OK, so I'm an (admittedly) old curmudgeon and only listen to compressed audio files when I absolutely have to and I especially go out of my way to avoid having anything to do with Mac related stuff as a matter of principle, but Amy likes Apple and so I loaded iTunes on her new PC and I've been playing around with it. Yeah, I know.....I'm only 5 years behind everyone else here, but anyway, all I can say is that I *really* like iTunes. I can't find anything I don't like about it. If I were going to design something like this, I couldn't do it any better (now hows that for egotism?).

Aaaaa!! I hate when I do that . . . What I was about to say, before I accidentally sent that empty message was: Yeah, I think iTunes is a lot of fun, and I don't even have an iPod, or any other such player. I've added a lot of interesting things to my collection from there, but I also think it's fun just to browse the iTunes store.

Sarah (a fellow curmudgeon)

PS: and don't forget . . . "Wayward" by Sarahtonin, my favorite band, is now available on iTunes. :D

Dj, just stop! That Apple software will seep in to your brain and corrode it; )

I'll first say I hardly use iTunes, but I do use it on occasion. I'll point out some things that may or may not be obvious. The price is right! It will do encoding and audio file format conversion. You can create play list and organize you music for quick access, and you can also burn audio CDs with it.

I've used it to dj weddings, parties and camping trips. A true story. I was at a wedding doing video and the bride was literally crying at her wedding because, the dj the company sent out didn't bring the bride and father song he was supposed to. I used the dj's windows laptop and installed iTunes, down loaded the song and saved the day. I guess I could have used something else, but it was a long time ago and iTunes worked.

I've used it to search an artist content to find a song when I didn't know the song title, by playing the snippets. I've listen to a new records to get a sampling of what's on it before I buy it. Some times I'll check out movie trailers. Some times, I actually use it to listen to my music while I'm on the tube. Just drop you CDs in and hit import. You can also do drag and drop. I also use it to listen to the net radio shows while I work.

There is a lot of cool stuff on iTunes that is free. The thing I find coolest about it is the Pod casts. Check it out, if you go to the store and click on podcasts, there is a bunch of categories. select a category and pick some thing your interested in and subscribe. It will down load the pod casts. It is mostly audio and some videos. There are a lot of radio shows, instructional videos. There is all kinds of stuff, like real-estate, investment, business, comedy, music, motivational speaking, news, learning video production, cooking to learning spanish. The best part is most of it is free.

There is a lot there. Have fun with it.

James

I should have mentioned that you don't have to subscribe to the podcasts, if you just want to listen or watch one of them, just click on them one at a time. If it's video, double click on the video to open a larger screen. There are PhotoShop quick tips video podcasts there. You can also create your own podcasts and up load them.

There is one screwy thing about itunes. If you add original music that has no meta info, iTunes will try to figure out what it is based on song length or something, and it will sometimes give it a wrong name. So you kind of have to watch it, and correct the name if it does that.

Just give iTunes a little time.... it crashes -- a lot.

I've had really great luck with iTunes. The only thing I didn't really like/changed was it's standard import format. I don't want my CD's ripped to AAC, rather opting to have it hit the standard MP3 extension.

itunes is great. In a pinch, it great for a "quicky" mastering app for listen backs for the artist and record company. Just adding a pinch of their eq will usually do the trick..

For the last 3 years, Itunes has been our studio standard MP3,wav file player.

BUT..Ms new Media Player 11 is great as well. The search function is stellar, as is the playback engine.

Hmmmm.....I wonder where they got the idea for that search function and the look? Can you say Aqua? There new logos look familiar too! Nothing like originality!

Allen, I'm sure you know this, but for those who don't, you can switch the encoding type and quality in Preferences. There is AAC, AIFF, WAV, Apple Lossless, and of course MP3.

Is this a can of worms we really want to open here??? Have you seen Vista? It's like they took OSX, slapped the word "Windows" on it, and started to ship it. After they bloated it to the point where it needs an 8-core fully-loaded workstation to open, that is.

Umm, before we go down the road of extreme assumptions that Vista is a bloated waste of bits and bytes (or rather for any PC users interested):

<http://www.rainrecording.com/vista/performance>

Scroll down for the graph. Cubase 4 was used. Pretty big jump in plugin count with Vista over XP32. Vista 64 and 32 will be the same as Cubase 4 (I believe) is still a 32-bit app.

Hard to say how reliable this report is, but no reason to doubt it. I'm not an early OS adopter, but at least this is rather encouraging. Maybe then we can put an OSX version of Cubase 4 against a Vista version and see which OS is bloated the most instead of subjectively guessing. ;-)

Not exactly what I call requiring 8 cores just to open. :-)

BTW - I had iTunes running on one PC today playing some Elgar and Win Media Player 11 on the laptop with some Dvorak - one screen on each side. They cancelled each other out to absolute silence. Cool. Dvorak and Elgar weren't too happy about it though.

Cubase SX was ported to the Mac as I understand it. so I doubt it would be a fair contest, besides Cubase isn't the only game in town. If Steinberg were to do a ground up rewrite and optimized it for the Mac, then we might have a fair contest.

Vista is such a blatant rip off of Mac OSX look and feel it's Pathetic!

Sigh. You'll never learn to appreciate anything that isn't a Mac will you?

Okay.... so we'll pull up the same tracks and plugins in Logic (Mac) and Nuendo (PC)....or better yet, I won't bother since you will just say what a ripoff of OSX Vista is. Not that a Fischer Price-grey semi-translucent GUI vs. a black translucent GUI has anything to do with getting work done with a DAW, which was the point of my post to begin with.... That and dispelling a bit of FUD about Vista in case other users are considering it to run Cubase or Nuendo with at some point.

> Vista is such a blatant rip off of Mac OSX look and feel it's Pathetic!

Again? Well.... the obvious answer for you is .... don't use it! Please, enjoy OSX! We know you hate PCs/Windows already.

Dedic,

And your trying to tout Vista, which is a blatant rip off of Mac OSX, but then again, what's new? Just remember, the "new" features your seeing in Vista have been in Mac OSX as far back as six years ago.

Have you payed attention to how big the Vista install is? I'd say it's Bloat!
Hey you want to keep supporting an unethical monopolistic company that steals every thing they can get their hands on that's up to you. There is an alternative.
I'll go with the innovator, the originator, not the copycat.

No James, I was showing that Vista actually runs more plugins on Cubase 4 than WinXP in early tests, which can be of interest to anyone considering upgrading from XP to Vista, and use it for actually getting music and audio work done.

OS's aren't a political statement for me. They are just a means to an end. The post about Cubase 4 performance was just useful info for PC users. Anything wrong with that?

Other than the DRM and the fact that you're locked into their hardware, it's not bad. Which is kind of like the famous, 'Other than, Mrs. Lincoln, how was the show?'

For higher quality audio, check out FLAC.

Thad-

What's your take on the idea that DRM is being foisted on all online stores by the respective rights holders/publishers?

FLAC is very good. If anyone's on Mac, Amadeus will play FLAC files...

Well, my main take on it is that I don't care, I simply will not buy things in a format that treats me like I'm a criminal. My secondary take on it is that Esteban Jobs is wicked smart and managed to brow beat the record labels into using his store precisely because of the DRM it had. Now that he's cornered the market he's campaigning for the removal of the DRM because, surprise, customers don't like it.

I'm also quite sure that some day in the not too distant future when you buy a car you'll have to sign and EULA that says, 'This 'motor vehicle' is licensed, not sold, to you . . .'

BTW I'm putting my money where my mouth is on this one. I'm trying to convince the Mold Monkeys to release our upcoming second CD as both .ogg and .flac files into the file sharing universe. I'm hoping to include a note pointing people to our web site and saying only that if they like our music it would be really cool if they would buy a sticker or a T-Shirt or pick up my bar tab some night. I haven't completely convinced the guys, I don't write songs for this band so it's their copyright not mine, but I'm getting closer.

So here we go again. Steve Jobs is the bad guy??? He went and beat up the poor record companies and made them open up their libraries to Apple. Is that the way it was? I can't believe that some people will stand right in front of the truth and deny it.

The record companies have been pushing such crap music for the last 15 years that they were in trouble. With the advent of MP3s and the increased use of personal computers, the record companies could no longer maintain control of their music. With P2P file sharing, and the huge salaries they were paying the pimps to run the record companies, and the crap artists they signed, they were losing revenue.

Steve Jobs came to them with a good BUSINESS MODEL/PLAN! It was a great deal for the record companies. Apple pays them on average, $0.85 per song! Apple had to set up the whole infrastructure and maintain the system out of pocket. Many of the songs are remastered, and Apple has the task of encoding all of the songs.

The reason the record companies signed with Apple is not because Steve Jobs brow beat them. They signed because it was a good deal and because they were on their asses! Record companies were mismanaged and were going out of business, and were being restructured at that time.

Steve Jobs business plan worked, and has help save the record industry. In order to get them to go for the plan, Apple had to agree to limit the number of copies a user can have on a number of machines. It is a reasonable number of copies! I believe it six. Unlike MS/Rhapsody, where as soon as you stop paying MS, the music stops being playable. At least you get to keep what you buy with iTunes, unlike MS's DRM bullshit!.

The record companies are doing fine now, and now the greedy bastards want more. They are trying to force Apple to raise prices. Jobs would like to see them relax and open the market up more by dropping the DRM. The Pay to play model sucks for consumers. It's MS's pay to play DRM that Apple is fighting against. Yet you blame Apple, and accuse them of the pay of play model.

Look at the record companies and the lock they have on music distribution and Air play. Apple has tried to help artist and independent record labels to get their product out there to the public. Apple has given the public a place to buy music, a lot of music at a reasonable price. Apple doesn't force you to buy the whole record to get one good song.

The greedy entitled record companies have tried to screw the artists and musicians out of their fair share. They are trying to squeeze everybody they and their greasy lawyers can. Look at how many people the record companies and the RIAA have sued! They have their lobby group the RIAA which is a gang of thug lawyers that pushes everybody around. Impoverished kids and single moms! They don't care, pay up or else! Slime!

MS, look at the things they've done. They have stolen from Apple, netscape, Sun, the list goes on, and the list is long. Look at how much they have taken. They steal, then they turn around and prosecute people that copy their software, when much of it was stolen by them. How many times have you heard of Apple having people prosecuted?

Yep, it's Apple that is evil, and it's Steve Jobs that is the bad guy. It's Jobs that wants to take your freedoms away, not Gates and his Pay to Play model.

Get a clue!

Dude, judging by the number of S class benz that pass me on the highway every day, we are squarely in the not so distant future, and it's name shall be known as LEASE :-)

Good heavens, James, did you read my post? I said I won't buy any format that restricts my freedoms. Not MSOft, not Apple, not anyone. Trust me, I despise Microsoft a great deal more than you do, because I have to deal with their hideous, bloated software all the time.

Lastly, Steve Jobs is a billionaire executive in charge of a corporation with an $80 billion market cap. He's is specifically tasked with making as much money for Apple shareholders as he can, in other words to be greedy. That's his job. He doesn't care about you or me or small record labels or artists one bit more than Steve Ballmer does.

Yes of course Apple is in business to make money. However, if what you are saying is so true, then why did he open up iTunes music store to artists, and independent record labels? Why take up time and space featuring and spotlighting unsigned artists. I think he is trying to help the little guy out. How much money and effort have the major labels and MS put out and done to help the little guy?

Give the guy a little credit.

Why does he do those things? To convince as many people as he can that he's something other than the stinking rich greedy CEO that he is.

That one dollar a year CEO salary sure is greedy. I guess you'll say that his salary is just for appearances. So how many CEOs take one dollar a year for their salary? How about taking one dollar for ten years? I'd like to have seen Gates take one dollar a year for ten years. I guess it will always be some kind of wrong reasoning and a jab.

The $1 salary is a publicity stunt. He has options worth well over half a billion.

Comparing salaries isn't a way to evaluate greed or charity.
Gates and others have contributed a lot to education and other charities - don't know about SJ.
I'm not impressed by extreme wealth, but even so, I think it's a bit difficult to judge either Bill or Steve's motivations from a sizable distance.

There are just too many examples of excessive salaries, stock options and personal wealth in many industries to point fingers in any one direction.

Regards,
Dedric

I don't believe he has exercised his options yet. The company also bought a 45 million dollar gulf stream for him to use for business. He doesn't own the jet the company does. What did Gates and Balmer make last year?

I don't know and it has no more to do with the question than how much I made last year. As the CEO of a publicly traded company it's his job to do everything legally possible to maximize profits or, in other words, to be greedy. If he's not being greedy then he's not doing his job. And, from the standpoint of shareholder value he has been a magnificent success.

I'm not defending either MS or Apple, but I think it's quite narrow minded to make Apple out to be shining star of the corporate world just because you choose to believe that's the case. In fact, it's kind of sad you hold Apple in such high regard and think MS is basically the spawn of Satan. A little balance might be the wiser approach.

In my opinion, if an organization isn't dedicating 100% of it's resources to fighting hunger, helping the poor, or building homes for low income families (Habitat for Humanity), it's motivated by one thing - profit. Call it greed, call it business, it's all the same. Remember, it's just a company building a product to sell and make a profit...

Hope the Apple flavored kool-aid tastes good where you live.

James -

#1 - I never said anyone in particular was greedy, nor am I looking to call anyone greedy. You are arguing your ideals with anyone that post in any Mac related thread and putting words in other posters posts to continue your Apple crusade. It's getting really, really old.

#2 - If you mistakenly and sadly think that Habitat for Humanity and other charity organizations are communist idealistic principles, and can't distinguish between corporate and altruistic motivations, then obviously you have other issues.

Like I said, I'm not stating an opinion either way about either company. You are the only one with the vehement and somewhat unnervingly biased opinions here.

Good luck with that. Nothing personal.

It sounded like you were saying by nature all businesses are greedy. Thad was saying that SJ is greedy. He also stated it's because iTunes is closed and Apple has tied iTunes to their hardware. It's true that it is tied to their hardware MP3 players, that's just smart business for them, and it is because of the deals they made with the record companies. I don't think they had much of a choice.

Apple did however open iTunes up to WinBlows! Apple doesn't keep you from add non Apple purchased MP3 to their iPod. They make a Windows version of the iPod, and they don't charge any more for it. Jobs would like to drop all DRM, and open up the market to third party MP3 players. He's knocked for that here also. Why should SJ ever open it up to third party MP3 players? Did MS open up VMs in all their version of Vista? No! Why not?

This post was DJ he was saying that he didn't find any thing wrong with iTunes. I think he expected it to be a "KLUG". I posted back to tell him about some cool features and some ways I've used it. but it wasn't long before someone posted, WINDOWS! WINDOWS! WINDOWS! Windows Media Player is good too! Ok! Where did MS get the ideas for the features, the interface, the look and even down the Aqua note with the CD? They copied it from Apple!!!!!!!!!!

So then it went to Thad knocking Apple, iTunes, Steve Jobs for their DRM and being greedy. Not cool! Apple's DRM isn't really DRM. I drag files on to my non Apple MP3 player all the time with no problems and no restrictions. Just compare that to Microsoft's DRM! Look at all the big brother shit MS has going on in their software. They steal from others and then prosecute others for copying their software. Yes software Nazis! Maybe your cool with this kind of unethical business practice, where did you say your from?

Apple and crusade? No, just standing up to the lies and the bashing. By the way, there are some Mac users here. Since you bring up crusades, who is on a crusade? Aren't you the big Christian? Your posts aren't so Christian like!!!! Maybe you should think about things. You've even said you posting to screw with me. So have fun with your taunting posts.

I never said Habitat for Humanity or any other charities are communist.

It sounded like you were saying all businesses are greedy, and that statement sounds like communist idealism. So how many days have you volunteered for Habitat for Humanity?

Nothing personal? Come on dude, it's getting totally personal!

Well, I'm not claiming that ANY business is more altruistic than not. I don't think that's really the issue. Corporations have a fiduciary responsibility to make money for the stockholders.

However, some businesses are more visionary than others, and that distinction is important to me. Even when it's not nearly on the level of the best charitable organizations.

How our culture develops is important, and many businesses are involved in that. Some do better than others. In this case, Apple gets my vote big time over Microsoft. So I will agree with some of Jame's points on that one (with no hyperbole from me, just observing what they've accomplished, for example with the record companies and with electronic distribution of independent music).

Which doesn't mean I won't criticize Apple when they screw up, which they do from time to time (I can give you examples).

And just because I respect many of Apple's accomplishments of late, doesn't mean I will blindly buy every toy from Apple if I don't think I need it. For example, I don't own an iPod. But I do use iTunes.

See, I'm not going that far. That's really getting into straw man territory.

Long week this week? I dunno about you, but I'm really glad to see the weekend, and no gigs for once. That means I get to relax (er, clean the garage, dang!).

Cheers,

Hah... Nah, just use the thin teflon lube from the gun shop...

You have the assistant pick it up on the way back from the Rite Aid with the Light Days Oval pads for the drums...
