Like everything else in this screwy process, I have had to partially retrograde the BIOS on my Matrox P750 AGP card in order to get it to display the retrograded system BIOS that is necessary for the ASUS A8V-Deluxe to work without the new USB over current "feature". I can now boot my computer normally and enter the BIOS.

Gee, I can't wait until my new (and now discontinued Gigabyte 939 NForce 3) mobo gets here so I can start this process all over again.

I think it will take me about a month to want to even start thinking about going through this yet again.....however, it will be nice to have certain features that are available on that board si I'm going to do it.

Now, it's time to optimise the OS on this system.....oh joy!!!!

;o)
