This is a most impressive bass solo of Amazing Grace by Victor Wooten. It's just Jaco and Victor, "ain't no one else, they're holding it down."

I dare say Vic is the best bass player this world has ever seen. Dude is a complete master of his art. And a just a super nice dude the times I've been around him, which speaks so very much about him overall.

Thanks for the link man.

Saw this on a friend's DVD of this concert. Amazing doesn't begin to describe it. Victor is incredible, and then some. Bela and the rest of the band aren't bad either. ;-)

Dedric, Bela Fleck has redefined banjo playing. Was percussion man, or whatever the heck his name is, on this dvd? You know the dude who plays that weird percussion midi thing.

I second that Aaron. Bela & the Flectones played once, and Victor's band twice, when I used to run sound at the Maintenance Shop on the Iowa State campus in the early 90's. All genuinely nice people. If anyone gets a chance to see Victor or Bela live, don't miss it. It will be one of your top five musical experiences, guaranteed.

Tony

PS - If anyone is wondering, Bela is pronounced like "Layla", so it's like "Bayla".

No doubt. Bela is phenomenal.

Yes, Future man - he is on there. I was never a fan of the midi drum controllers, but he does it right, and more. Great DVD. The sax/wind player played (if I recall correctly) two penny whistles at the same time.
Also a very cool tune with a fantastic tabla player.

One thing I love about these guys is the technical acrobatics they perform are very musical, not just for the show.
