Funny, but we just traveled from GA to my old stomping grounds of NC for our vacation this year (I'm from Western NC, but we hit the beach at Hatteras), and we were flabbergasted at the percentage of people who smoked. Amazing.

happy with it.

I'm not using a PCM 90. I'm using a Lexicon Core 32 system as a standalone processor. It has two PC90 processors which are somewhatsimilar to the PCM 90 except unlike the PCM 90, the PC 90 runs them in parallel rather than in series.

I can respect everyones serious opinions on the matter. I posted this because the other day I went to a game at Fenway and hit a few bars beforehand. The same bars I used to hang out in college, and it was just strange that noone was smoking and they seemed to be underpopulated, and even brighter.

I am curious if anyone has noticed a decline in live music with the no smoking ba

And, in a weird sort of twist, my first CD was Asia by Asia, and I had it before I had a cd player. Jewel case looked pretty cool sitting up on my bulletin board in my dorm room.

That was back when you could get stares of admiration from the cute chicks working the record stores when you bought a cd. Now, nothing.

Got my first cd player, a second-gen Yammy, right after I graduated from college in '84. Spent stupid money on it, too, something like $400.

Ahhh. The pain of early adopters.

"Here at Microsoft, Quality is job, oh, I dunno, maybe 7 or 8?" My first CD player purchased about '80, which STILL works great, is an Alpine HOME audio 16 bit linear second generation model. Sounds way better than any others I have tried since. It also has a 5V audio output level that would max the line inputs on the Neve 8068MKIII

Crazy is a good word for it. Goes to show how clever, well funded marketing, a legacy of lies, and a highly addictive product can sometimes overcome common sense.

Unfortunately, being a working musician means having to play in smoky bars from time to time, but in my off time I stay away. I absolutely will not eat at any restaurant that isn't either smoke free or doesn't have a physical barrier between the smoking and non-smoking sections. I believe people should be free to smoke all they want as long as it doesn't interfere with a non-smokers right to breath smoke free air. I know a lot of smokers will disagree, but it's the smoker's actions that intrude on my breathing, not the other way around.

I used to have a sign in my studio:

"Cigarettes are your habit. The residue of your habit is smoke. It saturates my hair, skin and clothes with out my permission. Beer is my habit. The residue of my habit is urine. Would you mind if I stood on a chair and pissed all over you? Let's make a deal; You smoke outside and I'll piss in the bathroom."

I'm sorry for people who are addicted to smoking, but I really can't understand them being offended when non-smokers don't want to be exposed to it.

Our pubs here are still smokey at this point, but the bans are on their way.
I must admit I hear what you're saying. There's a definite part of me that likes the smokey pub thing. Don't get me wrong I'm in favour of the bans.
The bans helped finally tip the balance and make me quit... I figured if the future said I wouldn't be able to smoke in pubs, I'd better get in early so that, when the bans arrive, I'm still happy to be in a pub and not chewing my nails nervously.

So I'm very happy the bans are on their way, but despite all the damage they do, there's a part of me which feels sentimental about the whole thing, rightly or wrongly. I don't even really know why actually. I will certainly look back fondly on some of the good times I spent in pubs smoking though, even though I think the change is certainly for the better.

Cheers,
Kim. You don't like it?

These guys are really good musicians.

<http://www.flickr.com/photos/telemarkskier/sets/341359/>

Benny is an old friend and did the demo's here a couple of years ago = that were used in the production of a CD called Old Hands by the Yonder = Mountain
String Band for which he wrote many of the songs.

The other players on this project are members of the Broke Mountain Bluegrass band. I did a demo session for them back in 2003 which opened up some doors for them on the Bluegrass festival circuit. They have now split up but have bought in a new guitarist named John Stigley who is nothing short of unbelievable. I've got him set up on a mic here in the control room and last night I could have sworn I was listening to Tony Rice playing.

It's really a pleasure dealing with this bunch. Real pro's.....and real good.
