OK,

My talented young music slaves have convinced me we should leave the safety of the studio once in a while and do some "shows." (I guess they call 'em "shows" these days?)

Aside from needing a bass player and a living violinist, we also need some kind of little PA system to rehearse with. Ideally, we'd like something that would also work for small venues, like coffee shops, record stores, parties, etc. The all-in-one package systems are tempting (was looking at a Yamaha EMX212S), but I want to make sure it sounds good and has feedback control in a small rehearsal space, etc. You know.

Ideally, we'd like to spend less than 6 or 7 hundred, but I'm pretty out of touch with the gear world, and we'll do what we need to do.

Thanks,

Sarah
