
Subject: OT - Guitar Amp Plugins
Posted by TC on Wed, 11 Jan 2006 01:00:04 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi all,

I just upgraded a couple of plugins, namely Guitar Rig 2 and Amp Farm 3 and wanted to share a couple of brief observations.

I am extremely impressed with Amp Farm 3, although I only used one or two settings last night but played for a couple hours. It has a definite amp feel and response, especially for bluesy tones, which is mainly what I've tried so far. This is a big improvement over previous versions. The downside of course is that it's a TDM plug, but for those of you who also use TDM systems, it's worth checking out.

I was much less impressed with guitar rig 2, which sounded sterile by comparison. It's still a nice plugin, but seems to excel more in the effects and mic placement aspects, rather than amp emulation IMO. I'll have to fool around with it more. I've used GR 1 quite a bit, but this didn't feel like a big sonic leap to me yet.

Cheers,

TC

Subject: Re: OT - Guitar Amp Plugins
Posted by Chris Latham on Wed, 11 Jan 2006 06:07:54 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Just seeing the mention of AmpFarm reminded of a recent comment that was made on a Nashville song demo session ...

After the 5th or 6th take to get a track on a song, the players came back into the control room and listened to the playback. After which the songwriter commented, "I don't know, it's still missing something." The bass player replied, "Just run the whole track through SincerityFarm, and that should do the trick."

CL

Subject: Re: OT - Guitar Amp Plugins
Posted by John Macy on Wed, 11 Jan 2006 07:20:32 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I'll be using that one, Chris... :)

"Chris Latham" <latham_c@bellsouth.net> wrote:
>Just seeing the mention of AmpFarm reminded of a recent comment that was >made on a Nashville song demo session ...
>After the 5th or 6th take to get a track on a song, the players came back >into the control room and listened to the playback. After which the >songwriter commented, "I don't know, it's still missing something." The >bass player replied, "Just run the whole track through SincerityFarm, and >that should do the trick."
>
>CL
>
>
>

Subject: Re: OT - Guitar Amp Plugins
Posted by TC on Wed, 11 Jan 2006 10:09:56 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

That is funny..

Cheers,

TC

Chris Latham wrote:
> Just seeing the mention of AmpFarm reminded of a recent comment that was > made on a Nashville song demo session ...
> After the 5th or 6th take to get a track on a song, the players came back > into the control room and listened to the playback. After which the > songwriter commented, "I don't know, it's still missing something." The > bass player replied, "Just run the whole track through SincerityFarm, and
> that should do the trick."
>
> CL
>
>
>

Subject: Re: OT - Guitar Amp Plugins
Posted by Stevehwan on Tue, 31 Jan 2006 16:56:19 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

TC <tc@spammetodeathyoubastards.org> wrote:
>Hi all,
>

>I just upgraded a couple of plugins, namely Guitar Rig 2 and Amp Farm 3 and wanted to >share a couple of brief observations.
>
>
>I am extremely impressed with Amp Farm 3, although I only used one or two settings last >night but played for a couple hours. It has a definite amp feel and response, especially >for bluesy tones, which is mainly what I've tried so far. This is a big improvement >over previous versions. The downside of course is that it's a TDM plug, but for those >of you who also use TDM systems, it's worth checking out.
>
>I was much less impressed with guitar rig 2, which sounded sterile by comparison. It's >still a nice plugin, but seems to excel more in the effects and mic placement aspects, >rather than amp emulation IMO. I'll have to fool around with it more. I've used GR
>1 quite a bit, but this didn't feel like a big sonic leap to me yet.
>
>Cheers,
>
>TC
Hey TC, I am brand new to the forum but I believe I was the first in Wisconsin to purchase Paris. These plugins you are referring to, are they for the Paris w/ MEC? Steve

Subject: Re: OT - Guitar Amp Plugins
Posted by TC on Fri, 03 Feb 2006 18:01:57 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi Steve,

Sorry for the delayed response here..

Ampfarm 3 is for TDM ProTools only. I've not tried Guitar Rig with Paris, so I'm not sure, but I know Amplitube works with Paris, so guitar rig might.

Also, I think they are releasing a new version of Amplitube soon, so that might be worth checking out.

Cheers,

TC

>
> Hey TC, I am brand new to the forum but I believe I was the first in Wisconsin > to purchase Paris. These plugins you are referring to, are they for the Paris
> w/ MEC? Steve
