
Subject: Forum Biz

Posted by kerryg on Mon, 01 Jun 2009 07:55:40 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi folks. If any of you have any difficulties logging in or remembering your password (or if you were a contributor on the NG and see you have an account here and think "password? what password?") - just reset your password and get a new one via email, you can always set it back afterwards. If that doesn't resolve things quickly, contact me and I'll sort it out right away.

I do apologize for the state of the older posts. This would have normally been resolved in the course of a resync with the NG, but the prolonged absence of the NG has caught me by surprise too. I wish I had some news to report, but I haven't got any more info than anyone else. We all wish Kim well, and look forward to the NG coming back up as soon as whatever difficulties are going on get resolved.

UPDATE 06/12/09: After more than a month of the NG's absence, and with no timeframe for its return, I think it's time for the use of another method to sort out the damaged older posts. Expect some disturbances in the Force over the next few days while I'm restoring sections of the forum from backup.

Thanks for your patience!

UPDATE 06/30/09: I've been updating the community census to account for the recent increases. It would seem we've taken a significant jump upwards; we now stand at 190 current PARIS users, many of whom are new community members (welcome!). Not bad for eight years after discontinuation.

Interestingly, we have some folks in their 20s joining us - which likely indicates new (or at least non-original-purchaser) PARIS users. A double welcome to you folks - let us know if you need any help getting your rigs running properly, and bring us ol' folks some new music!

- K
