SM57, how long to warm up?

Read this thread at your own risk, and try not to laugh too hard;)

I usually warm mine up in the dryer on the gentle cycle with a stick of butter and a pinch of rosemary. Gives it a warm, smooth but distinct sound.

I've installed a microwave and a toaster oven to cover everyone's needs. . .

I tried a curling iron but it just couldn't get a grasp on the diaphragm. I'm looking for a better model all the time.

Heatedly yours,
T.
