I've heard that a couple of songs that I mixed were played on NPR a while back and that another one that I recorded on a comedy CD is being used on the soundtrack of some animal house genre movie that was made in Austin a few years ago. I even heard a very brief snippet of one of my mixes in a radio interview with an artist I recorded last year and I heard folks talking about how they had heard a couple of songs I mixed on the radio here but I've never once really heard one of my mixes on the radio.

I was driving down the road today surfing the channels and a song I mixed and co-produced recently was playing on one of the local FM stations.

It was actually sorta' wierd for a few seconds. I wanted to call in and say "Stop!!! It's not ready for this!!! I can do better!!!! and I started picking it to pieces but then I just chilled because it actually held up well and sounded good on the air.

It was a very gratifying feeling. I'll never forget it.

As a complete nobody when it comes to having songs on the radio, I can agree... it's a rush, no matter what. I've heard perhaps only half a dozen songs that I've either played on or engineered/produced on the radio - the first about 25 years ago, and the most recent about two years ago, and to me it's still pretty fuckin' cool :)

Speaking of which, I wonder who's got the most radio plays under their hat, out of the people that still hang here?

Probably Martin, yes? He might've even had that title before, even when T-Man was still posting... I know Shania & "Boot Scoot" got a lot of spins, but for awhile there you couldn't turn on a radio anywhere without hearing "I'm all out of love, I'm so lost without you, I know you were right...."

A friend of mine in Austin landed the McDonalds jingle account back in the 80's. He built a damned nice studio, just from the revenue from that account alone.

Definitely was a lucrative business at one time. I had a friend who sold ads for a radio station in Rhode Island. He started selling jingles (he is a musician, his wife a great singer) to those clients while he had them on the phone for radio ad time. Within a few months he started his own production company (not doing jingles anymore, but a successful company it seems).

We have a large well-known local production company here doing jingles dirt cheap - about what it would cost me to hire and record a couple of vocalists. Imho, it kind of killed the market here for the most part.

Definitely not worth my time to try and compete with them. Oddly their hourly rates are some of the highest in town, if not the highest.

I think around the early to mid 80's that may have been true, (but probably not), but not since then.

Thanks for the thought though...that seems like a lifetime ago....my kids were babies then, now their adults and flown the coop.

Yes, that's right...I was doing that long before I did Air Supply....I think I recorded some of Australia's all time favorite TV / Radio commercials in the 70's and 80's....sometimes that's an even bigger buzz....some have even made it into the Aust Archives...

The writer that I was working with did the same here in Oz with McDonalds jingles, and Coke, and IBM and....
Became the all-time top jingle writer in Australia during the 80's and 90's with the best studios, including one in Singapore.

Thanks Martin,

They are showing Beyond Tomorrow stuff on the satellite TV here. Some of them I remember seeing back in the 80's. Some of them are new, I think.

Nonetheless, Deej, it's still cool - so enjoy it.. like I said, it's still a rush no matter what! Pat yourself on the back, and give yerself two pats if it sounds better than the other stuff it's up against!

Nothing begets radio play like radio play. You may be just beginning.

Enjoy,

Yeh, I think that the new batch of BT are current as of this year, and shown here, but the 80's ones were made especially for the US market, still using us, (aussie crews).It sure was interesting doing many of the stories twice, one for international release, and the US one, with a US presenter. They were fun days.....too old now...I could do it again, they're looking for older (experienced) crews, but the conditions and hours are nowhere near as good as we had them.....

Congrats DJ!

enjoy the weirdness.....

I've been working in radio going on 15 years now (wow..time is flying) and I still get a little creeped out whenever I hear a jingle I wrote... or a voiceover....

interesting side note....

neither my kids, my wife, my parents... or pretty much anybody I know recognizes my voice when I am on the air... makes me giggle...

just recently we were heading downtown to a festival and I was monitoring one of our stations... a spot that I did was n the air and I said "wow...
listen to this moron"...

my oldest says to me "who is it dad... why is he a moron? "

I kept quiet... and about 20 seconds later she realized it was me... was pretty funny.

may this be the first in a long line for ya DJ!
