

---

Subject: Hey Neil.....

Posted by DJ on Thu, 25 Oct 2007 07:50:42 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

How are you doing man?

---

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....

Posted by Bill L on Thu, 25 Oct 2007 12:43:13 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Yeah. What up?

DJ wrote:

> How are you doing man?

>

>

---

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....

Posted by rick on Thu, 25 Oct 2007 13:41:37 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

yeah, inside edition ain't talking.

On Thu, 25 Oct 2007 08:43:13 -0400, Bill L <bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:

>Yeah. What up?

>

>DJ wrote:

>> How are you doing man?

>>

>>

---

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....

Posted by Neil on Thu, 25 Oct 2007 13:58:10 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Well, the surgery went well... the good news is that it didn't go as deep down the side (the inside part nearest the thumb) as they thought, so once this heals up, I should be able to grip a guitar pick just fine, as far as I can tell from seeing it right before they bandaged it up for the last time & sent me on my way (damn, it's really hideous-looking, though - YEESH!). However, it went further back past the base of the nail than they thought, so that took several steps of the procedure to get all of the cancer cell-infested tissue out in that direction... it did take a long time, I went in there at 830am & got out at about 3:00. So, anyway, because of that, the nail (which they had to yank out completely, of course) may or may not grow back either at all or properly/normally, which is not a big deal at all, of course, it's just a lot more tissue gone than they thought they'd have to take, but it's more on the upper area of the finger, which doesn't have anything to do with playing anything. The great news is the side of the finger... the fact that they only had to go down about halfway there, all the way across; and didn't even have to touch the pad/underside at all (which it looked at first like they'd have to do)!

So all-in-all, I think I lucked-out! :)

Right now it's hurting like a son of a bitch, and no, they didn't give me any pain meds - which is probably fine because I need to be able to go into work, anyway.

It'll be all wrapped-up in this big ol' bandage until the end of the day today when i'm supposed to take it off, clean the area, and put a smaller one on... a process which i'm not looking forward to! lol

So, bottom line: better outcome than we originally thought, it'll be useless & just in the way for about two months for all practical purposes (it took me about a half an hour to type this reply, for example LOL!), until the healing is at a more advanced stage, but after that it should be fine the doc says.

Thanks for checking!

Neil

>bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:

>Yeah. What up?

>

>DJ wrote:

>> How are you doing man?

>>

>>

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....

Posted by DC on Thu, 25 Oct 2007 14:34:05 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Good news Neil! Glad you are on the mend.

DC

"Neil" <OIU@OIU.com> wrote:

>

>Well, the surgery went well... the good news is that it didn't
>go as deep down the side (the inside part nearest the thumb) as
>they thought, so once this heals up, I should be able to grip a >guitar pick just fine, as far as I can tell from seeing it
>right before they bandaged it up for the last time & sent me on
>my way (damn, it's really hideous-looking, though - YEESH!).
>However, it went further back past the base of the nail
>than they thought, so that took several steps of the procedure
>to get all of the cancer cell-infested tissue out in that >direction... it did take a long time, I went in there at 830am &
>got out at about 3:00. So, anyway, because of that, the nail
>(which they had to yank out completely, of course) may or may
>not grow back either at all or properly/normally, which is not
>a big deal at all, of course, it's just a lot more tissue gone
>than they thought they'd have to take, but it's more on the >upper area of the finger, which doesn't have anything to do
>with playing anything. The great news is the side of the >finger... the fact that they only had to go down about halfway
>there, all the way across; and didn't even have to touch the >pad/underside at all (which it looked at first like they'd have
>to do)!

>

>So all-in-all, I think I lucked-out! :) )

>

>Right now it's hurting like a son of a bitch, and no, they >didn't give me any pain meds - which is probably fine because
>I need to be able to go into work, anyway.

>

>It'll be all wrapped-up in this big ol' bandage until the end
>of the day today when i'm supposed to take it off, clean the
>area, and put a smaller one on... a process which i'm not
>looking forward to! lol

>

>So, bottom line: better outcome than we originally thought,
>it'll be useless & just in the way for about two months for all
>practical purposes (it took me about a half an hour to type
>this reply, for example LOL!), until the healing is at a more >advanced stage, but after that it should be fine the doc says.

>
>Thanks for checking!
>
>Neil
>
>>bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:
>>Yeah. What up?
>>
>>DJ wrote:
>>> How are you doing man?
>>>
>>>
>>>
>

---

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....
Posted by DJ on Thu, 25 Oct 2007 14:51:25 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I'm glad this didn't affect the "playing surface" amigo. That's great news. You should be back up o speed relatively quick compared to your initial estimates....and if you need painkillers, you can probaly buy herion on the internet.....oh wait!!!.....you live in El Paso. Nevermind.

;o)

"Neil" <OIU@OIU.com> wrote in message news:4720a0f2$1@linux...

>
> Well, the surgery went well... the good news is that it didn't
> go as deep down the side (the inside part nearest the thumb) as
> they thought, so once this heals up, I should be able to grip a
> guitar pick just fine, as far as I can tell from seeing it
> right before they bandaged it up for the last time & sent me on
> my way (damn, it's really hideous-looking, though - YEESH!).
> However, it went further back past the base of the nail
> than they thought, so that took several steps of the procedure
> to get all of the cancer cell-infested tissue out in that > direction... it did take a long time, I went in there at 830am &
> got out at about 3:00. So, anyway, because of that, the nail
> (which they had to yank out completely, of course) may or may
> not grow back either at all or properly/normally, which is not
> a big deal at all, of course, it's just a lot more tissue gone
> than they thought they'd have to take, but it's more on the
> upper area of the finger, which doesn't have anything to do
> with playing anything. The great news is the side of the
> finger... the fact that they only had to go down about halfway
> there, all the way across; and didn't even have to touch the

> pad/underside at all (which it looked at first like they'd have
> to do)!
>
> So all-in-all, I think I lucked-out! :)
>
> Right now it's hurting like a son of a bitch, and no, they
> didn't give me any pain meds - which is probably fine because
> I need to be able to go into work, anyway.
>
> It'll be all wrapped-up in this big ol' bandage until the end
> of the day today when i'm supposed to take it off, clean the
> area, and put a smaller one on... a process which i'm not
> looking forward to! lol
>
> So, bottom line: better outcome than we originally thought,
> it'll be useless & just in the way for about two months for all
> practical purposes (it took me about a half an hour to type
> this reply, for example LOL!), until the healing is at a more > advanced stage, but after that it should be fine the doc says.
>
> Thanks for checking!
>
> Neil
>
>>bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:
>>Yeah. What up?
>>
>>DJ wrote:
>>> How are you doing man?
>>>
>>>
>

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....
Posted by D-unit on Thu, 25 Oct 2007 14:58:38 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Good to have it taken care of.

I was reading about Bob Marley yesterday.. It seems he had a similar situation on his foot a couple years before the cancer killed him. He wouldn't allow them to take any tissue because he believed he should be kept "whole". (religion) What a shame.

db

"Neil" <OIU@OIU.com> wrote in message news:4720a0f2$1@linux...

>
> Well, the surgery went well... the good news is that it didn't
> go as deep down the side (the inside part nearest the thumb) as
> they thought, so once this heals up, I should be able to grip a
> guitar pick just fine, as far as I can tell from seeing it
> right before they bandaged it up for the last time & sent me on
> my way (damn, it's really hideous-looking, though - YEESH!).
> However, it went further back past the base of the nail
> than they thought, so that took several steps of the procedure
> to get all of the cancer cell-infested tissue out in that > direction... it did take a long time, I went in there at 830am &
> got out at about 3:00. So, anyway, because of that, the nail
> (which they had to yank out completely, of course) may or may
> not grow back either at all or properly/normally, which is not
> a big deal at all, of course, it's just a lot more tissue gone
> than they thought they'd have to take, but it's more on the
> upper area of the finger, which doesn't have anything to do
> with playing anything. The great news is the side of the
> finger... the fact that they only had to go down about halfway
> there, all the way across; and didn't even have to touch the
> pad/underside at all (which it looked at first like they'd have
> to do)!

>
> So all-in-all, I think I lucked-out! :)

>
> Right now it's hurting like a son of a bitch, and no, they
> didn't give me any pain meds - which is probably fine because
> I need to be able to go into work, anyway.

>
> It'll be all wrapped-up in this big ol' bandage until the end
> of the day today when i'm supposed to take it off, clean the
> area, and put a smaller one on... a process which i'm not
> looking forward to! lol

>
> So, bottom line: better outcome than we originally thought,
> it'll be useless & just in the way for about two months for all
> practical purposes (it took me about a half an hour to type
> this reply, for example LOL!), until the healing is at a more > advanced stage, but after that it should be fine the doc says.

>
> Thanks for checking!

>
> Neil

>
> >bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:
> >Yeah. What up?

> >
> >DJ wrote:
> >> How are you doing man?
> >>
> >>
>

---

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....
Posted by Tom Bruhl on Thu, 25 Oct 2007 15:20:47 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

This is a multi-part message in MIME format.

-----=_NextPart_000_005C_01C816F9.17255710
Content-Type: text/plain;
charset="iso-8859-1"
Content-Transfer-Encoding: quoted-printable

Great to hear Neil! =20

Good luck with the pain.
I guess it could have been much worse. =20

Back to work!
T.

"D-unit" <cof42_AT_embarqmail.com> wrote in message =
news:4720b050$1@linux...
Good to have it taken care of.

I was reading about Bob Marley yesterday.. It seems he had a similar situation on his foot a couple years before the cancer killed him. He wouldn't allow them to take any tissue because he believed he should be kept "whole". (religion) What a shame.

db

"Neil" <OIU@OIU.com> wrote in message news:4720a0f2$1@linux...
>
> Well, the surgery went well... the good news is that it didn't
> go as deep down the side (the inside part nearest the thumb) as
> they thought, so once this heals up, I should be able to grip a
> guitar pick just fine, as far as I can tell from seeing it
> right before they bandaged it up for the last time & sent me on
> my way (damn, it's really hideous-looking, though - YEESH!).

> However, it went further back past the base of the nail
> than they thought, so that took several steps of the procedure
> to get all of the cancer cell-infested tissue out in that > direction... it did take a long time, I went in there at 830am &
> got out at about 3:00. So, anyway, because of that, the nail
> (which they had to yank out completely, of course) may or may
> not grow back either at all or properly/normally, which is not
> a big deal at all, of course, it's just a lot more tissue gone
> than they thought they'd have to take, but it's more on the
> upper area of the finger, which doesn't have anything to do
> with playing anything. The great news is the side of the
> finger... the fact that they only had to go down about halfway
> there, all the way across; and didn't even have to touch the
> pad/underside at all (which it looked at first like they'd have
> to do)!

>
> So all-in-all, I think I lucked-out! :)

>
> Right now it's hurting like a son of a bitch, and no, they
> didn't give me any pain meds - which is probably fine because
> I need to be able to go into work, anyway.

>
> It'll be all wrapped-up in this big ol' bandage until the end
> of the day today when i'm supposed to take it off, clean the
> area, and put a smaller one on... a process which i'm not
> looking forward to! lol

>
> So, bottom line: better outcome than we originally thought,
> it'll be useless & just in the way for about two months for all
> practical purposes (it took me about a half an hour to type
> this reply, for example LOL!), until the healing is at a more > advanced stage, but after that it should be fine the doc says.

>
> Thanks for checking!

>
> Neil

>
> >bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:
> >Yeah. What up?

> >
> >DJ wrote:
> >> How are you doing man?

> >>
> >>
>

I choose Polesoft Lockspam to fight spam, and you?

<http://www.polesoft.com/refer.html>

-----=_NextPart_000_005C_01C816F9.17255710

Content-Type: text/html;

charset="iso-8859-1"

Content-Transfer-Encoding: quoted-printable

<!DOCTYPE HTML PUBLIC "-//W3C//DTD HTML 4.0 Transitional//EN">

<HTML><HEAD>

<META http-equiv=3DContent-Type content=3D"text/html; =

charset=3Diso-8859-1">

<META content=3D"MSHTML 6.00.2800.1400" name=3DGENERATOR>

<STYLE></STYLE>

</HEAD>

<BODY bgColor=3D#ffffff>

<DIV><FONT face=3DArial size=3D2>Great to hear Neil!&nbsp;</FONT></DIV>

<DIV><FONT face=3DArial size=3D2></FONT>&nbsp;</DIV>

<DIV><FONT face=3DArial size=3D2>Good luck with the pain.</FONT></DIV>

<DIV><FONT face=3DArial size=3D2>I guess it&nbsp;</FONT>could have been much = worse.&nbsp;=20

</FONT></DIV>

<DIV><FONT face=3DArial size=3D2></FONT>&nbsp;</DIV>

<DIV><FONT face=3DArial size=3D2>Back to work!</FONT></DIV>

<DIV><FONT face=3DArial size=3D2>T.</FONT></DIV>

<DIV><FONT face=3DArial size=3D2></FONT>&nbsp;</DIV>

<BLOCKQUOTE=20

style=3D"PADDING-RIGHT: 0px; PADDING-LEFT: 5px; MARGIN-LEFT: 5px; =

BORDER-LEFT: #000000 2px solid; MARGIN-RIGHT: 0px">

<DIV>"D-unit" &lt;cof42_AT_embarqmail.com&gt; wrote in message <A=20 href=3D"news:4720b050$1 @linux">news:4720b050$1 @linux</A>...</DIV>Good = to have it=20

taken care of.<BR><BR>I was reading about Bob Marley yesterday..&nbsp; =

lt=20

seems he had a similar<BR>situation on his foot a couple years before = the=20

cancer killed him. He<BR>wouldn't allow them to take any tissue = because he=20

believed he should<BR>be kept "whole".&nbsp; (religion)&nbsp; What a=20

shame.<BR><BR><BR>db<BR><BR><BR>"Neil" &lt;<A=20

href=3D"mailto:OIU@OIU.com">OIU@OIU.com</A>&gt; wrote in message <A=20

=

href=3D"news:4720a0f2$1 @linux">news:4720a0f2$1 @linux</A>...<BR>&gt;<BR>&g=

t;=20

Well, the surgery went well... the good news is that it didn't<BR>&gt; = go as=20

deep down the side (the inside part nearest the thumb) as<BR>&gt; they = thought, so once this heals up, I should be able to grip a guitar pick just fine, as far as I can tell from seeing it; right before they bandaged it up for the last time & sent me on; my way (damn, it's really hideous-looking, though - YEESH!). However, it went further back past the base of the nail; than they thought, so that took several steps of the procedure; to get all of the cancer cell-infested tissue out in that; direction... it did take a long time, I went in there at 830am &; got out at about 3:00. So, anyway, because of that, the nail; (which they had to yank out completely, of course) may or may not; a big deal at all, of course, it's just a lot more tissue gone; than they thought they'd have to take, but it's more on the; upper area of the finger, which doesn't have anything to do; with playing anything. The great news is the side of the; finger... the fact that they only had to go down about halfway; = there,=

all the way across; and didn't even have to touch the; = pad/underside at= all (which it looked at first like they'd have; to = do)!; ;=
So all-in-all, I think I lucked-out!&nbsp;&nbsp;  :); ; = Right now=
it's hurting like a son of a bitch, and no, they; didn't give = me any= pain meds - which is probably fine because; I need to be able = to go= into work, anyway.; ; It'll be all wrapped-up in this big = ol'= bandage until the end; of the day today when i'm supposed to = take it= off, clean the; area, and put a smaller one on... a process = which i'm= not; looking forward to!&nbsp;   lol; ; So, bottom = line:=
better outcome than we originally thought,; it'll be useless = &; just= in the way for about two months for all; practical purposes (it =

"Neil" <OIU@OIU.com> wrote in message news:4720a0f2$1@linux...

>
> Well, the surgery went well... the good news is that it didn't
> go as deep down the side (the inside part nearest the thumb) as
> they thought, so once this heals up, I should be able to grip a
> guitar pick just fine, as far as I can tell from seeing it
> right before they bandaged it up for the last time & sent me on
> my way (damn, it's really hideous-looking, though - YEESH!).
> However, it went further back past the base of the nail
> than they thought, so that took several steps of the procedure
> to get all of the cancer cell-infested tissue out in that > direction... it did take a long time, I went in there at 830am &
> got out at about 3:00. So, anyway, because of that, the nail
> (which they had to yank out completely, of course) may or may
> not grow back either at all or properly/normally, which is not
> a big deal at all, of course, it's just a lot more tissue gone
> than they thought they'd have to take, but it's more on the
> upper area of the finger, which doesn't have anything to do
> with playing anything. The great news is the side of the
> finger... the fact that they only had to go down about halfway
> there, all the way across; and didn't even have to touch the
> pad/underside at all (which it looked at first like they'd have
> to do)!

>
> So all-in-all, I think I lucked-out! :)

>
> Right now it's hurting like a son of a bitch, and no, they
> didn't give me any pain meds - which is probably fine because
> I need to be able to go into work, anyway.

>
> It'll be all wrapped-up in this big ol' bandage until the end
> of the day today when i'm supposed to take it off, clean the
> area, and put a smaller one on... a process which i'm not
> looking forward to! lol

>
> So, bottom line: better outcome than we originally thought,
> it'll be useless & just in the way for about two months for all
> practical purposes (it took me about a half an hour to type
> this reply, for example LOL!), until the healing is at a more > advanced stage, but after that it should be fine the doc says.

>
> Thanks for checking!

>
> Neil

>
>>bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:
>>Yeah. What up?

>>
>>DJ wrote:
>>> How are you doing man?
>>>
>>>
>

---

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....
Posted by Bill L on Thu, 25 Oct 2007 18:02:43 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Glad to hear it went well. No pain killer - tough guy!

BTW, did you get either of the emails I sent to you directly?

Neil wrote:

> Well, the surgery went well... the good news is that it didn't
> go as deep down the side (the inside part nearest the thumb) as
> they thought, so once this heals up, I should be able to grip a
> guitar pick just fine, as far as I can tell from seeing it
> right before they bandaged it up for the last time & sent me on
> my way (damn, it's really hideous-looking, though - YEESH!).
> However, it went further back past the base of the nail
> than they thought, so that took several steps of the procedure
> to get all of the cancer cell-infested tissue out in that > direction... it did take a long time, I went in there at 830am &
> got out at about 3:00. So, anyway, because of that, the nail
> (which they had to yank out completely, of course) may or may
> not grow back either at all or properly/normally, which is not
> a big deal at all, of course, it's just a lot more tissue gone
> than they thought they'd have to take, but it's more on the
> upper area of the finger, which doesn't have anything to do
> with playing anything. The great news is the side of the
> finger... the fact that they only had to go down about halfway
> there, all the way across; and didn't even have to touch the
> pad/underside at all (which it looked at first like they'd have
> to do)!

>

> So all-in-all, I think I lucked-out! :)

>

> Right now it's hurting like a son of a bitch, and no, they
> didn't give me any pain meds - which is probably fine because
> I need to be able to go into work, anyway.

>

> It'll be all wrapped-up in this big ol' bandage until the end
> of the day today when i'm supposed to take it off, clean the
> area, and put a smaller one on... a process which i'm not

> looking forward to! lol
>
> So, bottom line: better outcome than we originally thought,
> it'll be useless & just in the way for about two months for all
> practical purposes (it took me about a half an hour to type
> this reply, for example LOL!), until the healing is at a more > advanced stage, but after that it should be fine the doc says.
>
> Thanks for checking!
>
> Neil
>
>> bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:
>> Yeah. What up?
>>
>> DJ wrote:
>>> How are you doing man?
>>>
>>>
>>>
>

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....

Posted by Rod Lincoln on Thu, 25 Oct 2007 19:39:59 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

That's great. Glad to hear it went so well!

Rod

"Neil" <OIU@OIU.com> wrote:

>
>Well, the surgery went well... the good news is that it didn't
>go as deep down the side (the inside part nearest the thumb) as
>they thought, so once this heals up, I should be able to grip a
>guitar pick just fine, as far as I can tell from seeing it
>right before they bandaged it up for the last time & sent me on
>my way (damn, it's really hideous-looking, though - YEESH!).
>However, it went further back past the base of the nail
>than they thought, so that took several steps of the procedure
>to get all of the cancer cell-infested tissue out in that >direction... it did take a long time, I went in there at 830am &
>got out at about 3:00. So, anyway, because of that, the nail
>(which they had to yank out completely, of course) may or may
>not grow back either at all or properly/normally, which is not
>a big deal at all, of course, it's just a lot more tissue gone
>than they thought they'd have to take, but it's more on the
>upper area of the finger, which doesn't have anything to do
>with playing anything. The great news is the side of the
>finger... the fact that they only had to go down about halfway

>there, all the way across; and didn't even have to touch the
>pad/underside at all (which it looked at first like they'd have
>to do)!

>

>So all-in-all, I think I lucked-out! :)

>

>Right now it's hurting like a son of a bitch, and no, they
>didn't give me any pain meds - which is probably fine because
>I need to be able to go into work, anyway.

>

>It'll be all wrapped-up in this big ol' bandage until the end
>of the day today when i'm supposed to take it off, clean the
>area, and put a smaller one on... a process which i'm not
>looking forward to! lol

>

>So, bottom line: better outcome than we originally thought,
>it'll be useless & just in the way for about two months for all
>practical purposes (it took me about a half an hour to type
>this reply, for example LOL!), until the healing is at a more >advanced stage, but after that it should be fine the doc says.

>

>Thanks for checking!

>

>Neil

>

>>bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:

>>Yeah. What up?

>>

>>DJ wrote:

>>> How are you doing man?

>>>

>>>

>

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....
Posted by steve the artguy on Thu, 25 Oct 2007 21:10:58 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I expected you wouldn't be typing anything for a while -- Very pleasantly surprised to see your name back here so soon!

Take care of yourself.

-steve

"Neil" <OIU@OIU.com> wrote:

>
>Well, the surgery went well... the good news is that it didn't
>go as deep down the side (the inside part nearest the thumb) as
>they thought, so once this heals up, I should be able to grip a
>guitar pick just fine, as far as I can tell from seeing it
>right before they bandaged it up for the last time & sent me on
>my way (damn, it's really hideous-looking, though - YEESH!).
>However, it went further back past the base of the nail
>than they thought, so that took several steps of the procedure
>to get all of the cancer cell-infested tissue out in that >direction... it did take a long time, I went in there at 830am &
>got out at about 3:00. So, anyway, because of that, the nail
>(which they had to yank out completely, of course) may or may
>not grow back either at all or properly/normally, which is not
>a big deal at all, of course, it's just a lot more tissue gone
>than they thought they'd have to take, but it's more on the
>upper area of the finger, which doesn't have anything to do
>with playing anything. The great news is the side of the
>finger... the fact that they only had to go down about halfway
>there, all the way across; and didn't even have to touch the
>pad/underside at all (which it looked at first like they'd have
>to do)!

>
>So all-in-all, I think I lucked-out! :)

>
>Right now it's hurting like a son of a bitch, and no, they
>didn't give me any pain meds - which is probably fine because
>I need to be able to go into work, anyway.

>
>It'll be all wrapped-up in this big ol' bandage until the end
>of the day today when i'm supposed to take it off, clean the
>area, and put a smaller one on... a process which i'm not
>looking forward to! lol

>
>So, bottom line: better outcome than we originally thought,
>it'll be useless & just in the way for about two months for all
>practical purposes (it took me about a half an hour to type
>this reply, for example LOL!), until the healing is at a more >advanced stage, but after that it should be fine the doc says.

>
>Thanks for checking!

>
>Neil

>
>>bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:

>>Yeah. What up?

>>

>>DJ wrote:

>>> How are you doing man?

>>>

>>>

>

---

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....

Posted by Ted Gerber on Thu, 25 Oct 2007 21:15:01 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Good news!

Yecch. : )

"Neil" <OIU@OIU.com> wrote:

>

>Well, the surgery went well... the good news is that it didn't
>go as deep down the side (the inside part nearest the thumb) as
>they thought, so once this heals up, I should be able to grip a
>guitar pick just fine, as far as I can tell from seeing it
>right before they bandaged it up for the last time & sent me on
>my way (damn, it's really hideous-looking, though - YEESH!).
>However, it went further back past the base of the nail
>than they thought, so that took several steps of the procedure
>to get all of the cancer cell-infested tissue out in that >direction... it did take a long time, I went in there at 830am &
>got out at about 3:00. So, anyway, because of that, the nail
>(which they had to yank out completely, of course) may or may
>not grow back either at all or properly/normally, which is not
>a big deal at all, of course, it's just a lot more tissue gone
>than they thought they'd have to take, but it's more on the
>upper area of the finger, which doesn't have anything to do
>with playing anything. The great news is the side of the
>finger... the fact that they only had to go down about halfway
>there, all the way across; and didn't even have to touch the
>pad/underside at all (which it looked at first like they'd have
>to do)!

>

>So all-in-all, I think I lucked-out! :)

>

>Right now it's hurting like a son of a bitch, and no, they
>didn't give me any pain meds - which is probably fine because
>I need to be able to go into work, anyway.

>

>It'll be all wrapped-up in this big ol' bandage until the end
>of the day today when i'm supposed to take it off, clean the
>area, and put a smaller one on... a process which i'm not

>looking forward to! lol
>
>So, bottom line: better outcome than we originally thought,
>it'll be useless & just in the way for about two months for all
>practical purposes (it took me about a half an hour to type
>this reply, for example LOL!), until the healing is at a more >advanced stage, but after that it should be fine the doc says.
>
>Thanks for checking!
>
>Neil
>
>>bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:
>>Yeah. What up?
>>
>>DJ wrote:
>>> How are you doing man?
>>>
>>>
>>>
>

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....
Posted by Neil on Fri, 26 Oct 2007 00:07:21 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Bill L <bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:
>Glad to hear it went well. No pain killer - tough guy!
>
>BTW, did you get either of the emails I sent to you directly?

No, neither of them - did you send them to neil DOT henderson AT sbcglobal DOT net???

Neil

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....
Posted by Bill L on Fri, 26 Oct 2007 02:22:37 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Nope. Anywho, I was just making sure things were cool.

Neil wrote:
> Bill L <bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:
>> Glad to hear it went well. No pain killer - tough guy!
>>

>> BTW, did you get either of the emails I sent to you directly?
>
> No, neither of them - did you send them to neil DOT henderson AT > sbcglobal DOT net???
>
> Neil
>
>

---

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....
Posted by Jamie K on Fri, 26 Oct 2007 03:33:14 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Yeah Neil, be nice to your finger and get one of those voice recognition programs for email. :^)

Glad it went better than expected!

Cheers,
-Jamie
www.JamieKruz.com

steve the artguy wrote:

> I expected you wouldn't be typing anything for a while -- Very pleasantly > surprised to see your name back here so soon!
>
> Take care of yourself.
>
> -steve
>
>
> "Neil" <OIU@OIU.com> wrote:
>> Well, the surgery went well... the good news is that it didn't
>> go as deep down the side (the inside part nearest the thumb) as
>> they thought, so once this heals up, I should be able to grip a
>> guitar pick just fine, as far as I can tell from seeing it
>> right before they bandaged it up for the last time & sent me on
>> my way (damn, it's really hideous-looking, though - YEESH!).
>> However, it went further back past the base of the nail
>> than they thought, so that took several steps of the procedure
>> to get all of the cancer cell-infested tissue out in that >> direction... it did take a long time, I went in there at 830am &
>> got out at about 3:00. So, anyway, because of that, the nail
>> (which they had to yank out completely, of course) may or may
>> not grow back either at all or properly/normally, which is not
>> a big deal at all, of course, it's just a lot more tissue gone

>> than they thought they'd have to take, but it's more on the
>> upper area of the finger, which doesn't have anything to do
>> with playing anything. The great news is the side of the
>> finger... the fact that they only had to go down about halfway
>> there, all the way across; and didn't even have to touch the
>> pad/underside at all (which it looked at first like they'd have
>> to do)!

>>

>> So all-in-all, I think I lucked-out! :)

>>

>> Right now it's hurting like a son of a bitch, and no, they
>> didn't give me any pain meds - which is probably fine because
>> I need to be able to go into work, anyway.

>>

>> It'll be all wrapped-up in this big ol' bandage until the end
>> of the day today when i'm supposed to take it off, clean the
>> area, and put a smaller one on... a process which i'm not
>> looking forward to! lol

>>

>> So, bottom line: better outcome than we originally thought,
>> it'll be useless & just in the way for about two months for all
>> practical purposes (it took me about a half an hour to type
>> this reply, for example LOL!), until the healing is at a more >> advanced stage, but after that it should be fine the doc says.

>>

>> Thanks for checking!

>>

>> Neil

>>

>>> bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:

>>> Yeah. What up?

>>>

>>> DJ wrote:

>>>> How are you doing man?

>>>>

>>>>

>

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....
Posted by Neil on Fri, 26 Oct 2007 04:30:19 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Dude, trust me, I am NOT typing with this finger! lol...
I have to keep it up & out of the way, otherwise, the bandage is so big, I'd be hitting like five keys at once :D

Thanks to everyone for all your good wishes - I really appreciate it.

Neil

Jamie K <Meta@Dimensional.com> wrote:

>

>Yeah Neil, be nice to your finger and get one of those voice recognition

>programs for email. :^)

>

>Glad it went better than expected!

>

>Cheers,

> -Jamie

> www.JamieKruz.com

>

>

>steve the artguy wrote:

>> I expected you wouldn't be typing anything for a while -- Very pleasantly >> surprised to see your name back here so soon!

>>

>> Take care of yourself.

>>

>> -steve

>>

>>

>> "Neil" <OIU@OIU.com> wrote:

>>> Well, the surgery went well... the good news is that it didn't
>>> go as deep down the side (the inside part nearest the thumb) as
>>> they thought, so once this heals up, I should be able to grip a
>>> guitar pick just fine, as far as I can tell from seeing it
>>> right before they bandaged it up for the last time & sent me on
>>> my way (damn, it's really hideous-looking, though - YEESH!).
>>> However, it went further back past the base of the nail
>>> than they thought, so that took several steps of the procedure
>>> to get all of the cancer cell-infested tissue out in that >>> direction... it did take a long time, I went in there at 830am &
>>> got out at about 3:00. So, anyway, because of that, the nail
>>> (which they had to yank out completely, of course) may or may
>>> not grow back either at all or properly/normally, which is not
>>> a big deal at all, of course, it's just a lot more tissue gone
>>> than they thought they'd have to take, but it's more on the
>>> upper area of the finger, which doesn't have anything to do
>>> with playing anything. The great news is the side of the
>>> finger... the fact that they only had to go down about halfway
>>> there, all the way across; and didn't even have to touch the
>>> pad/underside at all (which it looked at first like they'd have

>>> to do)!

>>>

>>> So all-in-all, I think I lucked-out! :)

>>>

>>> Right now it's hurting like a son of a bitch, and no, they
>>> didn't give me any pain meds - which is probably fine because
>>> I need to be able to go into work, anyway.

>>>

>>> It'll be all wrapped-up in this big ol' bandage until the end
>>> of the day today when i'm supposed to take it off, clean the
>>> area, and put a smaller one on... a process which i'm not
>>> looking forward to! lol

>>>

>>> So, bottom line: better outcome than we originally thought,
>>> it'll be useless & just in the way for about two months for all
>>> practical purposes (it took me about a half an hour to type
>>> this reply, for example LOL!), until the healing is at a more >>> advanced stage, but after that it should be fine the doc says.

>>>

>>> Thanks for checking!

>>>

>>> Neil

>>>

>>>> bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:

>>>> Yeah. What up?

>>>>

>>>> DJ wrote:

>>>>> How are you doing man?

>>>>>

>>>>>

>>>>>

>>

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....
Posted by Kim on Fri, 26 Oct 2007 06:29:24 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Neil,

Good to here mate. The idea of losing playing ability gives me the willies, not to mention just the illness itself. Hoping hard you come back to full form.

Cheers,
Kim.

"Neil" <OIU@OIU.com> wrote:
>

>Well, the surgery went well... the good news is that it didn't
>go as deep down the side (the inside part nearest the thumb) as
>they thought, so once this heals up, I should be able to grip a
>guitar pick just fine, as far as I can tell from seeing it
>right before they bandaged it up for the last time & sent me on
>my way (damn, it's really hideous-looking, though - YEESH!).
>However, it went further back past the base of the nail
>than they thought, so that took several steps of the procedure
>to get all of the cancer cell-infested tissue out in that >direction... it did take a long time, I went in there at 830am &
>got out at about 3:00. So, anyway, because of that, the nail
>(which they had to yank out completely, of course) may or may
>not grow back either at all or properly/normally, which is not
>a big deal at all, of course, it's just a lot more tissue gone
>than they thought they'd have to take, but it's more on the
>upper area of the finger, which doesn't have anything to do
>with playing anything. The great news is the side of the
>finger... the fact that they only had to go down about halfway
>there, all the way across; and didn't even have to touch the
>pad/underside at all (which it looked at first like they'd have
>to do)!

>

>So all-in-all, I think I lucked-out! :)

>

>Right now it's hurting like a son of a bitch, and no, they
>didn't give me any pain meds - which is probably fine because
>I need to be able to go into work, anyway.

>

>It'll be all wrapped-up in this big ol' bandage until the end
>of the day today when i'm supposed to take it off, clean the
>area, and put a smaller one on... a process which i'm not
>looking forward to! lol

>

>So, bottom line: better outcome than we originally thought,
>it'll be useless & just in the way for about two months for all
>practical purposes (it took me about a half an hour to type
>this reply, for example LOL!), until the healing is at a more >advanced stage, but after that it should be fine the doc says.

>

>Thanks for checking!

>

>Neil

>

>>bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:

>>Yeah. What up?

>>

>>DJ wrote:

>>> How are you doing man?

>>>
>>>
>

---

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....
Posted by Neil on Fri, 26 Oct 2007 06:48:01 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Thanks, man! I'm feeling pretty good about it right now, based on the outcome - which was completely different than how I was feeling about it before, which was of course based on what the initial prognosis was & where they thought they'd have to "dig into", as it were.

Only weird thing so far has been when I took the bandage off tonite, the entire area of flesh around the "work" area was completely snow-white... like no blood-circulation kinda white. Appliance-white. No shit. So, I called the doc & he said he wants me to come in tomorrow morning so he can look at it, but I think actually figured it out... I think it's due to the epinephrine that they used to stem the bleeding - they had to shoot me up with it (mixed with a lidocaine local for the pain) in that area each time they went back in, so there's got to be some carryover effect from that much of it, I would think... because it's only white in the areas that they shot up with it.

Sarah? Comments from a medical pro's perspective?

Neil

---

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....
Posted by Kim on Fri, 26 Oct 2007 06:53:13 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

It's a bit of an emotional roller coaster for sure isn't it? Your "white" theory sounds good to me, but what would I know? ;o)

Hopefully our resident medical expert will chime in as requested. :o)

Assuming it all works out though, which sounds likely, I'd place a fair bet that you will go back to music with a renewed appreciation for it, as well as life, so with any luck it might turn out to be a positive thing in the end.

Keep us updated, as I'm sure you will. Looking forward to your first tune post recovery. :o)

Cheers,
Kim.

"Neil" <OIU@OIU.com> wrote:

>
>Thanks, man! I'm feeling pretty good about it right now, based >on the outcome - which was completely different than how I was >feeling about it before, which was of course based on what the >initial prognosis was & where they thought they'd have to "dig >into", as it were.

>
>Only weird thing so far has been when I took the bandage off
>tonite, the entire area of flesh around the "work" area was >completely snow-white... like no blood-circulation kinda >white. Appliance-white. No shit. So, I called the doc & he said >he wants me to come in tomorrow morning so he can look at it, >but I think actually figured it out... I think it's due to the >epinephrine that they used to stem the bleeding - they had to >shoot me up with it (mixed with a lidocaine local for the pain)
>in that area each time they went back in, so there's got to be >some carryover effect from that much of it, I would think...
>because it's only white in the areas that they shot up with it.

>
>Sarah? Comments from a medical pro's perspective?

>
>Neil

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....

Posted by Sarah on Fri, 26 Oct 2007 11:11:27 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Well, it's late, so you may be reading this after you've already seen the doctor. Appliance-white, wow. It's hard for me to say without actually seeing it. Could be a circulation thing, but it could be the area was just wet for a while and got "water-logged." Or peroxide can turn skin white, too. At any rate, it's good to call the doctor about anything suspicious during the healing process so you can catch infection or other complications early.

And if you're not gonna take the damn painkillers, send 'em to me! :)

S

"Neil" <OIU@OIU.com> wrote in message news:47218da1$1@linux...

>
> Thanks, man! I'm feeling pretty good about it right now, based > on the outcome - which was completely different than how I was > feeling about it before, which was of course based on what the > initial prognosis was & where they thought they'd have to "dig > into", as it were.

>
> Only weird thing so far has been when I took the bandage off
> tonite, the entire area of flesh around the "work" area was > completely snow-white... like no blood-circulation kinda
> white. Appliance-white. No shit. So, I called the doc & he said > he wants me to come in tomorrow morning so he can look at it, > but I think actually figured it out... I think it's due to the > epinephrine that they used to stem the bleeding - they had to > shoot me up with it (mixed with a lidocaine local for the pain)
> in that area each time they went back in, so there's got to be > some carryover effect from that much of it, I would think...
> because it's only white in the areas that they shot up with it.

>
> Sarah? Comments from a medical pro's perspective?

>
> Neil

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....
Posted by Cujjo on Fri, 26 Oct 2007 12:37:53 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Neil, I'm wishing for a speedy recovery for you.

Jamie K <Meta@Dimensional.com> wrote:

>
>Yeah Neil, be nice to your finger and get one of those voice recognition

>programs for email. :^)

>
>Glad it went better than expected!

>
>Cheers,
> -Jamie
> www.JamieKruz.com

>
>
>steve the artguy wrote:
>> I expected you wouldn't be typing anything for a while -- Very pleasantly >> surprised to see your name back here so soon!
>>

>> Take care of yourself.
>>
>> -steve
>>
>>
>> "Neil" <OIU@OIU.com> wrote:
>>> Well, the surgery went well... the good news is that it didn't
>>> go as deep down the side (the inside part nearest the thumb) as
>>> they thought, so once this heals up, I should be able to grip a
>>> guitar pick just fine, as far as I can tell from seeing it
>>> right before they bandaged it up for the last time & sent me on
>>> my way (damn, it's really hideous-looking, though - YEESH!).
>>> However, it went further back past the base of the nail
>>> than they thought, so that took several steps of the procedure
>>> to get all of the cancer cell-infested tissue out in that >>> direction... it did take a long time, I went in there at 830am &
>>> got out at about 3:00. So, anyway, because of that, the nail
>>> (which they had to yank out completely, of course) may or may
>>> not grow back either at all or properly/normally, which is not
>>> a big deal at all, of course, it's just a lot more tissue gone
>>> than they thought they'd have to take, but it's more on the
>>> upper area of the finger, which doesn't have anything to do
>>> with playing anything. The great news is the side of the
>>> finger... the fact that they only had to go down about halfway
>>> there, all the way across; and didn't even have to touch the
>>> pad/underside at all (which it looked at first like they'd have
>>> to do)!
>>>
>>> So all-in-all, I think I lucked-out! :)
>>>
>>> Right now it's hurting like a son of a bitch, and no, they
>>> didn't give me any pain meds - which is probably fine because
>>> I need to be able to go into work, anyway.
>>>
>>> It'll be all wrapped-up in this big ol' bandage until the end
>>> of the day today when i'm supposed to take it off, clean the
>>> area, and put a smaller one on... a process which i'm not
>>> looking forward to! lol
>>>
>>> So, bottom line: better outcome than we originally thought,
>>> it'll be useless & just in the way for about two months for all
>>> practical purposes (it took me about a half an hour to type
>>> this reply, for example LOL!), until the healing is at a more >>> advanced stage, but after that it should be fine the doc says.
>>>
>>> Thanks for checking!
>>>
>>> Neil

>>>
>>>> bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:
>>>> Yeah. What up?
>>>>
>>>> DJ wrote:
>>>>> How are you doing man?
>>>>>
>>>>>
>>>>>
>>

---

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....
Posted by TCB on Fri, 26 Oct 2007 13:25:32 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Sounds a little grisly to go through but glad it went as well or better than expected. Good luck healing up.

TCB

"Neil" <OIU@OIU.com> wrote:

>
>Well, the surgery went well... the good news is that it didn't
>go as deep down the side (the inside part nearest the thumb) as
>they thought, so once this heals up, I should be able to grip a
>guitar pick just fine, as far as I can tell from seeing it
>right before they bandaged it up for the last time & sent me on
>my way (damn, it's really hideous-looking, though - YEESH!).
>However, it went further back past the base of the nail
>than they thought, so that took several steps of the procedure
>to get all of the cancer cell-infested tissue out in that >direction... it did take a long time, I went in there at 830am &
>got out at about 3:00. So, anyway, because of that, the nail
>(which they had to yank out completely, of course) may or may
>not grow back either at all or properly/normally, which is not
>a big deal at all, of course, it's just a lot more tissue gone
>than they thought they'd have to take, but it's more on the
>upper area of the finger, which doesn't have anything to do
>with playing anything. The great news is the side of the
>finger... the fact that they only had to go down about halfway
>there, all the way across; and didn't even have to touch the
>pad/underside at all (which it looked at first like they'd have
>to do)!
>
>So all-in-all, I think I lucked-out! :)
>
>Right now it's hurting like a son of a bitch, and no, they
>didn't give me any pain meds - which is probably fine because

>I need to be able to go into work, anyway.
>
>It'll be all wrapped-up in this big ol' bandage until the end
>of the day today when i'm supposed to take it off, clean the
>area, and put a smaller one on... a process which i'm not
>looking forward to! lol
>
>So, bottom line: better outcome than we originally thought,
>it'll be useless & just in the way for about two months for all
>practical purposes (it took me about a half an hour to type
>this reply, for example LOL!), until the healing is at a more >advanced stage, but after that it should be fine the doc says.
>
>Thanks for checking!
>
>Neil
>
>>bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:
>>Yeah. What up?
>>
>>DJ wrote:
>>> How are you doing man?
>>>
>>>
>>>
>

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....
Posted by Tom Bruhl on Fri, 26 Oct 2007 19:42:08 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

This is a multi-part message in MIME format.

-----=_NextPart_000_0055_01C817E6.C430D270
Content-Type: text/plain;
charset="iso-8859-1"
Content-Transfer-Encoding: quoted-printable

Dirty White Boy

"Neil" <OIU@OIU.com> wrote in message news:47218da1$1@linux...

Thanks, man! I'm feeling pretty good about it right now, based on the outcome - which was completely different than how I was feeling about it before, which was of course based on what the initial prognosis was & where they thought they'd have to "dig into", as it were.

Only weird thing so far has been when I took the bandage off

tonite, the entire area of flesh around the "work" area was completely snow-white... like no blood-circulation kinda white. Appliance-white. No shit. So, I called the doc & he said he wants me to come in tomorrow morning so he can look at it, but I think actually figured it out... I think it's due to the epinephrine that they used to stem the bleeding - they had to shoot me up with it (mixed with a lidocaine local for the pain) in that area each time they went back in, so there's got to be some carryover effect from that much of it, I would think... because it's only white in the areas that they shot up with it.

Sarah? Comments from a medical pro's perspective?

Neil

I choose Polesoft Lockspam to fight spam, and you?

<http://www.polesoft.com/refer.html>

-----=_NextPart_000_0055_01C817E6.C430D270

Content-Type: text/html;

charset="iso-8859-1"

Content-Transfer-Encoding: quoted-printable

```
<!DOCTYPE HTML PUBLIC "-//W3C//DTD HTML 4.0 Transitional//EN">
```

```
<HTML><HEAD>
```

```
<META http-equiv=3DContent-Type content=3D"text/html; =
charset=3Diso-8859-1">
```

```
<META content=3D"MSHTML 6.00.2800.1400" name=3DGENERATOR>
```

```
<STYLE></STYLE>
```

```
</HEAD>
```

```
<BODY bgColor=3D#ffffff>
```

```
<DIV><FONT face=3DArial size=3D2>Dirty White Boy</FONT></DIV>
```

```
<BLOCKQUOTE=20
```

```
style=3D"PADDING-RIGHT: 0px; PADDING-LEFT: 5px; MARGIN-LEFT: 5px; = BORDER-LEFT: #000000 2px solid; MARGIN-RIGHT: 0px">
```

```
<DIV>"Neil" &lt;<A href=3D"mailto:OIU@OIU.com">OIU@OIU.com</A>&gt; = wrote in=20
```

```
message <A=20
```

```
=
```

```
href=3D"news:47218da1$1@linux">news:47218da1$1@linux</A>...</DIV><BR>Than= ks,=20
```

```
man! I'm feeling pretty good about it right now, based<BR>on the = outcome -=20
```

```
which was completely different than how I was<BR>feeling about it = before,=20
```

```
which was of course based on what the<BR>initial prognosis was & = where=20
```

```
they thought they'd have to "dig<BR>into", as it were.<BR><BR>Only =
```

> >they thought, so once this heals up, I should be able to grip a
> >guitar pick just fine, as far as I can tell from seeing it
> >right before they bandaged it up for the last time & sent me on
> >my way (damn, it's really hideous-looking, though - YEESH!).
> >However, it went further back past the base of the nail
> >than they thought, so that took several steps of the procedure
> >to get all of the cancer cell-infested tissue out in that > >direction... it did take a long time, I went in there at 830am &
> >got out at about 3:00. So, anyway, because of that, the nail
> >(which they had to yank out completely, of course) may or may
> >not grow back either at all or properly/normally, which is not
> >a big deal at all, of course, it's just a lot more tissue gone
> >than they thought they'd have to take, but it's more on the
> >upper area of the finger, which doesn't have anything to do
> >with playing anything. The great news is the side of the
> >finger... the fact that they only had to go down about halfway
> >there, all the way across; and didn't even have to touch the
> >pad/underside at all (which it looked at first like they'd have
> >to do)!

> >

> >So all-in-all, I think I lucked-out! :)

> >

> >Right now it's hurting like a son of a bitch, and no, they
> >didn't give me any pain meds - which is probably fine because
> >I need to be able to go into work, anyway.

> >

> >It'll be all wrapped-up in this big ol' bandage until the end
> >of the day today when i'm supposed to take it off, clean the
> >area, and put a smaller one on... a process which i'm not
> >looking forward to! lol

> >

> >So, bottom line: better outcome than we originally thought,
> >it'll be useless & just in the way for about two months for all
> >practical purposes (it took me about a half an hour to type
> >this reply, for example LOL!), until the healing is at a more > >advanced stage, but after that it should be fine the doc says.

> >

> >Thanks for checking!

> >

> >Neil

> >

> >>bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:

> >>Yeah. What up?

> >>

> >>DJ wrote:

> >>> How are you doing man?

> >>>

> >>>

> >
>

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....

Posted by JeffH on Sat, 27 Oct 2007 05:01:31 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Neil,

Been offline a couple weeks and missed all the excitement. Glad to hear things are going well.

Jeff

Mike R. wrote:

> Hey Neil,

> Great to hear you're on the mend. MR

> "Neil" <OIU@OIU.com> wrote in message news:4720a0f2$1@linux...

>

>>Well, the surgery went well... the good news is that it didn't
>>go as deep down the side (the inside part nearest the thumb) as
>>they thought, so once this heals up, I should be able to grip a
>>guitar pick just fine, as far as I can tell from seeing it
>>right before they bandaged it up for the last time & sent me on
>>my way (damn, it's really hideous-looking, though - YEESH!).
>>However, it went further back past the base of the nail
>>than they thought, so that took several steps of the procedure
>>to get all of the cancer cell-infested tissue out in that >>direction... it did take a long time, I went in there at 830am &
>>got out at about 3:00. So, anyway, because of that, the nail
>>(which they had to yank out completely, of course) may or may
>>not grow back either at all or properly/normally, which is not
>>a big deal at all, of course, it's just a lot more tissue gone
>>than they thought they'd have to take, but it's more on the
>>upper area of the finger, which doesn't have anything to do
>>with playing anything. The great news is the side of the
>>finger... the fact that they only had to go down about halfway
>>there, all the way across; and didn't even have to touch the
>>pad/underside at all (which it looked at first like they'd have
>>to do)!

>>

>>So all-in-all, I think I lucked-out! :)

>>

>>Right now it's hurting like a son of a bitch, and no, they
>>didn't give me any pain meds - which is probably fine because
>>I need to be able to go into work, anyway.

>>

>>It'll be all wrapped-up in this big ol' bandage until the end
>>of the day today when i'm supposed to take it off, clean the
>>area, and put a smaller one on... a process which i'm not
>>looking forward to! lol
>>
>>So, bottom line: better outcome than we originally thought,
>>it'll be useless & just in the way for about two months for all
>>practical purposes (it took me about a half an hour to type
>>this reply, for example LOL!), until the healing is at a more >>advanced stage, but after that it should be fine the doc says.
>>
>>Thanks for checking!
>>
>>Neil
>>
>>
>>>bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:
>>>Yeah. What up?
>>>
>>>DJ wrote:
>>>
>>>>How are you doing man?
>>>>
>>>>
>>
>
>

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....
Posted by emarenot on Sat, 27 Oct 2007 06:24:03 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hey Neil,
Great to hear you're on the mend. MR
"Neil" <OIU@OIU.com> wrote in message news:4720a0f2$1@linux...
>
> Well, the surgery went well... the good news is that it didn't
> go as deep down the side (the inside part nearest the thumb) as
> they thought, so once this heals up, I should be able to grip a
> guitar pick just fine, as far as I can tell from seeing it
> right before they bandaged it up for the last time & sent me on
> my way (damn, it's really hideous-looking, though - YEESH!).
> However, it went further back past the base of the nail
> than they thought, so that took several steps of the procedure
> to get all of the cancer cell-infested tissue out in that > direction... it did take a long time, I went in there at 830am &
> got out at about 3:00. So, anyway, because of that, the nail

> (which they had to yank out completely, of course) may or may
> not grow back either at all or properly/normally, which is not
> a big deal at all, of course, it's just a lot more tissue gone
> than they thought they'd have to take, but it's more on the
> upper area of the finger, which doesn't have anything to do
> with playing anything. The great news is the side of the
> finger... the fact that they only had to go down about halfway
> there, all the way across; and didn't even have to touch the
> pad/underside at all (which it looked at first like they'd have
> to do)!

>
> So all-in-all, I think I lucked-out! :)

>
> Right now it's hurting like a son of a bitch, and no, they
> didn't give me any pain meds - which is probably fine because
> I need to be able to go into work, anyway.

>
> It'll be all wrapped-up in this big ol' bandage until the end
> of the day today when i'm supposed to take it off, clean the
> area, and put a smaller one on... a process which i'm not
> looking forward to! lol

>
> So, bottom line: better outcome than we originally thought,
> it'll be useless & just in the way for about two months for all
> practical purposes (it took me about a half an hour to type
> this reply, for example LOL!), until the healing is at a more > advanced stage, but after that it should be fine the doc says.

>
> Thanks for checking!

>
> Neil

>
> >bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:

> >Yeah. What up?

> >

> >DJ wrote:

> >> How are you doing man?

> >>

> >>

>

---

Subject: Re: Hey Neil.....

Posted by Paul Braun on Sat, 27 Oct 2007 23:11:42 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

On 25 Oct 2007 23:58:10 +1000, "Neil" <OIU@OIU.com> wrote:

>
>So, bottom line: better outcome than we originally thought,
>it'll be useless & just in the way for about two months for all
>practical purposes (it took me about a half an hour to type
>this reply, for example LOL!), until the healing is at a more >advanced stage, but after that it should be fine the doc says.

Whew. Good deal.

Just got back from Vegas yesterday - just checked the group now.

Glad things went well.

pab

---