If you don't have the Sarahtonin "Wayward" CD, here's an opportunity to buy one and do some good for someone besides me.

Guitarist/songwriter Duane Jarvis (some of you Portland folks may know) was something of a local star in the thriving Portland original music scene of the '80s. He subsequently moved to Nashville and worked with some famous people, like John Prine, Lucinda Williams, Frank Black, Dwight Yoakum, and others, even a stint with the Divinyls.

Anyway, Duane's been diagnosed with cancer, so some of his friends have organized a benefit concert here in Portland at the Wonder Ballroom (nice place) this thursday. They're calling it HOME (help offset medical expenses) for Duane Jarvis, because it's kind of a homecoming/reunion show. Here's the 'ficial website <http://homeforduanejarvis.com/>

Duane's MySpace page is <http://www.myspace.com/DuaneJarvis>

I'm getting a $30 ticket, but I can't really make it to the concert/party due to work. I have, however, put an announcement on the "Wayward" page of our website that any CD sales between now and labor day will be donated to Duane's medical fund. www.sarahtonin.com/wayward.htm or www.cdbaby.com/Sarahtonin or iTunes.

Duane's a real nice feller, so I wanna help him through this rough time if I can.

That is all. As you were.

Thanks,

Sarah Jane
