I've been getting that error alot lately, with no loops or punch, so I jacked up the config values, fixed the front of the files to exhibit 0 fade in and it seems to have taken care of it....for now....lol did you have either the loop or punch in function active at the time of saving the project? if you did try as soon as you load the ppj to save it under another name after turning off either or both of those functions.

Thanks for these great ideas, but alas they didn't solve the problem. I guess it's time to move the tracks to a new file for a fresh start (hopefully).
thanks again.

Up your config to 256 io and 256 cache (you'll have to open up config with notepad and type the io manually)video cache, set at 25600. This should get rid of the que errors, now render every track. Check to make sure everything sounds fine. Now put your config numbers back where they were.
