

---

Subject: OT:occassionally, you get to do something truly worth while...

Posted by scott h on Fri, 21 Dec 2007 04:46:32 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I had an amazing/humbling opportunity yesterday.

long and short of it... a client called me earlier in the week and ask me to record the Grosse Pointe South(grosse pointe, michigan) Choirs for a Christmas tribute broadcast that will air this weekend on Armed Forces Radio.

the choirs are absolutely amazing, plus we had a blue star mom read a poem (I believe it was called "soldiers watch" ). it is a little uncertain as to whether they are going to use the entire hour sequentially, or split up and use songs between shows. either way, it was a pretty cool to be involved in a project that is going to give a little comfort from home to our troops all around the world.

doesn't matter which side of the fence you are on when it comes to our involvement in various areas... I believe most of wish they were home for Christmas, but hopefully this stuff at least brings a smile to a few faces.

I will have it up on a web site for streaming later tonight. we are also selling copies as a fund raiser for the GPS Choir's trip to Spain this coming spring. email me if you are interested in one.

---