LaMont,
They sound really authentic! Not inexpensive either.

Well....for the money Neve is charging for the Portico 5042, you could buy a real tape deck, but then you would have to maintain and feed it.

True, and then you'd STILL have to make sure you had one of these:

Wouldn't it be cheaper, overall, just to buy a finished CD?

You can choose from pretty much any style of music and get an already completed disk for around $15.

Even CDs that were made with expert players, high dollar equipment and world class engineering!

Think of the savings. ;^)

Cheers,

-Jamie

I need to send this link to that poor schmuck at GC that Aaron and I had frantically searching for an "E" cowbell while we were in Denver.
