth the lord...finishing of the phrase thing.

What way would you suggest that the savior of humanity come to earth, but as one of us? Maybe even a bit lower and more disreputable than most, (after all, what a story huh?) Someone who lived a real life, not a cartoon one, and died a real death for the highest cause of all.

And that is the question. What really happened? Answer that and you may pop right out of the matrix...

DC

ps I hear his next visit is going to be much, much more impressive....

That is one of the signs of a good church and you are wise to believe it. There should be no connection made between your salvation and giving to support the org. If anyone makes that connection, walk out the door. I would.

How about this one:

I'm 17 or so, and we are driving to NYC from CA to see relatives. I drive because Dad is a terrible driver, and I can drive all night at that age. We are in the midwest tooling along in the left lane of a divided freeway doing about my usual 75 (everyone is asleep, right?) when a voice, as clear and loud as can be goes CHANGE LANES NOW.

It didn't seem like a voice you questioned, so into the middle lane I went and immediately some LUNATIC comes screaming around the bend (the road curves left there) going *the wrong way* in the lane I had just vacated, doing at least 90+ with no lights on! At that speed, headon, there would have been nothing left but purple mush. I think I aged 5 years in 30 seconds right there...

Where'd the voice come from?

Here's a quickie: Know how many people beat hepatitis C?

No one. Except me.

I have the antibodies and none of the virus. Many tests. No one can explain it. Guess there was something I was supposed to do.

Me talking to you is the result of miracles. No toast involved.

If one disallows all miracles, then they can make Jesus into another teacher and go follow anything they want. If he raised dead guys, it is a different situation.

>ya know jesus got really pissed at the money changers; if it were >today i'm sure all the tv geeks would have been included in that

I used to work for a teevee "ministry" and I can tell you it was worse than you think. He'd kick their butts.

I think ole Billy Graham would pass muster though.

Yes! The true church is invisible and does not have a headquarters!
you are so right.

>devine wisdom) endowed us to...is to ask why.

Well we should ask why, and we should challenge God at times, and I have been very angry with God on occasion. It's OK, he can take it. Still at the end of the day, we either trust or we do not. I can tell you that trusting is better. Without a doubt.

>what kind of parent wants his or her child never to ask a question.

>the brain you gave me so make me understand; i do. do unto >others...plain and simple. you do that and there is no need for >anything else.

But we can't. We are all fallen and lost, and we need a savior. Which explains why Jesus did what he did. Yes, sometimes atheists live more moral lives than some Christians, but real Christians are still living better lives than they would have without him. Going to heaven is not a work/merit system, which is why my atheist uncle, friend to Madalyn Murray O'Hare and hater of Christianity, could pray on his deathbed and go to heaven, and I may not, having been a life-long Christian, if I deny my Lord. It's not that I doubt my salvation, but I can be total crap as a Christian sometimes and I have failed to stand up for him out of fear of hostility and ridicule.

>bottom line...believe what you want and let me believe what i want as >neither is going to convince the other of thier righteousness and >quite frankly i'm very happy that you don't follow my beliefs.

I have no righteousness at all. Take care.

You guys.... You have really good questions and concerns. They deserve accurate and honest answers, but your not going to find them on the Paris Forum. Nothing here but man's opinion. You need to read the answers for yourself from the Word. Your life will only get better.
Dedric my friend I commend you for your courage man. NEVER back down.

Answers to all this are very available. If you would like to continue, let me know and we can go to general.
