Good morning.

I took some time off from trying to crunch HTML code (not my strongest suit) and instead worked on writing some of the tutors I am working on for another project.

One of those is making Favicons, and I picked on you as an example because my browser bar still displays the host monster favicon for your site (hope you don't mind).

At any rate I cut a portion of the image from your header and created this favicon from it as an example. You can use it if you want or make your own, I used <http://www.html-kit.com/favicon/> online favicon generator to make it.

The whole file is attached below

Woohoo, got it installed, check at the top - should be there now. Beautiful - thank you! Are you actually a PARIS user yourself? If not, doubly thanks for going out of your way for us!

Nope! I have only the vaguest idea what it is other than it has something to do with music and mixing or something like that.

Like I said I was writing a tutor and needed a subject, you were a likely candidate, glad you appreciate it.

That should show up in everyone's bookmarks when they bookmark your site, better than that host monster favicon you were using.
