Howdy, kids. I hope you all are well. I have been gone a while, mostly due to massive computer (and financial) troubles.

Me and Swen have received an offer from a licensing company. These guys have had real success placing local artists with film, TV shows, and TV advertising, replete with royalties and all the rest. We are excited, though the legal process is taking way too long for our taste.

We had a major electrical storm last week, and I've got a fried computer. I know for a fact that the power supply is dead. I got it tested today.

Anybody got a relatively recent Pentium motherboard buildout for Paris? Just in case the motherboard is fried? I'd love to have four PCI slots, but that's getting rare, I know.

Perhaps I still have a good motherboard, but I won't know until I have my new power supply.

It's getting harder and harder to avoid the inevitable PCI obsolescence.

Hope everybody is well.
Jimmy
