I didn't want to disrespect the RIP thread with this question but I didn't really get the reference.

SSC is uncredited on Stevie Wonder's album? I guess he Executive Produced everything I ever recorded...

Hi Cron,

He might have been a session player.....I don't know. Is there someone on the credits named Steven Marshall by chance. That would be him.

BTW, here's a link that references his connection to that album, though vaguely.

<http://www.nytimes.com/library/magazine/home/20001203mag-hit t.html>

Notice the board behind him. I asked him once what kind of board he used and he replied that he used a custom modded Midas. I wonder if that's the sound we're hearing in Paris.....maybe the DSP is modelled on this board???

Hmmmm.....I don't know.....I just noticed Dean Parks on the list of credits. Dean and I went to high school together. We played in bands that were under the same management in the 60's so we were often opening shows for each other's band and for other national touring acts that came through the Dallas area.
He was a year ahead of me in age and about a million miles ahead of me in talent. I learned some of my first very chops from Dean. Amazing player.

Ahh. The article does say theres a Platnum Album hanging from his wall, but dunno if that means he earned it or got it as a gift perhaps along the way.

PARIS is mint and for that I'll be grateful to him.

Its always cool shit to go to high school with someone that makes it bigtime.

My buddy Seth Meyers is a cast member and head writer on Saturday Night Live....

Dunno if you've ever heard of him but its a trip to see him doing comedy every Saturday.

He even gets to rep Boston and yell in Derek Jeters face saying "Yankees Suck!"

DJ--

I have conversing with Dean a lot over the last year as he has become a steel player this year (man, does he adapt quick--he was playing it on several tunes on the Crosby/Nash European tour last year after only a few month on the instrument). I got to spend a good deal of time with him in March at the Dallas Steel Guitar show, and he was a joy to hang with--very humble and warm with a lot of great stories. He is posting fairly often on the steel forum (www.steelguitarforum.com). I'll let him know you're around over here.... :)

Wow, his allmusic.com credit list is absolutely astounding...

I became aware of him through his work with the mighty Dan. He's all over "Aja".

In the DVD about that album, he comes across as almost insecure, very thoughtful and self-deprecating and almost embarrassed.

If he played on that album, he must be amazing.

Wow!!!.....be sure to tell him hi for me. I haven't seen him since around 1968 or thereabouts. We weren't real close pals, but he would probably remember me. He was in a band called The Crowd Plus One. The band I was in at the time was named the Restless Set. Great names.....eh? We were managed by the Beard Bros. management at the time and played all the "(you name it) A Go-Go" venues back in the mid 60's in north central Texas. One of the coolest gigs was back in '67 when all of the Beard Bros bands got to open for the touring acts at a big shindig in Ft. Worth at the Round Up Inn that was sponsored by KFJZ radio. Our band opened for the Doors. Other bands there were The Grass Roots, Standells.....and heck, I can't remember all of 'em.....o'yeah.....who did Hang On Sloopy???....The McCoys. That guitarist blew me away. I think it was Rick Derringer. We were all so young back then.....and I'm so old now. the Crowd Plus One and the Restless Set always opened for acts that they brought into their club in Ft. Worth called "The Box" We led off for the Music Machine (Remember Talk Talk?) , The Left Banke (Just Walk Away Renee')...etc. It was a hell of a lot of fun to be a teenager with a guitar..

He not only played all all those great Dan records, but there is also a pretty hefty credit that says "rhythm arrangements by Dean Parks"...

You should do an allmusic.com search on his name--there are 11 pages of credits (around 100/page) dating back to the 60's--I believe his first sessions were with the Crusaders....
