lol - that one was good as well. Definitely true about the retreat to XP.
Not sure Leopard is quite meeting expectations in reality though. How is it running there?

I talked to a film director last night that was having compatibilitiy problems with his new install of Leopard - he was rather disappointed, but I'm not sure his problems were more than a single PCI card not being completely compatible - easy enough fix imho (replace it). However, that will probably get sorted out way before Vista improves. We'll be on XP SP3 before Vista improves. At least Leopard doesn't have the security cobwebs Vista does, or at least it's better hidden.

Regards,
Dedric

not starting a word war but many in the "pro" field have gone back to tiger for now. many buying new macs are picking up versions of tiger that will run on the newer intel macs till leopard gets sorted out.

please no name calling...tis the season and all...
