Surely those pups would derive great joy from chewing on something by Purple ople or whatever who answered the roll call a while back, but I've found a place where I can make calls to places like the U.K, U.S.A, Germany, Greece, and all the like all for the tempting price of, would you beleive, NOTHING AT ALL!!! And that's to actual landline phones, not to other net phones.

Hence, when I get VOIP in a few months I'm going to make a post for people to send their phone numbers, and then call someone every night, or day, or whatever time is convenient relative to timelines and the like. ;o)

Well, as TXU, or TRUenergy would say, I'M exited by my new plan, even if you're not. (Aussie (maybe Vic) joke).

Cheers,

Kim.Yeahhhh, I have something similar here in Norway and have used it some couple of months, the IP telephone that's using landline phones too. I am paying 159 norwegian crowns each month and can ring free to whole Scandinavia, WestEurope, USA and Canada. Most of the other countries as Australia, I can ring for 100 minutes free each month. So I can see, it's a real new world that have opened up with the internet phone the last years. Just give me your phonenumber Kim, and I'll call you. If it will be in the middle of a night in Australia, I don't know, so maybe it's a good idea to know how different the time are showing up in different countries. I've had some phonecalls from an old scoolfriend of mine some years ago, that's living in Los Angeles. It wasn't show at all to wake up in the middle of the night to the phone and talk with a half drunk'n person that had forgot all about the time difference and trying to be nice with him at 4 o'clock in the morning when it was just early evening in Los Angeles;-)

Cheers,
erlilo
