Due to circumstances beyond my control I am being forced to give up my music room so that we can house my son and a friend of his who has moved in with our family.

This of course will require dismantling and putting into storage (or selling) my beloved Paris rig. The only thing that is saving it from going up for sale are the ASIO drivers Mike is working on which allow me to use the rig with Reaper as it's front end which will provide continuity on projects at the studio (assuming the rig moves into our second studio)

To say this is the end of an era is truly appropriate...I have mixed several projects in there over the years and was hoping to use it as a second mix room for our humble little studio when projects backed up...alas that is not meant to be.

Times they are a changing

Indeed -

Good for you for helping out those who need it.

Best

Ted
