Have a merry Christmas all. Whether you believe in such things or not, it is worth celebrating and enjoying the vibe of happiness, the community and family spirit, and the general feeling of goodwill that exists this time of year in so many places.

There are times in life when I both have and have not believed in God and Jesus, but one things for sure, the Jesus we hear about did have some nice things to say about love, the importance of people and the struggle of the poor, and that's worth acknowledging to me. He also seemed to make a special point about how it's ok to get spoiled and be bathed in the finest fragrances on deserving or needed occasions, that there are more important things that material wealth in life, such as caring about people.

Now I could use that a a segway into how this particular group help each other out so much and how cool you all are, but I might instead just say "So Merry Xmas all" and leave it at that. ;o)

Cheers,
Kim.

I feel like I have real friends here, and friendship is not something I =

Merry christmas and/or Happy holydays to you all from Norway.
Walked home from celebration with family tonight. A little half an hour walking with only the moon and stars as guests, lighten up my way. Not any snow but the ground was freezing.

Merry Christmas LaMont. If you've got the time in the next few days, could you send me those pics of the Euphonics control surface that you were never given and that you don't have?

Life is good indeed. Glad your friend is OK.

We're having a snowstorm here in Colorado after all, sorry you're missing out! ;^)

Merry Christmas from sunny SoCal.

We wish you all the best of Christmas blessings.

My good friend had to sit in the hospital last night while his wife has emergency gall bladder removal...

She's just fine, and so are we. Life is good.

The same to all y'all from here in Northwest Indiana. This group has been , is, and will continue to be, one big extended family. I love this place.

They are pretty cool. Takes a while to find your balance, and you'd be amazed at how sensitive they are to movement.

Oh, wait.

That's not the segway you were talking about. I think you meant "segue".
