In case anyone wants a nice setup for display in win98se paris, you can do 1600x1200 on a samsung 304B 20.1" display and get 16 channels, 2 aux, submix master with graphic, eq, eds effects, native effects, grouping and a couple of aux channels to all fit in one mix window.

Similarly the editor and automation windows are a very nice size now.

plus the 1600x1200 works in both win98 and xp for those going back and forth.

about $500 for the display with 3 year warranty, $450 for 1 year.

For the XP users, a very cool tool for managing desktops can be found here:
 http://download.microsoft.com/download/whistler/Install/2/WX
P/EN-US/DeskmanPowertoySetup.exe

Explanation here:
 http://www.microsoft.com/windowsxp/downloads/powertoys/xppow ertoys.mspx

Win 98/ME I did not find a tool from MS as such, however third party apps exist out there for the google savvy.

In any event a screen that size is very cool, and to effectively have multiples of it for free using software just adds to the value.
'grats on the buy John, you're gonna love the extra real estate.

Is there one with a Send To Desktop # like in linux where you right click? That feature is really a must have I think.

Not to my knowledge, but I don't really stretch it that hard with how I work it since I have 3 video displays already.
