What the hell do you do? Poor little guy is just hopping around while mom and dad squawk. Home appears to be 30 feet up a cypress?

Ideas??

Thanks

placing back in the nest.

your pet brought the bird home still alive, then click the Wild Bird Rehabilitation contact information.

This is what I know about it, which isn't much. What ever you do don't handle the birds, the parents will abandon them if they have human sent on them. If they are around bushes or under something the parents will feed them on the ground. Try to keep cats and dogs away. There's not much you can do about raccoons.

That's about all i can say. Good luck!

Good stuff. The little guy has very few feathers, but lots of attitude...

I found this:

<http://www.wildliferescueinc.org/tips.htm#Baby%20Birds>

and since he cannot fly at all, and can barely hop around, we made a nest for him out of a box and wire-tied it up in a tree.

It's covered in dry grass inside, and he settled down pretty quick when he got in there. Now, when he gets hungry, he can squawk for mom and dad and hopefull they will feed him.

He was nice and warm BTW.

cute little guy. I hope he makes it.

thanks

Like all game birds, roast baby blue jays have succulent juices that should not go to waste. In this recipe, every drop is captured in rice that has been cooked in chicken broth, then tossed with diced fresh mango and chopped cilantro.

4 whole baby jays, about 1/4 pound each, neck and wing tips removed

Coarse salt and freshly ground black pepper

1/4 cup hot red pepper jelly

1/2 teaspoon ground ginger

1 teaspoon fresh lime juice

Lime wedges

Preheat the oven to 450 degrees. Adjust the rack to the middle of the oven.

Remove necks and wing tips and pat the birds dry inside and out with paper towels. Discard any excess fat. Rub the flesh and cavities with salt and pepper. Put the birds in a roasting pan breast side up.

Roast for 15 minutes. Reduce the heat to 350 degrees and continue roasting for another 18 to 20 minutes, or until the juices run a rosy color when the meat is poked with a fork.

While the birds are roasting, soften the red pepper jelly in a small pan over medium heat. Stir in the ginger and lime juice. Generously brush the glaze on the birds during the last 2 or 3 minutes of roasting time.

Serve the birds on a mound of rice. Serves 1.

This works for lost kittens and puppies too.....

That's what I thought too. but evidently it is an old-wives tale.

Last night, mom and dad were flying over to him in his new box. Looks good so far.

I love these Jays because they hate our cats! They will perch on the sill and peck at a window right in the cats face for hours. Drives the felines bats. I love it. Yesterday one of them paraded and squawked at the cats right in front of our screen door for a good 30 minutes with both cats sitting there frustrated out of their minds... heh heh

More Jays please...

Here in SoCal, there are two kinds of cats:

Inside-only cats

and

Dead cats (Dog food or roadkill)

Both of ours stay inside. Which makes the Jays very happy...
