Maybe I shouldn't have read this so early in the morning.....

http://www.usnews.com/articles/news/iraq/2008/03/12/are-iraq i-insurgents-emboldened-by-antiwar-reporting.html

of course there is the usual weaselling, as follows:

The city of Baghdad, for a variety of reasons, was excluded from the report. The authors contend that looking at the outside provinces, where 65 percent of insurgent attacks take place, is a better way to understand the effect they have discovered. Other population centers like Mosul, Basra, Kirkuk, and Najaf were included in the study.

.....which basically means that the answer is yes, definitely, but we don't want our media colleagues who are using this issue as grist for the Democratic party political agenda to look like complete and total dumbasses and we don't want to stir the pot by exposing the leftists and their hypocritical political skills whose quasi treasonous political posturing has given aid, comfort and inspiration to the enemy, encouraging them to fight on and has therefore caused the unnecessary deaths of thousands of American soldiers and Iraqi civillians so we won't include the city that would prove it beyond a shadow of any doubt at all.

.....SHIT!!!.....where's my coffee????

Just for a bit of color, I'm overseas now and I have yet to find a SINGLE person who does not consider the Iraq war both morally and politically suicidal. I'm sure there are exceptions but giving it a wild guess I'd say it's 90/10 against, or at least in that neighborhood.

I've been vocally antiwar on Iraq since Colin Powell was pushing crooked data at the UN, and I don't plan on changing that.

Just to add more fuel to the fire, I was talking to an Israeli friend of mine recently and asked him what he thought the life expectancy of Robert Novak would be if he outed a Mossad agent working the antiproliferation beat. He thought for a minute and said 'months.' I'd say there's enough moral baggage to go around.
