Subject: Fave itb mastering plugs
Posted by Eugene B on Thu, 15 Sep 2005 21:32:03 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

LESSsbcglobal.net> wrote:
>Okay group, your thoughts please: Grand piano, with vocal... Best >ideas for the killer sound

Subject: Re: Fave itb mastering plugs
Posted by Rod Lincoln on Thu, 15 Sep 2005 22:21:06 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

The absolute highest track count and plugin record
in the world !!!

If anyone is interested - Please let me know

http://www.nemexpo.com

Morgan
Eastcoast Music Mall
morganp@ntplx.net
80

Subject: Re: Fave itb mastering plugs
Posted by Jesse Skeens on Fri, 16 Sep 2005 00:30:15 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

0-901-2001> We will be detailing the all new AMD QUAD CPU > computer presently in use @ Lakewood !
> The absolute highest track count and plugin record
> in the world !!!

........of course, it doesn't matter at all that I don't really need one of these for what I do here, but...........................

;o)

"Morgan" <

Subject: Re: Fave itb mastering plugs
Posted by Nei on Fri, 16 Sep 2005 03:36:29 GMT

"_blank">1@linux...
>
> Using "delete time" will get rid of the audio and move the audio that's > after > the deleted portion forward (or back depending on what you call it)so it > butts up to the audio that was before the part you took out (which is what > you want) and the EXACT same thing happen

Subject: Re: Fave itb mastering plugs
Posted by rick on Fri, 16 Sep 2005 10:29:02 GMT

uot;>

Subject: Re: Fave itb mastering plugs
Posted by Jesse Skeens on Sat, 17 Sep 2005 22:17:07 GMT

This morning I actually literally jumped for joy. I was throwing fists in the air with passion and excitement, shouting "YES!!!".

I since dis