e, you can have over 200 partitions with Bootit Next Generation's own system, but to be compatible with the Fdisk-standard, you can only have 4 partitions on a harddisk. So, if you want to have more than 4 partitions, you must use Bootit's own system as far as I can understand, but with 4 you will be compatible with the normal Fdisk standard. I have it but havn't tested it, so I can't say how it workes at all.
But it's easy to make a setup disk when following the PDF-file when unzipping the download file.

Cheers
