I don't know about these accusations, iPod designs do change, just look at the shape of the new iPod nano, it's not going to fit in the old nano accessory docs for any third party product. The new Nano does video, that's why it has new shape to fit a new screen size.

You were complaining about how slow an iMac you had was. I ask which model it was and I got silence. so which model was it?

In the recent keynote speech, Steve Jobs stated that you can make your own ring tones, so I'm not sure if what they are saying is correct. I don't own an iPhone and have not tried this, so this doesn't make sense. Go check out the keynote speech.

They are charging $.99 to create a ring tone from any of there licensed music from the itunes music store. Remember, Apple worked out licensing deals with the record co. years ago, it didn't included ring tones. They have to charge a fee for ring tones. What do others charge for ring tones? Last time I checked it started around $2.99 a ring tone, so $.99 or $1.98 is a deal.

Some body will always find a way to twist the truth and complain about Apple.

It was an iMac. I don't know what model it was as I inherited it. But it was so slow that I gave it to a 12 year old to play with.

Post-launch reaction has been even more ecstatic.

"Before today, I couldn't imagine paying $12,000 for a product-unveiling product," CNET editor Jasmine France said after the presentation. "Now I can't imagine living without it."

BWAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA!!!!!!.....this sums up the Machead mentality perfectly, IMO.

No kidding - they could probably launch the iTurd next (I can see it now - a big cowpie spray-painted white, with a Firewire port attached to it) and all the Jobs Jihadists would buy that, too.

Nice insults. This is the kind of ignorant shit that will keep this all going! So if you want to keep eating up bandwidth with Mac post keep going. It's not clear what she means by 12,000.00?

My guess if it was slow it was an old G3 which would make it around 7 or 8 years old. You point out that the all new iPods are not compatible with old third party connectors. Can you run Window vista on a 7 or 8 year old PC? You can run Mac OSX on a 7 or 8 year old iMac! Don't rip on Macs based on old machines, I have old PCs and there slow also.

The Onion article is great! :^)

But the "MacHead" mentality more commonly seen on the discussion groups (like Macrumors) would more likely express disappointment that the "product-unveiling product" doesn't have the ability to unveil TWO PRODUCTS AT ONCE, if not FOUR! "Where is the dual or quad unveiling ability, that's lame" would be a typical complaint of a hard core Mac rumor follower (if that was a real product).

It's a demanding bunch, desiring ever more, wanting Apple to be ahead of the curve in every possible way all the time. A tough crowd.

Cheers,
-Jamie

Hey, glad to be your entertainment. No john you are a coward. You have an open invitation to come to Detroit and insult me to my face, I'd like to see you try! Maybe some day we'll catch up with each other. I'll give you the opportunity to run your big mouth then.

What is it with you Detroit guys? You're all so intense - chill out a bit, go to Santa Fe or Sedona or someplace mellow for a vacation. No one's insulting you here - just poking a little fun. Geez, Deej & I have said more sarcastic things ribbing each other right here than all the stuff you're getting so bent out of shape about.

Don't worry Jamie, pretty soon the new Barcelonas will be running at 3.0G per core and wiping the floor with Intel CPU's.
Macs and PC's will have them both and then we can start arguing about Intel vs AMD again.

Sorry, I can't... all my Mac's are currently busy being used as doorstops, or holding down the back end of a kick drum mic boom stand, and - oh yeah almost forgot, McCloskey's right, those Mac cases really ARE great - I'm using one of 'em as an oil drain pan underneath the car right now!

Couple more minutes/couple more quarts, I should be ready to pull the filter.

Dear MacJames, don't be mad at us "PC fans", we just love to do some jokes with "the preachers of the Macchurchs";-)

By the way, do you get the norwegian article about Mac in Norway translated?

I believe Mobilephones makers are hating Norway these days. They lost a lawsuit here this week at the highest level. So now we got 5 years complaint/guarantee on mobile phones here in Norway, where Mac directly have showed that the life of their mobile phone is just 1 year with their own guarantee;-)

So, for me, it shows up that most of the sellings isn't about quality at all, it's about how much money sellers can get out of the dumb customers;-) iDunno, iDeej. iS thiS iNuff? :^)

I haven't bought an iAnything, yet. The newest iPod nano is tempting with the video support but OTOH I'm dubious about the non-user-changeable battery. More storage would be nice and it's missing a couple of features I'd want. Maybe a future version will tempt me more.

I dig OSX, though, and some of the Apple production apps. My Logic 8 upgrade hasn't shown up yet...

Scratch that, just after I sent that last email, FedEx rang the doorbell.
Logic 8 is here!!!

But I don't have time to install it until after I get back from the NY shoot.

Anticipation...

Ya know, you 'n me have some similar quirks. We're both pretty conservative thinking guys on many levels and then we both nelly out on issues that are decidedly associated with the more liberal friends we have.....for me it's animal rights, for you it's Macs.

I'm gonna respect your Macness and not give you any more grief. I have been kiddin' around (almost) the whole time. I'm sorry if I hurt your feelings man. Seriously. I just have this sick side that.....well.....you already know.....

Heh. So Macs are "liberal" now? How so?

iDoubtit. :^)

What about Rush Limbaugh, should we take his Mac away?

Nah, not everything can be shoehorned into a simplistic and one dimensional "liberal"/"conservative" dichotomy.

Granted, such a contrived construct can be useful for people who enjoy talking past each other, and who relish buying into a particular story line no matter what. We're gonna see a lot of that over the next year or so.

But in a vast, multidimensional universe, two points on a single line don't solve many overall problems, and I wouldn't think they really help with computer shopping.

So which dimension are Mac users from? Sounds like a philosophy on the odds for being struck by an asteroid, and winning the lottery....at the same time.

I didn't know Mac users thought that deeply about their computers. Might be a good idea to turn off the voice response system, Dave.

Awwwwww.....c'mon Jaimie. You think the guys in the Mac ads aren't (subliminally, at least) shoehorned?. I hardly see the kid on the right as being a Sean Hannity fan. Maybe I'm off base here, butanyway.

Sure, if you think commercials represent reality. :^)

OTOH, do YOU identify with the "PC" guy in those spots? I didn't think so.

Brace yourself. There are, for example, MoveOn.org folks who use MSWindows. And, for example, NeoCon folks who use Macs. And a percentage of every narrow group you can think of happily regurgitates the tripe-of-the-day, merrily talking past each other in self righteous glory.

Have a great week!

Politics? You guys are now going to take this to politics? Why don't you guys talk about religion next?

The iHumor is lame. If you want to talk about something that is a real joke, why don't you guys talk about Windows Vista? It's a sad rip off of Mac OSX! Once MS copies enough features from Mac OSX and gets Vista working right, we'll all hear how much better Vista is than Mac OSX. When that happens, Mac OSX will be at least three years ahead of Vista. Apple leads, Microsoft follows.

Steve Jobs Said it years ago, and it's the truth.
<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=WfALGcDNEDw>

I just had to bring Steve in to this, because I know you just love him DJ.

Back in the late 80s early 90s before there was any audio MIDI soft ware available on a PC, there was the big five, all available on a Mac. ProTools, Digital Performer, Studio Vision, Logic, and YES, Cubase was on a Mac, years before it was ever on a PC! And yes, I'm aware of Atari and AMEGA and others, so don't even start. Macintosh is the platform that survived.

Back in 1984 when PCs were still using a Dumb Operating System called DOS, Apple was showing the world the Macintosh, and Microsoft has been copying Apple ever since, and doing a shitty job of it, I might add.

1984, Apple the company that had the vision!

I dunno.....but I've seen plenty of iFreezes that have required an OS reload with no friGgiN' clue as to why (and this was the wonderful world of Applecare) Total horseshit James.

By fair comparison, how many people lost their data and had to re-install the crashed/burned programs over unprotected memory on the Mac (which btw wasn't 'fixed' until FreeB... er, OS-x)...

seriously man, you're getting to wrapped up in this stuff. It's just a computer on either side of the mac/pc coin and the lines between the two are pretty blurry most the time and getting less visible.

Mediocre crap? Now that's funny coming from a windoz guy! Hey, that excuse about no software for a Mac is so old it's got dinosaur dust on it. There is about 30,000 software titles for the Mac. How much buggy software is there floating around for Windoz? What about the retail price for Windoz Fista? It's like $399.00 or $499.00 for Fista Pro. Mac OSX is and has been $129.00 list price, and yes there are discounts. What about that premium price for the average user. All you guys can do is point to the hardware cost, which as I proved is not that much different. If you count in the software bundles it might be an even better deal.

Hey while your at it, Choose a Vista!

Yep, it figures you would have to go back ten years to the Mac memory allocation

i got two macolites down the road on their 3rd fresh install in 5 days who swear that they never crash...err...do what pc's do. i find it quite funny but have learned to shut the eff up. ya can't even tell them they're just computers and this is what they ALL do.

James, apart from entertainment and amusement value, what is it that you add to this group.

I know that I don't contribute much these days as I no longer have Paris, and don't record music anymore but I at least respect the users here, and I hope that goes both ways.

You, on the other hand.....

Ooh, showing your age and ignorance here James.
Session8 (by Digidesign) was around then, (on PC only to begin with) and it was more powerfull than the equivelent PT product on Mac.

I still own a lot of Paris gear and don't get to use it as much as I like to. I contribute when I can. Any time there is a mac post the bashing starts, and your one of the bashers. I'm not the only Mac user here! When you insist that Mac OSX sucks, what are you contributing? So what respect do you show when you dish out insults to Mac users? Have I ever personally insulted you?

Sound Tools/ ProTools was out on a Mac long before Session8 showed up. In the early 90s there was a Yamaha hardware system that was controlled by a computer. It worked on a Mac, and maybe a PC??? I can't remember. I was mainly talking about DAW software, but whatever.

That memory allocation thing was a PITA, it was lack of memory or user error.
Mac OS did crash back then when you had too much stuff going on. It also wasn't like Avid software was problem free either. Were you an early adopter of Avid? Did you use Macs on a daily basis back then?

If you care to get off your high horse and go back a few posts (days) you'll see that I stated that I really like the OSX interface.

I just wish that you'd stop the over zealous one eyed immature defense of Macs.

They are just an overpriced (generally) piece of machinery that happens to run a half decent operating system.

Nothing more.
