

---

Subject: Really not trying to start a platform war, promise

Posted by TCB on Tue, 17 Jun 2008 20:28:21 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

So, I'm looking seriously for a flying fader hardware controller for my home mixing rig. So, I get in touch with one of my friends who is an 'industry insider' that I still know from back when I was an 'industry insider.' Industry insider says, 'Hands down, now question, the Euphonix Artist series. They could double the price and sell them, couldn't use Logic without it.' I remind him that I'm not a Mac guy. He says PC support should be ready now, says he'll ask around.

I hear back, he says PC support was slated for April, the pushed back, now for late '08. He also says he swears he saw a pretty solid version of the Eucon software for the PC before, used with the Artist series. Then he opines that he thinks Euphonix/Apple/Logic did a 'nod and wink' deal to keep the product Mac only and that Euphonix is known as a 'Mac shop.'

Can anyone here confirm/deny any of this. It's might be FUD, but it makes some sense.

TCB

---

---

Subject: Re: Really not trying to start a platform war, promise

Posted by Jamie K on Tue, 17 Jun 2008 20:34:29 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Macs suck!!!

(dang, sorry, it just slipped out...).

I don't know, but the bass player in one of the bands I'm in just got the Euphonix and loves it with Logic. He dumped the Logic Control fader box which he says was junk in comparison. So if you can wait it out, it sounds like their stuff is worth the wait. Or buy a Mac. ;^)

Cheers,

-Jamie

www.JamieKruz.com

TCB wrote:

> So, I'm looking seriously for a flying fader hardware controller for my home > mixing rig. So, I get in touch with one of my friends who is an 'industry > insider' that I still know from back when I was an 'industry insider.' Industry > insider says, 'Hands down, now question, the Euphonix Artist series. They > could double the price and sell them, couldn't use Logic without it.' I > remind him that I'm not a Mac guy. He says PC support should be ready now, > says he'll ask around.

>
> I hear back, he says PC support was slated for April, the pushed back, now > for late '08. He also says he swears he saw a pretty solid version of the > Eucon software for the PC before, used with the Artist series. Then he opines > that he thinks Euphonix/Apple/Logic did a 'nod and wink' deal to keep the > product Mac only and that Euphonix is known as a 'Mac shop.'
>
> Can anyone here confirm/deny any of this. It's might be FUD, but it makes > some sense.
>
> TCB

---

---

Subject: Re: Really not trying to start a platform war, promise
Posted by Bill L on Tue, 17 Jun 2008 20:59:54 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

That would be a ridiculous business decision, unless they were paid to stall the release (which would still be a bad choice). More likely they just don't have experienced PC driver programmers.

Or else it's a conspiracy...

TCB wrote:

> So, I'm looking seriously for a flying fader hardware controller for my home > mixing rig. So, I get in touch with one of my friends who is an 'industry > insider' that I still know from back when I was an 'industry insider.' Industry > insider says, 'Hands down, now question, the Euphonix Artist series. They > could double the price and sell them, couldn't use Logic without it.' I > remind him that I'm not a Mac guy. He says PC support should be ready now, > says he'll ask around.
>
> I hear back, he says PC support was slated for April, the pushed back, now > for late '08. He also says he swears he saw a pretty solid version of the > Eucon software for the PC before, used with the Artist series. Then he opines > that he thinks Euphonix/Apple/Logic did a 'nod and wink' deal to keep the > product Mac only and that Euphonix is known as a 'Mac shop.'
>
> Can anyone here confirm/deny any of this. It's might be FUD, but it makes > some sense.
>
> TCB

---

---

Subject: Re: Really not trying to start a platform war, promise

---

Posted by [John \[1\]](#) on Wed, 18 Jun 2008 01:19:08 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

It's an evil Mac conspiracy, they even dropped Logic Studio 2 to $499, and did you hear, they are trying to steal business customers with their iPhones with Exchange server support?

"TCB" <nobody@ishere.com> wrote:

>
>So, I'm looking seriously for a flying fader hardware controller for my home >mixing rig. So, I get in touch with one of my friends who is an 'industry >insider' that I still know from back when I was an 'industry insider.' Industry >insider says, 'Hands down, now question, the Euphonix Artist series. They >could double the price and sell them, couldn't use Logic without it.' I >remind him that I'm not a Mac guy. He says PC support should be ready now, >says he'll ask around.
>
>I hear back, he says PC support was slated for April, the pushed back, now >for late '08. He also says he swears he saw a pretty solid version of the >Eucon software for the PC before, used with the Artist series. Then he opines >that he thinks Euphonix/Apple/Logic did a 'nod and wink' deal to keep the >product Mac only and that Euphonix is known as a 'Mac shop.'
>
>Can anyone here confirm/deny any of this. It's might be FUD, but it makes >some sense.
>
>TCB

---

Subject: Re: Really not trying to start a platform war, promise

Posted by TCB on Wed, 18 Jun 2008 13:41:12 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

There's no law that says people have to make smart business decisions.

TCB

Bill L <bill@billlorentzen.com> wrote:

>That would be a ridiculous business decision, unless they were paid to >stall the release (which would still be a bad choice). More likely they >just don't have experienced PC driver programmers.

>
>Or else it's a conspiracy...

>
>TCB wrote:

>> So, I'm looking seriously for a flying fader hardware controller for my home

>> mixing rig. So, I get in touch with one of my friends who is an 'industry insider' that I still know from back when I was an 'industry insider.'

Industry

>> insider says, 'Hands down, now question, the Euphonix Artist series. They >> could double the price and sell them, couldn't use Logic without it.'

|

>> remind him that I'm not a Mac guy. He says PC support should be ready now, >> says he'll ask around.

>>

>> I hear back, he says PC support was slated for April, the pushed back, now >> for late '08. He also says he swears he saw a pretty solid version of the

>> Eucon software for the PC before, used with the Artist series. Then he opines

>> that he thinks Euphonix/Apple/Logic did a 'nod and wink' deal to keep the >> product Mac only and that Euphonix is known as a 'Mac shop.'

>>

>> Can anyone here confirm/deny any of this. It's might be FUD, but it makes >> some sense.

>>

>> TCB

---