And here's WHY men end up in those boondoggles...

We go to Jiffy Lube once, and the pud minimum-wage pissed-off and burned-out mechanic doesn't bother to remove the old gasket as he installs his POS generic filter, and sends you on your way...

So, you notice a leak, and you trace it to the oil filter canister. You pull it out, and find the 2 gaskets jammed up in there, and go complain to the manager at JL. He shrugs and gives you a discount coupon...

So we aging men, wait for specials at the friendly dealer and take it there, because we'd rather mess around with our bloody COMPUTERS than our cars anyway.

Women? When the engine blows up, they call a lawyer and 2 years later they own JL.

heh
