Just heard a jazz version of...

Ready?

The Windmills of Your Mind

aarrggGGHHHHHHHHH!

the circles that you find in the windmills of your mind....

damn... them's some RIPE lyrics!

You kids today can't write like THAT! heh heh heh

That was MUSIC!

oooffff....

I used to work in the repair shop of our local music store (Washington Music Center) with a bunch of 20-something guys, one of whom was into bands like Slayer.

He gave me no end of grief when he found out that I had once been in a band that played "We Had Joy, We Had Fun, We Had Seasons in the Sun..." 2 or 3 times a night. The things I used to have to do to make a living.

Maybe I should do a "jazz" version of that.

Or maybe a reggae version! ;-) Irie!

David.

Let's see... The therapy that my son needs for his assorted LD issues (that our insurance does NOT pay for, of course... but that's a whole 'nother topic.) comes to about $10,000. I'd be willing to forgo the Smooth Jazz version of "Seasons in the Sun" for that! Of course, this is just the beginning. Maybe I should hold out for more!

A long time I was playing a Christmas party with my friend Wade Matthews on bass. The leader was fishing around for a tune to play. Suddenly Wade shouted "White Christmas!!! Reggae style! It'll work! Trust me!".

And it did.

<soapbox>
With skill and imagination, any tune can be done in any style. With sufficient skill and imagination, it can even be pleasant.
</soapbox>

But for some styles, sufficient skill and imagination might not exist in this universe.
