Hello to everyone,

I have been fighting to get back onto The Paris Forums.

Could not post anything, nor log on for the most part.

Looks like it was Chrome browser that was doing it all along.

I knew something was up when I tried to make a new account and it would not work either.

Then I tried to buy the newest driver from Mike and it would not let me add or buy the driver. Again I knew something was up, maybe my computer, but what?

I ask Kerry and he thought it might be my browser, so I changed to Firefox and boom I'm back in (OS 7 windows). Now I can start to post my problems with my Paris rig. I need to get it back running again. LOL

A thanks goes out to Kerry and Mike for all the help!!

Oh man, that's a relief, was hoping it wasn't on our end! So what's up with the rig?

I'm glad to hear that you're up an running again.

I see you got the driver. Let me know if you need any help at all.

Kerry: I haven't forgotten about libsound. I've misplaced the power adapter for my hackintosh, and it's been insane around here with Erin going back to work. I'll try to find the adapter this weekend. If not, I'll order a new one.

Hey Guys,

First off: I would like to thank Kerry for getting me back on line here. Thank You!! you rock.

Second: Thanks goes to Mike Audit for has driver. Man that thing rocks (with 2.0) works perfect!

Now on 3.0 my computer crashed and I get a black screen and a reboot.

The other thing is ID does not support Paris anymore. So don't think I will be able to get 3.0 working again unless they give Mike the right to take off their protection code.

Yes, I have still record with my trusty old 2" tape machine.

The sound is like Heaven but the tape price is like Hell. I like the old school sound, still own Sound-crafts series 111 their first recording console (only 11 made) before the 3b come out. Mine is point to point hardwired. Full of transformers, and discreet chips. Yes, it's been hopped up. LOL

If I had known Mike had this driver for windows 7 I would of used my i7 that has 8 cores. The P-4 is fine and it supports SATA drives as well so I have mass storage now.

Thanks guys! It works again!!

I don't thin you should get crashing with PARIS 3.0. It should get you to the PACE page.

Try reinstalling PARIS 3.0 from my installer.

Let me know if that works.

As for PACE, if you live in Canada or the US, to my knowledge, it is illegal to remove the PACE code. If you live in a jurisdiction in which it is legal to remove digital locks if they interfere with fair use, you may find someone else around here who can help. I'm in Canada, and my involvement could be considered commercial, so I can't do anything.

As for asking for permission from ID, I've probably asked 10 times. They won't budge. Edmund did send me what was supposed to be a PACE free PARIS.exe, but it didn't work. I've been trying to hack together a fix, but I haven't been able to get it to work yet. I haven't given up, though.

All the best,

Mike

Hey Mike,

All the same I can get by with 2.1 for now.

I know "with time" you will have a new driver that will support any recording software. When that day comes then I can move on.

I thank you for all your help.

By the way what other plugins (of yours) are a must have! I have been eying them all.

Thanks again Mike! It's great to have a machine that works well!

I plan on recording music this weekend!!

Jeff
