 find it hard to believe that the Democratic party has none, but it's either true, or it's politics wherein any effort he might make is thwarted if possible and no feedback is offered to help because he might get credit for it. Given the attitude of the Bush haters, this wouldn't surprise me at all.

considering cutting back on the SX machine and just making it a sequencer/VSTi platform again and doing all of my mixing in Paris. I'll probably keep the Multiface and unload one or both of the HDSP 9652's along with 3 x of my ADAT cards since I will be using Windows XP again with Paris.

I haven't decided for sure yet. It's been fun playing around with this monster rig, but the more I work this way, the more I appreciate Paris and it's sheer simplicity. If I was producing rock or pop music here, I'd be thinking differently I think.

The hoops I have to jump through transferring projects to Cubase SX just so I can use the UAD-1 and other plugins with no latency take easily as much or more time than it would take me to manually compensate for delay in Paris.

lead to a office that over looks the floor. This is were the boss and the head guys sit and look down on the workers.
They look over the figures and decide how much they need from each worker to make their quarterly goals. To help them to get the workers to make their goals they need someone looking over them since they dont make much money they tend to try do just enough to reach the goals that are asked of them.
But,there is always one or two of the workers(black or brown)that does more than the others and seems to have more drive than the others. The big guys call him up to the office and decide to make him a superviser.
Now everyone on the outside thinks,see blacks are getting places. But not so fast! The floor are the 90% of people that share 10% of the money and the office people ad lengthy discussions with a number of my contemporaries, some black, some hispanic, some white about how things have been and the way things are evolving in this country.

I don't have time to post this right now but if you're interested in continuing this discussion, I would be too. It's a discussion that needs to be engaged and you have made some good points. If we do this, I would like to try to keep it as objective as possible. Perhaps move it to the general group. There is much to discuss and learn.

442 to card A. The 442 is initialized from the EDS card which is paged when the computer boots. The MECs have on/off switches and are not recognized by the computer/EDS cards until the Paris application is actually launched.

The boot sequence that worked for me was as follows:

442 on card A, MECs on Cards B & C

Turn on WC module
Boot computer (you will see the 442 lights blink)
Launch Paris

I was having some trouble getting the MEC on Card B to work but this was solved by toggling the sync source from WC to internal and then back to WC in my default project.

It didn't really work reliably, ever so I just bought another MEC and this did work reliabl\y.

Good luck

ut from some four or more card system useres ...
I have a three card system and I remember that things became a lot more instable when I went from a 2 card to a 3card system ... is the switch painful?
Also, should I get a PCI expansion bridge, or are all of you running a hefty 450watt Powersupply and plug it into the Mobo?
Thanks,
Ted5 card system running here at the moment.

If you are only adding EDS cards and not interfaces, the addition would be fairly painless... BUT...

I would recommend a Magma chassis for several reasons:

1) Too much heat inside the computer with this many cards.

2) You would need at LEAST a 500W supply to drive 4 cards and a few drives etc.

3) Configuring IRQ's is WAY more forgiving in a Magma chassis.

4) You now have room to add MORE EDS cards!! ;-)

And my all time favorite:

King Arthur: The Lady of the Lake, her arm clad in the purest shimmering samite held aloft Excalibur from the bosom of the water, signifying by divine providence that I, Arthur, was to carry Excalibur. THAT is why I am your king.

Dennis: [interrupting] Listen, strange women lyin' in ponds distributin' swords is no basis for a system of government. Supreme executive power derives from a mandate from the masses, not from some farcical aquatic ceremony.

>Don,
You missed my point. I'm not going to go into this in depth as I have better things to do,but you have to understand that there are many facters that shape peoples lives,its never as simple as both side want to make you beleive. My point was that Powell and Rice seem to take the rights simplistic view,and most blacks just feel that Bush and those who take his views have very little idea of black life in america.
They understand the concerns of the rich. I can see how they can see the poor as not getting it and in some was they are right. Like I said there are many factors that shape peoples life. Blacks feel that Powell and Rice don't do enough to show Bush the concerns of poor. Instead they act like they grew up with them.

You makes some very good points,but life in america is not as simple as we would like it to be. Sorry I don't have the energy to go on. I wish we could come to the middle and have a little empathy for each others concerns.

I think we have, and do.

If I didn't have that empathy I would live in a little white world, instead of pouring my heart out on this vital subject.

People care more than you may know.

Take care of yourself.

DC"jason Miles" <Jmiles45@aol.com> wrote:

Well thanks for clearing THAT all up...I felt I wanted and needed to post this now.Let me preface this by saying I'm not taking into account Iraq or whatever else you want to throw here;this is based on what I'm seeing in response to the tradgedy.

 I felt a positive post might be good in all the heated discussions going on now.Not to say these discussions aren't needed and can't be productive.I just got a few good vibes tonight and needed them after feeling so helpless,discouraged, disappointed etc. for the last 8 days.

 I think we all can agree there was a breakdown in the response to Katrina.Blame this breakdown where you must;federal,state, local government or the fact this tragedy was too large and widespread to be handled successfully by anyone at anytime.I know what I feel,but that is beside the point.

 Out of all the things that have gone wrong(and there are many);I think we can say the one thing that has gone right is the response of the American people.I'm in St. Louis and we're expecting 8,000 to 10,000 hurricane victims in the next few days.

  An airplane hanger at Lambert is set up for people with a medical facility,pharmacy,clothes store with thousands of pairs of shoes etc.A prison that has been closed for years was renovated in a week for victims to live in temporarily.I was just thinking of how it was located right in the middle of the worst hit area in St. Louis in the '93 flood.When I called the volunteer line they said they were getting 800 calls an hour.

  There are volunteers from all over the country in the gulf coast now;rescuing people,providing medical services,providing food,shelter,rescuing pets.I've seen churches sustaining communities where FEMA and other organizations have yet to show up.These churches being sustained by donations from everywhere; some regular folks just showing up with truckloads from states far away.All kinds of cross-country church network donations;money,supplies,human resources,shelter,counseling.

  The multiple cities trying to take in the vast number of victims;find them housing,food,other family members.Free hotel rooms to stay in;people just being there with signs when they arrive-welcome friends and neighbors.Schools and colleges taking in students on the spot no questions asked.Those schools often adopting those families to care for.Strangers opening their homes to other strangers;often making for tight living conditions.Companies offering work to the thousands upon thousands of victims left jobless.And of course all the monetary donations.

 Don't get me wrong,I know there are problems and I don't see it all through rose colored glasses.And it is a shame that something like this has to bring us together.Hopefully from this tragedy we can fix what is broken.Hopefully we can face,discuss and try to heal some large problems that face this country.Right now though I'm am going to enjoy the momentary lift in my spirit that I'm getting from "we the people".Bless us all and hope this can be the beginning of a different era for our country and ALL our people.

peace,
PeteSorry for not posting in the general section Kim,but I thought more might see it here.

Now back to you're regularly scheduled PARIS channel.

------=_NextPart_000_00AB_01C5B3D8.D09C28D0--I come in the studio tonight, turn on my rig, my second C-16 doesn't show up in Paris, I look, no heartbeat on the mute button, I swapped cables with my other C-16, still no heart beat, I tried my other C-16 on this cable, works perfect. So does this mean I'm shopping for a new C-16? Anyone had similar issues before? I checked the connector, all looks fine, anything else I could try? I heard opening up one of these puppies is as fun as diving head first into an ant hill.

Thanks

That's funny because I heard everyone in LA uses artist's tape. They say the high end is more transparent and there's even a little more headroom.

  But it can't be fresh gaffer tape -- it needs to be vintage tape.
  Nothing in the world sounds like vintage '77 black gaffer tape.
  Especially tape made in Keokuk, Iowa. In June.

>Beware of new CD's that automatically install copywrite protection software onto your computer i.e...enhanced CD's. Some of these newer Cd's install Media-Max software which loads all sorts of drivers and crap onto your computer. I experienced this after buying Babyface "grown and sexy". The main culprit for my stuttering Fireface was a driver named sbcphid.sys. I found this out by finding the following link.
http://www.cs.princeton.edu/~jhalderm/cd3/

This driver is designed to prevent unauthorized copying of audio CDs using personal computers. MediaMax interferes with audio copying by installing a device driver the first time software from the CD is executed. It's supposed to make the ripped tracks stutter thus leaving them unusable. On my system it also made my Fireface driver crazy. I couldn't even play my older cd's which I bought without skips and stutters. To make a long story short I had to get a link from the SunnComm Technologies that uninstalled the software and then (They didn't tell me this) delete the sbcphid.sys driver from my device manager which the uninstall left behind. This file is hidden so you have to select the view hidden devices option in the device manager window. MediaMax and similar copy-prevention systems are irreparably flawed and believe record companies should find more customer-friendly alternatives for reducing infringement. I hope this helps anyone else having problems similar to mine.<

Just a heads up guys.I've been mixing a project here that was recorded for a new client. He just means it to be a demo and so in the interest of getting this done quickly, we didn't isolate the singer. He's got a very dull and honky midrange that is bleeding all over the tracks (all of them). Normally, on something like this I would do a little cutting at 400Hz to carve out the cardboard, then a tiny boost at 3kHz for a little clarity while softening up the 5kHz range with a little 2.5 octave cut bringing it up to a tiny peak at 7kHz tjust to get some definition. If I solo the track, this works fine and it smooth out the voice....on the solo track.

Problem is, it;'s all over the dobro, mandolin and doublebass and guitar. Carving his voice out of all these instruments basically kills the mix.

There are also phasing issues because the instrument mics are, in every case, at least 10 ft. and in the case of the dobro, 20' away from the singer. It's not really a problem with instruments being that far separated from each other, but with a singer, it's killin me.

WTF was I thinking letting them do this? I should have shot the producer, stolen his money and paid myself for another day of time for overdubs.

I was hoping to do a better mix with some extreme cuts and marginal boosts to certain instruments but this (especially boosting the dobro freqs so that they cut through the mix) really aggravates the worst frequencies in the vocal bleed.

I'll get an acceptable mix out of this using very slight cuts and panning, but it's never going to sparkle and I'm not going to wow anyone with it. That's a shame. the instruments are really well played and I'd just love to create a radio ready situation for them ;o)

Well......it was their decision to do it this way in the interest of time. I just hate that sometimes when all of a sudden I get into a demo session and the players just absolutely KILL they are so good. This is one of those situations.

I'm sure I'll be able to polish it up with a bit of EQ and gentle compression on the mix bus but the phasing of the vocal is still going to be there to a small degree.

;oPHave you tried to que the vocal up against, one track at a time, let's say.. dobro tr

>Aaron.......the 9 pin sync works in XP and spits out sample accurate TC to my RME HDSP 9652. There's no problem with the locking up at all. I don't know if this would work with the Pulsar, but I do know it works with RME hardware. The problem I discovered with using ADAT cards with Paris XP is that it's almost impossible to get more than one ADAT module working per MEC plus, the Paris XP driver won't see an ADAT machine (maybe not a big deal unless sync'ed transfers are needed to/from ADAT tape)

I just picked up cubase sx a couple weeks ago and am planning on going with two machines after I learn a little more about cubase (have them both on one for now, it's replace my previous midi sequencer). I know I'll still have more questions soon.
