Apologies for the blatant promotion...

I recorded/mixed/co-produced "The Sky Is Blue and Sometimes Cries" for my family's small label, Soona Songs. I think it's something special -- and so is Lisa Markley!

You can listen to samples here:
<http://www.myspace.com/lisamarkley>
http://www.soonasongs.com/store_lm2.php

The label has submitted it for a Grammy (Best Jazz Vocal Album), and it's made it through the first cut of nominees. We have our fingers crossed!

Thanks for reading/listening.

Thanks DC. Actually it was done with a Jim Williams-modified Alesis HD24XR into Samplitude. Mixed in Samplitude.

Sounds great Graham. I like the feel of "being there". What piano was used?

Thanks. It's a Yamaha U1 upright from the mid 80's.

Wow. I guess a 20 yr old Yamaha sounds like that. It's quite good. I assume you mic'd from the back? x/y? spaced pair?

It's a really nice sounding piano to start with (48" tall). I tried a lot of setups but ended up with modified m/s over Paul's right shoulder facing the front of the piano (Microtech Gefell UMT70s in omni for the mid, and another UMT70s in figure 8 for the side) plus a Soundelux U195 in the back for more lows. At first the sound was too wet, so we moved the piano against the absorptive wall. Hardy M-1 for preamps.
