iver for electric instruments especially bass and el guitars.

I never use it for vocals, doesn't compliment vocals , thats my oppinion of course.

The best allaround preamp is the Amek 9098 with newer (lower distortion) opa's, really really fanatstic.

But if you are looking for that "special" right in your face sound" with great bottom and not extra harmonics (like 9098) but with great bottom then Avalon is what I would go for.

Anyway , rent one and try before you buy.

Don't buy before trying anything based on what we say.

Dimitrios

If this doesn't work, reseal the video card. Double check the VGA cable connection between the card and the monitor (both ends). Reboot.

It doesn't seem to be going through its boot cycle at all.I don't hear the hard drive start up or the beeps I usually hear.The lights and fans all come on,but thats all.SOUND like power supply

Rudy Bear? Wasn't he a character in an A.A. Milne book?

:)What sounds does your computer make when it boots up.....beeps etc.?
It maybe the video card need reseating.

m on your credit card. I plan on doing just that very soon, with a couple mics.

I am not an expert on anything, hence my general lack of tech input on this board. But I have experience with Avalon, Great River, Crane Song, and a few other pres.

I would gladly add a Crane Song unit to my rack. Avalon? Ehh...not so much...and that is an opinion I have heard echoed generally by many people on the web. Avalon has long enjoyed widespread use in the hip-hop industry, though...
