ock graphics templates. This way you spend very little time and get some reasonably pro looking packages. Part of the reason I get great refferals is because my packages look, IMHO, pretty cool.

I'm a fairly accomplished graphics artist, so if you're thinking of doing this and you arn't a graphics guy, email

<pre wrap="">That's always a possibility, I suppose... perhaps having them professionally duplicated & packaged is the key - they can burn 'em, but they can't see their kids' name in print with nice graphics on the "credits" section if they just burn 'em on their own. I think part of it is an ego thing: "look what my kid did!".
