

---

Subject: Re: Anyone from New Mexico?

Posted by gmmccurdy on Thu, 23 Mar 2006 16:17:54 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Good places to ski? haha

"Neil" <IOUOIU@OIU.com> wrote in message news:4422cbba$1@linux...

>

> "Will Wilson" <wwilson12@kc.rr.com.com.com> wrote:

>>

>>I'm looking at places I might move to and I want to ask a few >>questions about the area.

>>-Will

>

> What part of New Mexico are you thinking about? I live on the > western tip of Texas, bordering southern new Mexico, so I know a > decent amount about that area of the state... Las Cruces, Santa > Teresa, etc. Been to Albuquerque & Santa Fe a coupla times, so I > know a little bit, but definitely less, about those parts.

>

> Neil

---

---

Subject: Re: Anyone from New Mexico?

Posted by [Deej \[1\]](#) on Thu, 23 Mar 2006 16:47:46 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I live in Durango, Colorado, about 30 miles from the New Mexico border. I'm familiar with Chama/Espanola/Santa Fe/Taos/Farmington.....have often visited Albuquerque. If you're looking for a big city and all that is available in a big city, Albuquerque is as close as you're going to get, with Santa Fe coming in second.. Santa Fe and Taos are very artsy/fartsy and expensive and everything is made of dirt. Chama is a beautiful, tiny town in the mountains-very isolated (that's why it's beautiful). Espanola is about 30 miles north of Santa Fe and about 45 miles west of Taos and everything is made of dirt, but it's reasonably priced dirt instead of expensive dirt. Farmington is due south of here. It's a small city located in the high desert and the main industry there is natural gas drilling (and everything is made of dirt)

;o)

"Will Wilson" <wwilson12@kc.rr.com.com.com> wrote in message news:4422ca69$1@linux...

>

> I'm looking at places I might move to and I want to ask a few

> questions about the area.

> -Will

---

---

Subject: Re: Anyone from New Mexico?

Posted by [Deej \[1\]](#) on Thu, 23 Mar 2006 16:58:12 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

O'yeah.....I'm also pretty familiar with Gallup. If you native American culture, you will find it everywhere in northern New Mexico, but if you like isolation and native american culture.....lots of native american culture.....go to Gallup. The old route 66 runs through Gallup and it's only about 1/2 hours west of Albuquerque and 2 hours from Flagstaff AZ (a cool town, IMO) .....and in Gallup.....you guessed it.....everything is made of dirt.....reasonable priced dirt.....with lots of big rocks.....really big rocks.

;o)

"DJ" <animix_spam-this-ahole_@animas.net> wrote in message news:4422d2ef$1@linux...

> I live in Durango, Colorado, about 30 miles from the New Mexico border.

I'm

> familiar with Chama/Espanola/Santa Fe/Taos/Farmington.....have often > visited Albuquerque. If you're looking for a big city and all that is > available in a big city, Albuquerque is as close as you're going to get,

> with Santa Fe coming in second.. Santa Fe and Taos are very artsy'fartsy and > expensive and everything is made of dirt. Chama is a beautiful, tiny town in > the mountains-very isolated (that's why it's beautiful). Espanola is about

> 30 miles north of Santa Fe and about 45 miles west of Taos and everuything > is made of dirt, but it's reasonably priced dirt instead of expensive dirt.

> Farmington is due south of here. It's a small city located in the high > desert and the main industry there is natural gas drilling (and everything > is made of dirt)

>

> ;o)

> "Will Wilson" <wwilson12@kc.rr.com.com> wrote in message > news:4422ca69$1@linux...

>>

>> I'm looking at places I might move to and I want to ask a few

>> questions about the area.

>> -Will

>

>

---

Subject: Anyone from New Mexico?

Posted by Will Wilsn on Thu, 23 Mar 2006 17:18:49 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I'm looking at places I might move to and I want to ask a few questions about the area.

-Will

---

---

Subject: Re: Anyone from New Mexico?

Posted by [neil\[1\]](#) on Thu, 23 Mar 2006 17:24:26 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

"Will Wilson" <wwilson12@kc.rr.com.com.com> wrote:

>

>I'm looking at places I might move to and I want to ask a few questions about the area.

>-Will

What part of New Mexico are you thinking about? I live on the western tip of Texas, bordering southern new Mexico, so I know a decent amount about that area of the state... Las Cruces, Santa Teresa, etc. Been to Albuquerque & Santa Fe a coupla times, so I know a little bit, but definitely less, about those parts.

Neil

---

---

Subject: Re: Anyone from New Mexico?

Posted by [Deej \[1\]](#) on Thu, 23 Mar 2006 17:56:15 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

In Santa Fe there aren't but a couple of buildings in the whole city that are over two stories tall. If you like houses made out of dirt, New Mexico is the place. Personally, I like that kind of architecture, but it's still dirt.

;o)

"Gary Flanigan" <gary_flanigan@ce9.uscourts.gov> wrote in message news:4422df73$1@linux...

>

> DJ, with everything made of dirt, it might be a good place to have a soap concession.....

>

>

>

> "DJ" <animix_spam-this-ahole_@animas.net> wrote:

> >I live in Durango, Colorado, about 30 miles from the New Mexico border.

> I'm

> >familiar with Chama/Espanola/Santa Fe/Taos/Farmington.....have often > >visited Albuquerque. If you're looking for a big city and all that is > >available in a big city, Albuquerque is as close as you're going to get,

> >with Santa Fe coming in second.. Santa Fe and Taos are very artsy'fartsy > and > >expensive and everything is made of dirt. Chama is a beautiful, tiny town > in > >the mountains-very isolated (that's why it's beautiful). Espanola is about > >30 miles north of Santa Fe and about 45 miles west of Taos and everuything
> >is made of dirt, but it's reasonably priced dirt instead of expensive dirt.
> >Farmington is due south of here. It's a small city located in the high > >desert and the main industry there is natural gas drilling (and everything
> >is made of dirt)
> >
> >;o)
> >"Will Wilson" <wwilson12@kc.rr.com.com.com> wrote in message
> >news:4422ca69$1@linux...
> >>
> >> I'm looking at places I might move to and I want to ask a few
> >> questions about the area.
> >> -Will
> >
> >
> >
>

---

Subject: Re: Anyone from New Mexico?
Posted by [Deej \[1\]](#) on Thu, 23 Mar 2006 18:01:50 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I'd much rather live in El Paso than Elbocracky. At least El Paso is close to.....uhhhhh.....Ft. Stockton????

;o)

"Neil" <IOUOIU@.com> wrote in message news:4422df47$1@linux...

>
> >If you're looking for a big city and all that is > >available in a big city, Albuquerque is as close as you're > >going to get,
>
> A friend of mine likes to describe Albuquerque as: "a lot like > El Paso, but not as sophisticated", which if you know anything > about either place, is not a very complimentary statement about > either city.

>
> Probably: "A lot like El Paso, but more boring" is a better > description.
>
> :D
>
>
>
>
>
> "DJ" <animix_spam-this-ahole_@animas.net> wrote:
> >I live in Durango, Colorado, about 30 miles from the New Mexico border.
> >I'm
> >familiar with Chama/Espanola/Santa Fe/Taos/Farmington.....have often > >visited Albuquerque. If you're looking for a big city and all that is > >available in a big city, Albuquerque is as close as you're going to get,
> >with Santa Fe coming in second.. Santa Fe and Taos are very artsy'fartsy
> >and > >expensive and everything is made of dirt. Chama is a beautiful, tiny town
> >in > >the mountains-very isolated (that's why it's beautiful). Espanola is > >about > >30 miles north of Santa Fe and about 45 miles west of Taos and > >everuything
> >is made of dirt, but it's reasonably priced dirt instead of expensive > >dirt.
> >Farmington is due south of here. It's a small city located in the high > >desert and the main industry there is natural gas drilling (and > >everything
> >is made of dirt)
> >
> >;o)
> >"Will Wilson" <wwilson12@kc.rr.com.com.com> wrote in message
> >news:4422ca69$1@linux...
> >>
> >> I'm looking at places I might move to and I want to ask a few
> >> questions about the area.
> >> -Will
> >
> >
>

---

Subject: Re: Anyone from New Mexico?
Posted by Neil on Thu, 23 Mar 2006 18:47:51 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

>If you're looking for a big city and all that is >available in a big city, Albuquerque is as close as you're >going to get,

A friend of mine likes to describe Albuquerque as: "a lot like El Paso, but not as sophisticated", which if you know anything about either place, is not a very complimentary statement about either city.

Probably: "A lot like El Paso, but more boring" is a better description.

:D

"DJ" <animix_spam-this-ahole_@animas.net> wrote:

>I live in Durango, Colorado, about 30 miles from the New Mexico border.

I'm

>familiar with Chama/Espanola/Santa Fe/Taos/Farmington.....have often

>visited Albuquerque. If you're looking for a big city and all that is >available in a big city, Albuquerque is as close as you're going to get,

>with Santa Fe coming in second.. Santa Fe and Taos are very artsy'fartsy and >expensive and everything is made of dirt. Chama is a beautiful, tiny town in >the mountains-very isolated (that's why it's beautiful). Espanola is about

>30 miles north of Santa Fe and about 45 miles west of Taos and everuything

>is made of dirt, but it's reasonably priced dirt instead of expensive dirt.

>Farmington is due south of here. It's a small city located in the high

>desert and the main industry there is natural gas drilling (and everything

>is made of dirt)

>

>;o)

>"Will Wilson" <wwilson12@kc.rr.com.com.com> wrote in message

>news:4422ca69$1@linux...

>>

>> I'm looking at places I might move to and I want to ask a few

>> questions about the area.

>> -Will

>

>

---

Subject: Re: Anyone from New Mexico?

Posted by Gary Flanigan on Thu, 23 Mar 2006 18:48:35 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

DJ, with everything made of dirt, it might be a good place to have a soap concession.....

"DJ" <animix_spam-this-ahole_@animas.net> wrote:

>I live in Durango, Colorado, about 30 miles from the New Mexico border.

I'm

>familiar with Chama/Espanola/Santa Fe/Taos/Farmington.....have often

>visited Albuquerque. If you're looking for a big city and all that is >available in a big city, Albuquerque is as close as you're going to get,

>with Santa Fe coming in second.. Santa Fe and Taos are very artsy'fartsy
>and >expensive and everything is made of dirt. Chama is a beautiful, tiny town

>in

>the mountains-very isolated (that's why it's beautiful). Espanola is about

>30 miles north of Santa Fe and about 45 miles west of Taos and everuything

>is made of dirt, but it's reasonably priced dirt instead of expensive dirt.

>Farmington is due south of here. It's a small city located in the high

>desert and the main industry there is natural gas drilling (and everything

>is made of dirt)

>

>;o)

>"Will Wilson" <wwilson12@kc.rr.com.com.com> wrote in message

>news:4422ca69$1@linux...

>>

>> I'm looking at places I might move to and I want to ask a few

>> questions about the area.

>> -Will

>

>

---

Subject: Re: Anyone from New Mexico?

Posted by DC on Thu, 23 Mar 2006 20:13:31 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I found a bitchin' genuine unrestored Route 66 Motel in Albuquerque and stayed a night, so I loved it.

Getting caught in a NM thunderstorm lacework of lightning from horizon to horizon, the smell of electricity and red, wet, dirt in the air so much rain coming down the wipers couldn't keep up we had to pull off the road, great memory...

DC

"Neil" <IOUOIU@.com> wrote:

>

>>If you're looking for a big city and all that is >>available in a big city, Albuquerque is as close as you're >>going to get,

>

>A friend of mine likes to describe Albuquerque as: "a lot like >El Paso, but not as sophisticated", which if you know anything >about either place, is not a very complimentary statement about >either city.

>

>Probably: "A lot like El Paso, but more boring" is a better
>description.

>

>:D

>

>

>

>

>"DJ" <animix_spam-this-ahole_@animas.net> wrote:

>>I live in Durango, Colorado, about 30 miles from the New Mexico border.

>I'm

>>familiar with Chama/Espanola/Santa Fe/Taos/Farmington.....have often

>>visited Albuquerque. If you're looking for a big city and all that is >>available in a big city, Albuquerque is as close as you're going to get,

>>with Santa Fe coming in second.. Santa Fe and Taos are very artsy'fartsy

>and

>>expensive and everything is made of dirt. Chama is a beautiful, tiny town

>in

>>the mountains-very isolated (that's why it's beautiful). Espanola is about >>30 miles north of Santa Fe and about 45 miles west of Taos and everything >>is made of dirt, but it's reasonably priced dirt instead of expensive dirt.

>>Farmington is due south of here. It's a small city located in the high

>>desert and the main industry there is natural gas drilling (and everything

>>is made of dirt)

>>

>>;o)

>>"Will Wilson" <wwilson12@kc.rr.com.com> wrote in message

>>news:4422ca69$1@linux...

>>>

>>> I'm looking at places I might move to and I want to ask a few

>>> questions about the area.

>>> -Will

>>

>>

>

---