Seems we're all on vacation and have some extra time to waste on this here
ng. Cool enough. Here's a story I found through one of the security rags
I read.

The info comes from a generally lefty web site, but it's pretty apolitical.
It's from an experience mega-marathoner and diver (and obvious weirdo) who waterboarded himself.

One of the spook types who posts on the security blog echoed what one of the people on the straightdope forum said--the saran wrap technique gets everyone talking. IMHO according to what I read they might not give out info that is reliable, but they'll start talking.

Kind of spooky stuff.
