So far so good on putting my new Paris PC together. I bought the multi-core drivers today and got them installed. But I've gotten to a point in Mike's instructions where they refer me to : www.parisfaqs.com/parisonxp.html to continue with the installation of the FX subsystem. Unfortunately the URL leads me to a 404...and it's been about 5 or 6 years since the last time I've actually done this install, and I forget.

Can anyone help me out here....

Cheers

Kris

Thanks Kerry...but what I was missing was the effects sub-system installer, and I found it here (you kindly had linked the original page, which is fortunately not 404):

<http://homepage.mac.com/osxlover/ParisFAQs/parisonxp.html>

I put 1 EDS card in my system (not even in a case yet), fired up Paris, and verified that I have FX. I haven't listened to it as I have no interface hooked up, but it's looking pretty nice right now.

Anyone have any tips for transferring project files over from another computer. Should I be using analog-X interleave or something like that?

Cheers

Kris

How old's your PC and how big are your projects? I'd wonder if any fairly modern computer would need interleaving for any reasonably sized project.
