James,

Paris wise, I was planning to sell it, however it looks as if nobody wants to buy it anyhow. I decided it isn't the best way for me to work, however I'm starting to rethink that. In many ways I work better by just using my GNX-4, however it probably depends what my goal is. If songwriting output is my priority the GNX-4 is certainly best, however if quality of performance and recording is my priority Paris works better for me. My current living arrangements don't really allow me to use Paris anywhere close to it's full extent however, and I think I'm probably better to focus on songwriting and composition than on production, nailing a final performance and getting the perfect mix of it, which is where Paris comes in.

I'm not sure how to answer the "What's going on..." bit at the moment. It's a bit complicated.

Cheers,
Kim.

Well, that depends how you look at it I guess. I have decided to sell my b
