Maybe he doesn't want to be associated with a bunch of broken down was-beens... smart if you ask me. ;-) Time to let it go...

I'd love to know why M A is out and Wolfie is in.

Probabkly right, I just wondered if it was like JPJ not being asked to play with "Led Zeppelin" again.

By the way I saw the second Police show at Fenway Park last week. Wow! Andy is a bit slower on the frets for lead work but over all, man a great sow, and a killer deep set list, This comes from a guy who saw them a bunch "back in the day" and expected nothing from this show.

Michael was on the radio here in Tulsa last week talking about this and said he wasn't (as the article said) going to be on this one and expected that we will never see a full band reunion due to egos and differences. I hope Eddie can stay sober long enough to get through this proposed tour, I'd sure like to see them.

Because Mike plays VH stuff with Sammy in "The Other Half"

That rubs Ed the wrong way.

Ed's an easily-offended guy, isn't he?

Well..

I think Ed feels like Mike really didn't contribute any writing of all those songs that Mike's now cashing in on..

I understand that Mike had to sign over his royalties/rights to the back catalog in order to play on the 2004 tour.

Thats what I heard.

I'll bet that Wolfie wont be ready for what awaits.. (not his fault)

How in the world could Andy Summers be any slower? He was the weakest link.
