
Subject: How to toggle monitoring on/off in Cubase?

I'm talking about the little speaker icon that lets you hear what you are recording. Here's the method to my madness:

When tracking, I'm bussing my individual track outputs either 1:1 or to stereo groups, depending on what I want to achieve) to a mixer (well, it's a furman HDS-16/HRM16), but for all practical purposes, it's a mixer. Using ASIO direct monitoring, this allows me to deal with whatever latency buffering I need as the project grows.

On each track or group, I've got send #1 set to my main mix bus at 0dB. This way, if the talent comes trooping into the CR to listen, I've got all the tracks capable of playing back through the mains.

Problem is, I have to togglemouse the little monitor icon off on each track or group for it to be heard through the mains.

Is there a keystroke combo for this. Also is there a keystroke combo for turning on/off the track record enable button on the channels?

Thanks, (frantically thumbing through manual)

Deej

Deej, if you put all the tracks in a folder, then you can toggle the monitor (speaker-thingy) on or off for everything that's in that folder... one-shot toggle, in or out. SIMPLE!

And yes, you can still put all your drum tracks in one folder, all your guitar tracks in a separate folder, all your vocal tracks in their own folder, and then put all THOSE folders all in one main folder for the purposes of tracking & do the mutey-thing there.

Folders also help when isolating certain tracks to check if a punch went well or basic track is OK, or not. Nice to be able to mute or solo stuff in groups, from a workflow standpoint

Thanks Neil. that's the ticket all right. Much appreciated. those folders sure are handy for slots of macro'esque things.

You can also create a keyboard command to toggle the monitor icon on and off. Very handy IMO.

I did find the keystroke command editor thing. I just wonder how much more complicated they could have made it.

let me know if you want the app that lets you print the shortcuts all out so you can have them on paper. hehe Some nice guy wrote it and gave it to the group.
